Lights, Camera, Love

Natalie Murray

Summary

A sizzling grumpy-meets-sunshine romance about belonging, trust, hope, and finding the kind of love you never thought possible—from the author of Love, Just In.

Hip-hop dance teacher Evie Scott has just landed the opportunity of a lifetime: a role in a blockbuster movie opposite her teenage crush, Hollywood heartthrob Austin Reynolds. But the person she can't stop thinking about isn't Austin—it's his grumpy, sharp-tongued manager, Kye Evans.

A gifted dancer who grew up in foster care, Kye owes everything to Austin and his family. Now a successful manager and publicist, he's spent years cleaning up other people's messes—but it's his own past he's desperate to keep buried. The last thing he needs is a distraction like Evie.

As rehearsals stretch late into the night, Evie and Kye's chemistry flares both on and off the dance floor. But when old wounds resurface, they must decide if they're brave enough to face their fears—and embrace a love that could change everything.

Praise for Natalie Murray:

Maori Ora

Your Guide to Using Traditional Maori Knowledge to Live a More Intentional Life

Hira Nathan

Summary

An inspirational guided journal based on mātauranga Māori (Māori knowledge), designed to help you build simple daily habits and live a more balanced, intentional life.

Ma te matau ka ora te iwi — Through knowledge, the people will thrive.

Engage with key aspects of mātauranga—manaakitanga (kindness and care), kaitiakitanga (connection with the land), mauri (life force), rangatiratanga (leadership and self-determination), tikanga/kawa (customs and behavior), and whanaungatanga (relationships).

This journal helps you connect the wisdom of the past with the challenges of the present, using guided prompts and reflections to inspire positive change and personal growth. Whether you spend a few minutes a day or a longer moment of reflection, kei a koe te tikanga—it's up to you.

Build a bridge between mātauranga and modern life to cultivate wellbeing, purpose, and harmony.

Ko te manu e kai ana i te miro, nōna te ngahere. Ko te manu e kai ana i te mātauranga, nōna te ao.
The bird that partakes of the miro berry owns the forest. The bird that partakes of knowledge owns the world.

Oliphant

The Australian Genius who Developed Radar and Showed Oppenheimer How to Build the Bomb
Roland Perry

Summary

The extraordinary life of the true genius behind the atomic bomb, radar, and much more—a maverick Australian scientist who changed the course of history.

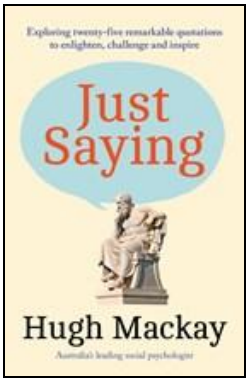

On August 6, 1945, the United States launched the world's first nuclear attack on Japan. J. Robert Oppenheimer would be remembered as the father of the atomic bomb, but it was Australian physicist Sir Mark Oliphant and his laboratory who discovered how it could be built. Faced with Hitler's race to develop atomic weapons, Oliphant shared his research with Oppenheimer—an act that would shape history and haunt them both.

Oliphant's brilliance extended far beyond nuclear science. He was instrumental in developing radar, a technology that saved Britain from Nazi invasion, and later played a key role in establishing the Australian National University. Yet his outspoken opposition to U.S. nuclear dominance after the war led to suspicion, CIA surveillance, and even a ban from entering the country he had helped so profoundly.

Drawing on personal interviews with Oliphant, bestselling author Roland Perry delivers a vivid portrait of one of the t...

Just Saying

Exploring twenty-five remarkable quotations to enlighten, challenge and inspire
Hugh Mackay

Summary

Warm, witty, wise—and sometimes challenging—Just Saying offers bestselling social psychologist Hugh Mackay's deeply personal reflections on twenty-five quotations from some of the world's greatest thinkers and writers.

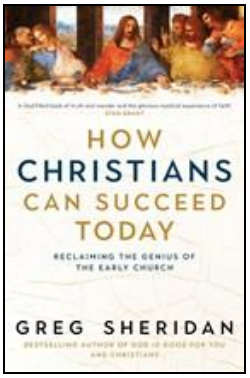

From Confucius and Plato to Susan Sontag and Miles Franklin, from Samuel Johnson and Mary Wollstonecraft to Bertrand Russell and Gloria Steinem, Mackay invites readers to pause, reflect, and join the conversation.

Exploring themes that shape our humanity—kindness and humility, power and prejudice, gender equality and diversity, change and forgiveness—Mackay interprets our complex world with warmth, insight, and humor.

As he says: "Writing these reflections has felt a bit like the beginning of a conversation... now it's over to you."

How Christians Can Succeed Today

Reclaiming the Genius of the Early Church

Greg Sheridan

Summary

Rediscovering the radical, transcendent, and sometimes downright strange message of Jesus, How Christians Can Succeed Today is the third book in Greg Sheridan's bestselling trilogy about Christianity in the modern world.

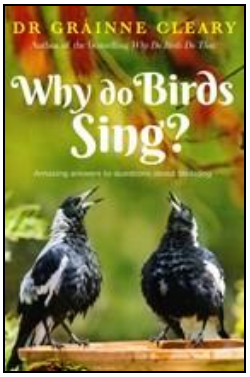

The first Christians lived in a world far more hostile than today's. They had little money, no influence, and numbered only a few hundred—yet they transformed the ancient world through courage, grace, and conviction. Sheridan explores how they built communities, faced persecution, cared for the sick, championed women's equality, and redefined what it means to live a life centered on Jesus Christ.

Drawing parallels to the challenges of modern life, Sheridan also profiles contemporary Christians who embody those same values: Leila and Danny Abdallah, young people making radical commitments to faith, pastors serving remote communities, and cultural figures such as Marilynne Robinson, Jordan Peterson, Bishop Robert Barron, and Dallas Jenkins.

A stirring call to return to the raw, revolutionary faith of the early church, How Christians Can Succeed Today reveals how living Ch...

Why Do Birds Sing?

Grainne Creary

Summary

An engaging and insightful exploration of one of nature's most beautiful mysteries—why birds sing.

At first glance, the question seems simple. But the answer reveals a world of extraordinary intelligence, communication, and complexity. Throughout history, birdsong has inspired art, poetry, and music, lifted human spirits, and brought backyards to life. Yet few of us stop to wonder—who are the birds singing to, and what are they trying to say?

In Why Do Birds Sing?, Dr. Gráinne Creary unpacks the science and wonder behind avian communication. Just as human infants learn to speak, young birds learn their songs by listening and practicing until they get them right. They adjust pitch, tone, and rhythm depending on who they're "talking" to and what they want to express—whether it's to attract a mate, defend territory, or warn of danger.

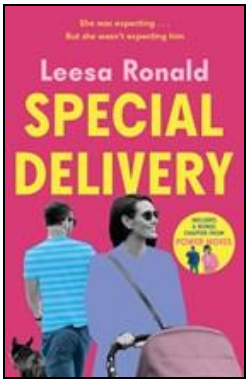

Filled with fascinating facts and delightful observations, this book offers a new appreciation for the intelligence and emotion behind every chirp and melody. After reading it, you'll never listen to birdsong the same way again.

Praise for Why Do Birds Sing?:

Leesa Ronald

Summary

An entrancing, laugh-out-loud enemies-to-lovers romantic comedy perfect for fans of Book Lovers by Emily Henry and No Hard Feelings by Genevieve Novak.

Moving back to her hometown in country New South Wales—single, jobless, and pregnant—was never part of Poppy's plan. With her best friend hundreds of kilometers away and her ex avoiding her calls, she's running out of people to lean on.

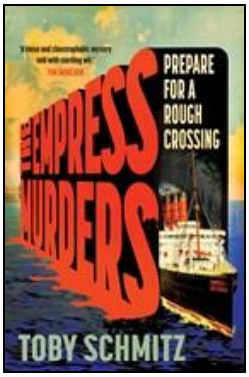

Definitely not her midwife, James. Sure, he held her hand through childbirth—but only because it was his job. Or so she thought. As their paths keep crossing in the small town, Poppy starts to wonder if she misjudged him… and that complicates everything.

As Poppy stumbles from crisis to crisis, she discovers that sometimes you have to let go of the past to build a future—and that the strongest relationships can grow from the most unexpected beginnings.

The Empress Murders

Toby Schmitz

Summary

A razor-sharp and mind-bendingly clever whodunnit from award-winning playwright and actor Toby Schmitz.

It's 1925, and the Empress of Australia is making her regular Atlantic crossing to New York with a full roster of passengers. But when a dead body is discovered onboard, Inspector Archie Daniels must find the killer before panic—and the body count—spread. Solving one murder quickly turns into solving two, then three, and it becomes clear that no one is safe. From the horrendously wealthy first-class passengers to those considered the "dregs of empire" below deck, everyone is trapped—and everyone is a suspect.

Both a witty, bloodthirsty whodunnit and a biting examination of the British Empire at its twilight, The Empress Murders is a tense, claustrophobic mystery told with dark humor, intelligence, and flair.

Praise for The Empress Murders:

100 Years of Route 66

A Celebration of an American Icon

Mark Williamson

Summary

Route 66 is the very essence of Americana—a ribbon of asphalt and concrete that embodies the American Dream in its diners, motels, and gas stations.

For some, it evokes images of rusting gas pumps and broken neon signs; for others, it represents the freedom of the open road. Think The Grapes of Wrath meets Cars, Art Deco meets Harley-Davidson—it's the ultimate road trip.

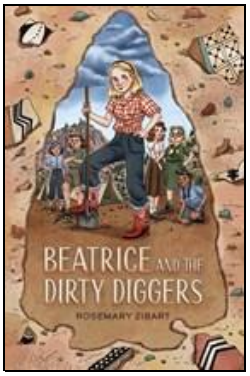

As Route 66 celebrates its 100th birthday, this book pays tribute to America's most famous highway with a stunning collection of photographs that capture its spirit, history, and enduring legacy.

Channeling nostalgia for this American icon—and the timeless appeal of the Route 66 brand—it also inspires photographers to explore and document the soul of the Mother Road for themselves.

Perfect for lovers of travel, history, and photography—and for anyone who dreams of life on the open road—this book keeps the spirit of Route 66 alive for future generations.

Beatrice and the Dirty Diggers

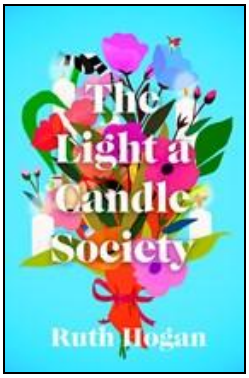

Rosemary Zibart

Summary

Beatrice Sims can hardly wait to join the Dirty Diggers at a summer camp for teen girls interested in unearthing the secrets of ancient ruins. Beatrice dreams of finding mysteries from the past while she yearns to make new friends. Instead, the WWII refugee from England is seen as an outsider by the other girls and when a precious artifact goes missing, Beatrice is suspected of being the thief. Yet when a violent storm threatens the camp, Beatrice discovers something even more valuable — the courage to face danger and compassion to help others.

The Light a Candle Society

Ruth Hogan

Summary

Every flame tells a story.

George McGlory has been adrift since the death of his beloved wife, Audrey. But when he stumbles upon a public health funeral—a stark ceremony with no flowers, no mourners, and no love—he resolves to do something about it.

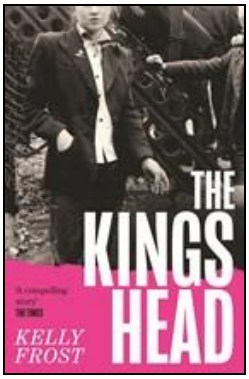

Determined that every life deserves to be remembered, George teams up with florist Elena, undertaker Edwin, and Sid, the eccentric owner of a bric-a-brac shop. Together they form The Light a Candle Society, a group devoted to bringing light, beauty, and compassion to those whose final journeys would otherwise go unnoticed.

As they craft heartfelt tributes for strangers, George and his newfound friends begin to confront the ghosts of their own pasts—discovering that remembrance can heal as much as it honors.

Tender, uplifting, and filled with gentle humor, The Light a Candle Society is a moving story about love, loss, and the small acts of kindness that can illuminate even the darkest days.

Contributor Bio

Ruth Hogan studied English and Drama at Goldsmiths College and went on to work in local government. A car accident and a subsequent run-in with cancer convinced her finally to get her act together and pursue her dream of becoming a writer. The Kings Head

Kelly Frost

Summary

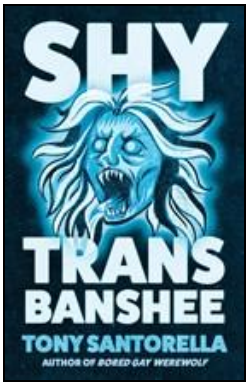

A fierce story of friendship, rivalry, and survival set amid London's forgotten girl gangs.

1957, London.

A gang of girls called the Kings rules the bomb-scarred streets of Finsbury Park. When Harry, their unpredictable but magnetic leader, moves to claim the territory of the rival Seven Sisters gang, the Kings know a fight is coming. Armed with flick knives and fists, they battle it out in dancehalls and on soccer fields. But as the authorities close in and conscripted boys return to reclaim what was once theirs, the Kings must decide how far they're willing to go for loyalty. Bound by fierce friendship and brutal competition, these young women will stop at nothing to carve a place for themselves in a ruthless city.

The Echo of Crows

Phil Rickman

Summary

THE FINAL NOVEL IN THE MERRILY WATKINS SERIES

Nestled deep in the Black Mountains, the village of Longtown is haunted by killings both ancient and modern.

When young farmer and lottery winner Eddy Davies is found dead in suspicious circumstances, Herfordshire Police find themselves handling a complicated investigation. Things aren't looking good for Davies' friend, the mysterious Autumn Wise, who is found nearby holding a shotgun.

She calls on Merrily Watkins - parish priest, single mom and renowned demon exorcist - for help. And soon Merrily will discover that Eddy's death is only the latest in a long string of tragedies to blight Longtown and the surrounding area. But help is at hand from Merrily's spiritual advisor, the Rev. Huw Owen, who has an unorthodox solution in mind to end the area's centuries-long trail of misfortune.

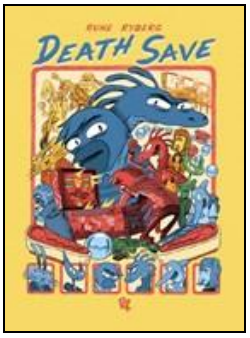

Praise for Phil Rickman:

Death Save

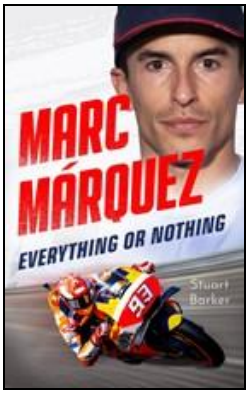

Rune Ryberg

Summary

It’ s the ’ 90s in a nowhere suburb, and two teen misfits are wasting their days in a grungy pinball arcade. They’ re dodging adulthood with petty crimes, bad ideas, and a steady stream of arcade noise. But one of them is dragging the other down— and sooner or later, something’ s got to give. Danish artist Rune Ryberg delivers a high-voltage coming-of-age story packed with raw energy, dark humor, and a hit of nostalgia for the golden age of pinball and video games. Death Save is a punchy, absurd, and surprisingly heartfelt ride through the chaos of growing up.

Contributor Bio

Rune Ryberg is a Danish comic book artist and character designer. His style is loose and colorful, often featuring extended wordless sequences that explore his characters’ inner emotional struggles and tribulations. In 2020, he received a three-year working grant from the Danish Arts Foundation in recognition of his contribution to the renewal of Danish comics.

Wartime for the Flour Mill Girls

The second book in a powerful WWI saga

Anna Cliffe

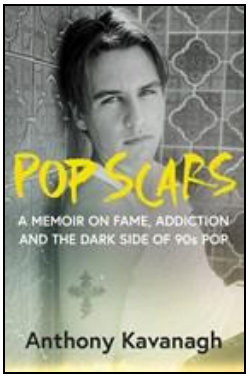

Summary

Crumford, Kent, 1915. With World War I now in full swing and their brothers away fighting, the Graham sisters take on increasingly vital roles at the family smock mill. Daisy and her cousin Olive are both serving as nurses, Holly has become a busy wife and mother, and Cynthia is stretched to her limits helping her husband keep the business afloat. Meanwhile, Violet has turned her attention from baking to the suffragette movement, creating tension among the family.

But amid the turmoil of war, love begins to stir. When Daisy meets a dashing young doctor in Canterbury, a flirtation blossoms—until a shocking revelation threatens the family's reputation. As scandal looms, the Graham girls must pull together or risk losing everything they hold dear.

Contributor Bio

Anna Cliffe is a former journalist who lives in East Kent, close to the sea. From her home, she can clearly see France across the English Channel—a view that often makes her reflect on what it must have been like for the wives, daughters, and sisters left behind when their loved ones went off to fight in the Great War. Being able to see the place where their men were must have felt both comforting and haunting. The Flour Mill Girls trilogy is her love letter to those women, honoring their strength, hope, and quiet resilience.

Pop Scars

A Memoir on Fame, Addiction and the Dark Side of 90s Pop

Anthony Kavanagh

Summary

Pop Scars

Darkly comic — The Guardian
Raw, funny and completely fearless — Heat

Born in Manchester in 1977, Anthony Kavanagh's rise to fame was meteoric. Signing a record deal at just eighteen, he quickly became a household name—scoring Top 10 hits, appearing on countless magazine covers, performing on Top of the Pops, and winning the coveted Smash Hits Male Artist of the Year Award in 1997. But behind the pop-star façade, Kavana was hiding a painful truth: his sexuality, and the toll of keeping it secret in an industry obsessed with image.

What followed was a dark, dangerous spiral into addiction—an illness that shadowed him for years. Pop Scars is told with fearless honesty and biting humor, chronicling the highs of fame and the devastating lows of self-destruction, grief, and recovery. Ultimately, it's a story of survival and sobriety, revealing how one man found the courage to face himself and reclaim his life.

Contributor Bio

Anthony Kavanagh is a writer, singer, and songwriter who rose to fame in the late 1990s with several hit singles, including "I Can Make You Feel Good" and "MFEO." He continues to write and record music and lives in London.

Maggie's War

An Inspiring and Moving WWII Saga from the RNA Award Winning Author of Bobby's War

Shirley Mann

Summary

A heartwarming and uplifting new novel from the RNA award-winning author of Bobby's War.

It's 1942, and as the Second World War rages on, Maggie Carpenter's quiet life as a Manchester schoolteacher is upended when she decides to do her part for the war effort. Joining the army of women working the canals to deliver vital supplies across Britain, Maggie soon discovers that life aboard a narrowboat is far from easy. Sharing a cramped cabin with two strangers, enduring back-breaking labor, and coping with the most basic of comforts, she faces challenges she could never have imagined.

As the women learn to depend on one another, friendships blossom—but so do secrets. Maggie has her own reasons for leaving Manchester behind, while well-to-do Elizabeth is escaping troubles of her own. When a kind but mysterious Army padre comes to their aid, Maggie finds herself unexpectedly drawn to him. Yet as a woman marked by her past, can she truly open her heart and learn to trust again?

Set against the evocative backdrop of wartime Britain, Maggie's War is a moving story of courage, camaraderie, and th...

The Dover Cafe on Trial

The Fifth Book in the Dramatic and Moving WWII Historical Fiction Saga Series (Dover Cafe Series Book 5)

Ginny Bell

Summary

May 1941. After a difficult few months, Castle's Café is finally getting back on its feet. With Marianne's baby due any day, there's much to look forward to—despite the havoc that war continues to wreak on Dover.

Meanwhile, Bert Castle is recovering from the injuries he sustained during an enemy attack. Though still haunted by nightmares, his growing friendship with nurse Dot Calloway offers him a glimmer of hope.

But when Nellie, Bert, and his sister Edie are called to testify at the trial of the woman who shot Nellie's best friend, Gladys, they soon realize that Susan Blake won't be the only one on trial. Old wounds, buried secrets, and divided loyalties threaten to surface once again—testing the strength of the Dover community like never before.

Contributor Bio

Ginny Bell went to school in Dover, never realizing at the time what a fascinating and crucial role the town played in World War Two. She is a freelance editor who lives in London with her three children. The Dover Café on Trial is the fifth book in her brilliant World War II saga series.

Our Dear Daisy

The Perfect Emotional Historical Romance from the Queen of Saga

Rosie Goodwin

Summary

Nuneaton, 1880.

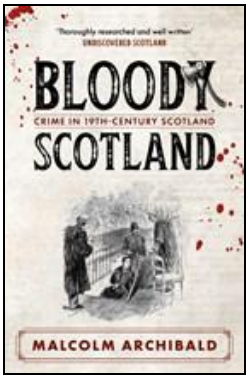

Twenty-year-old Daisy Armstrong lives a happy life with her devoted father, Jed. The two share a close bond—especially after the loss of Daisy's beloved Irish mother and younger brother. But when Jed falls in love with a local widow, everything changes.

With expensive tastes and a love of luxury, the widow and her spoiled son, Gilbert, are quick to show their disdain for Jed and Daisy's modest forge. Daisy works herself to exhaustion trying to keep their busy household running, and the only comfort she finds is in Lewis—the widow's other son, a kind and hardworking young man.

When tragedy strikes, Daisy's life is turned upside down, and she's sent away from home. Heartbroken and alone, she must summon incredible strength to survive. Through hardship and resilience, she begins to rebuild her life—but can she ever find her way back to Nuneaton and the happiness she so desperately deserves?

Bloody Scotland

Crimes that Shaped 19th-Century Scotland

Malcolm Archibald

Summary

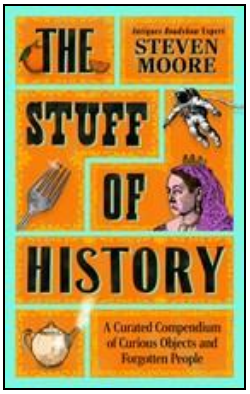

In the nineteenth century, Scotland was celebrated as a land of misty glens, engineering brilliance, and inventive genius—but it was also a place of brutal murders, terrifying riots, child cruelty, bank robberies, and acid attacks.

Men and women alike were capable of shocking violence, and crime could strike anywhere: at home, on the road, or even at sea. Edinburgh, famed for its refined civility, saw poisonings and savage assaults; the dark alleys of industrial Glasgow and Dundee teemed with thieves and muggers; and rural villages concealed their own wild men and vicious women.

Bloody Scotland uncovers both the infamous and forgotten crimes that shook the nation during these turbulent times. Through gripping accounts of killers, victims, and the determined law enforcers who struggled to stem a rising tide of crime, this book reveals the darker side of Scotland’s storied past.

Contributor Bio

Malcolm Archibald is a historian and author who received the 2005 Dundee Book Prize. His book A Sink of Atrocity grew out of his master’s dissertation in history and features original research uncovering the story of crime in Dundee.

The Stuff of History

A Curated Compendium of Curious Objects and Forgotten People

Steven Moore

Summary

Too often history focuses on the tales of kings, or those (often men) who were given the credit for shaping our stories. Yet, what fascinates most are the figures who have passed through the cracks of history, people like:

- The fourteen-year-old boy who lived undetected in the chimneys of Buckingham Palace
- Archie Lee, the re-inventor of Santa Claus
- The women at Playtex who helped put the first man on the moon
- Unknown war hero Tommy Brown, whose extraordinary bravery helped the code breakers of Bletchley

But it's not just forgotten heroes that you'll meet, this compendium also reveals the curious back stories behind everyday objects - the humble fork, the china cup, the real history of tea, and Queen Victoria's underwear - to name but a few. The Stuff of History is a thoughtful, entertaining and carefully curated miscellany of fascinating forgotten histories from Antiques Roadshow stalwart, and popular historian with a huge Instagram following, Steven Moore.

Fury, Fire & Frost

Robert Muchamore

Summary

The ninth thrilling installment in the hit Robin Hood series from the bestselling author of Cherub.

Teen rebel and social media sensation Robin Hood faces his greatest challenge yet. His father—now Sheriff of Nottingham—is working hard to root out police corruption and dismantle the remnants of Guy Gisborne's criminal empire. But the battle for Sherwood is far from over.

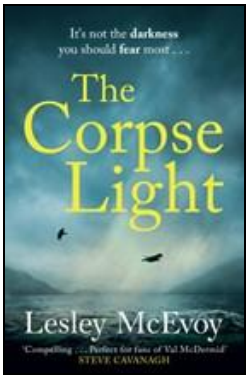

Newly elected national president Marjorie Kovacevic has vowed to round up illegal refugees and migrants and unleash the army to crush the rebels hiding in Sherwood Forest. Before she can send in the troops, however, she must push through a controversial new law—and time is running out.

Meanwhile, Robin's half-brother John is living a life of privilege in the presidential palace, growing increasingly uneasy with his mother's ruthless tactics. As loyalties fracture and tensions rise, the stage is set for an explosive showdown.

War is coming to Sherwood—and this time, no one will escape unscathed.

The Corpse Light

The gripping thriller that will dazzle you with twists

Lesley McEvoy

Summary

A young woman is assaulted and left for dead on the Yorkshire moors. Soon after, a local man is discovered murdered at the edge of a landfill site. The two crimes seem unrelated—until forensic profiler Jo McCready and DCI Callum Ferguson uncover a disturbing link.

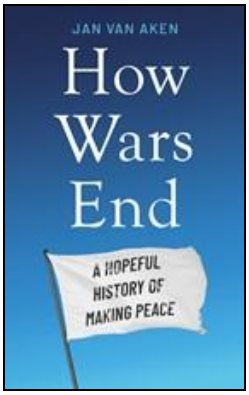

Whispers of eerie lights dancing above the bogs begin to surface, leading some to believe the victims were lured to their deaths. But Jo is keeping a dangerous secret of her own. Notorious gangster and prison inmate Chris McGarry knew the dead man—and he's determined to get revenge. With leverage over Jo, he demands police information in exchange for her safety.

As the investigation closes in, Jo finds herself caught between justice and survival. To solve the case, she must decide whether to follow the light—or risk everything by stepping into the dark.

How Wars End

A Hopeful History of Making Peace

Jan van Aken

Summary

Do boycotts work? Should arms sales be halted? And what about supplying weapons to the so-called "good guys"?

In How Wars End, international conflict expert Jan van Aken explores what it really takes to achieve peace in an age of escalating global violence.

In 2003, van Aken was preparing to travel to Baghdad as a UN weapons inspector to search for biological weapons—until he received a message: the United States was determined to invade Iraq in retaliation for 9/11, inspections or not. The invasion went ahead, and years later the truth emerged—Iraq had no biological weapons at all.

Drawing on decades of firsthand experience as a weapons inspector, conflict analyst, politician, and activist, van Aken examines why wars start, how they spiral out of control, and what can actually bring them to an end. From disinformation campaigns and chemical weapons to sanctions, diplomacy, and citizen-led peace movements, he investigates both the failures and the successes of global conflict resolution.

Blending compelling personal stories with the latest research in peace and conflict studies, How Wars...

Fixed

My Secret Life as a Match Fixer

Moses Swaibu

Summary

In 2012, English football was shaken by the biggest match-fixing operation in modern history.

An Asian betting syndicate had infiltrated the lower leagues, offering players vast sums of money to rig matches and reap millions in illicit profits. Loyal fans, unaware of the manipulation, cheered from the stands as the outcomes had already been decided.

At the heart of this scandal was Moses Swaibu—a talented defender who not only played in the fixed games but went to prison for his role in them. In Fixed, Swaibu becomes the first player to speak openly about his involvement, revealing the inner workings of match manipulation and the methods used by criminal gangs to corrupt the game.

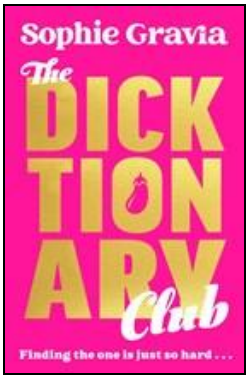

He exposes how young players are targeted, groomed, and coerced through financial temptation and threats of violence. Yet Fixed is not just a story of corruption—it's one of redemption. Swaibu's journey from disgraced player to outspoken campaigner for integrity in sport is both harrowing and deeply inspiring.

A powerful, eye-opening account, Fixed shines a light on the dark side of the beautiful game—and the h...

The Dicktionary Club

A BRAND NEW beach read from the author of HOT GIRL SUMMER

Sophie Gravia

Summary

From the queen of holiday reads, Sophia Gravia comes a laugh-out-loud new novel about friendship, love, and surviving modern dating.

Ella, Katy, and Zola are done with Glasgow's dating scene. Between ghosting, catfishing, and cringe-worthy Tinder messages, finding "the one" has become impossible. But when one of them is dumped by a guy who saw her as nothing more than a quick swipe, the trio decides to fight back.

They create The Dicktionary Club—an exclusive, women-only website dedicated to exposing Scotland's worst serial swipers through brutally honest reviews. Their mission? To help women spot red flags, dodge heartbreakers, and take back control of dating.

But as the site goes viral, so does the chaos in their own love lives. And when one of them starts falling for a guy she's been warning others to avoid, things get messier—and far more complicated—than they ever imagined.

Packed with friendship, flirting, and full-on mayhem, The Dicktionary Club is the ultimate feel-good read from the bestselling author of A Glasgow Kiss and Hot Girl Summer.

Contributor Bio

Sophie Gravia grew up in a town just outside Glasgow and has always had a deep love of language and storytelling. From a young age, she wrote funny stories and poems for friends and family, later studying performing arts and excelling in creative writing. Now working full-time as a nurse in a busy city hospital, Sophie rediscovered her passion for writing during the 2020 pandemic, inspired by readers of her witty blog Sex in the Glasgow City. Her debut novel, A Glasgow Kiss, became an instant word-of-mouth sensation, reaching number one in the erotic fiction charts.

Being an Oak

Life as a tree

Laurent Tillon, Jessica Moore

Summary

The international bestseller

The enchanting biography of an ancient tree.

For more than two centuries, as rulers have risen and fallen and wars have raged, one majestic oak has quietly lived out an extraordinary life. From its germination in 1780 to its adaptation to a changing climate, its story has unfolded far from human eyes—until the day a young man named Laurent Tillon discovered it and formed a lifelong bond.

In this captivating work, biodiversity expert Laurent Tillon tells the story of the tree he calls Quercus. With lyrical insight, he reveals the intricate web of life surrounding it—from symbiotic relationships between plants and animals to hidden struggles among insects, birds, and fungi.

A work of ecology unlike any other, Being an Oak invites readers to see the world through the eyes of a tree—and to rediscover the wonder of the living connections that sustain our planet.

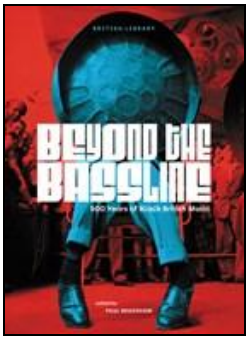

Translated by award-winning translator Jessica Moore.

Praise for Being an Oak:

Beyond the Bassline

500 Years of Black British Music

Paul Bradshaw

Summary

The five-hundred-year story of Black British music is a journey from the court of King Henry VIII to the "Ends" of South London, from Africa to the Caribbean to the UK and back again. It spans subterranean speakeasys and church halls, royal command performances and sold-out stadiums, tracing how Black artists went from outsiders to shaping Britain's musical identity and dominating the charts.

It is a story of resilience that grapples with the slave trade, the prejudice of unwelcoming institutions and the bias of ignorance while ultimately celebrating the creativity and perseverance of the pioneers and innovators of today's digital age.

Published alongside the major British Library exhibition, Beyond the Bassline is a landmark volume of essays, features and interviews which traces a new timeline underpinned by the Black artists and musicians who, over centuries, have shaped Britain's unique and globally significant musical culture. Illustrating this vibrant history —which traverses musical genres from classical, gospel and jazz through to reggae, jungle and Afrobeats—are more than three...

Return of the Ancients

Unruly Tales of the Mythological Weird

Katy Soar

Summary

From the sun-seared shores of the Aegean to the misty bogs of ancient England, the dark tendrils of mythological gods and monsters have remained embedded in the minds of those who once believed, and throughout the past two centuries have inspired a haunting sub-genre of uncanny fiction.

Collecting strange tales of legendary Greco-Roman figures, pagan deities of Old Britain and godlings and abominations from the world's pantheons returning to wreak havoc on modern civilization, this new anthology presents a thrilling array of weird fiction touched by the otherworldly and eternal mystique of myth, lore and legends.

Katy Soar's follow-up to one of the most popular series titles, Circles of Stone (2023), this anthology features classic stories from writers such as Algernon Blackwood and Arthur Machen alongside the rare and unusual from the pulps and magazines of the British Library's collections.

Contributor Bio

Katy Soar is a Senior Lecturer in Classical Archaeology at the University of Winchester. Her research interests involve Greek archaeology, the resonance of archaeology in culture and the history and reception of archaeology itself. She is a frequent contributor to Hellebore magazine, and co-edited the anthology Strange Relics, published by Handheld Press in 2022.

The Lost Stradivarius

J. Meade Falkner, Mike Ashley

Summary

The discovery of a beautiful Stradivarius violin in a hidden cupboard at Magdalen Hall, Oxford, appears to be a stroke of good fortune for music student John Maltravers. But there is something sinister in the violin's history—something corrupt that threatens to re-emerge as the bewitched Maltravers plays and replays a devilish tune he is powerless to resist.

First published in 1895, The Lost Stradivarius has garnered a revered status as a true classic of strange fiction, described by the famed critic E. F. Bleiler as the novel M. R. James might have written, had he written novels.

Contributor Bio

John Meade Falkner (1858–1932) was an English novelist, poet and businessman, best known for his legendary smuggling novel Moonfleet (1898), one of only three novels he wrote alongside The Lost Stradivarius and The Nebuly Coat. A polymath with fascination for the arcane and antiquarian, Falkner became a prominent rare book collector. Alongside his fiction, he authored a number of regional guidebooks, including a Handbook for Travellers in Oxfordshire (1894).

The Woman in the Hall

G.B. Stern

Summary

She didn't want men to be in love with her. She wanted power and a dangerous gamble and the fun of winning and putting herself over as a sweet savior, till at last she came to believe it herself.

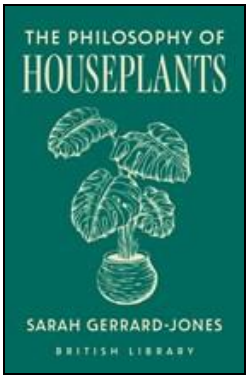

Lorna Blake is a woman able to create her own reality—a pathological liar, narcissist conman, and devoted single mother to two daughters, Jay and Molly.

When her eldest needs lifesaving treatment that they cannot afford, Lorna takes up the risky but thrilling activity of taking her young daughters to the halls of wealthy strangers to beg, with tales of husbands dead, deserted, and insane. But as her daughters grow up struggling to differentiate between fact and fiction, it ultimately becomes harder for them to cleave themselves from their mother's web of lies and justifications.

Acted out in the hallways of London mansions and across several continents, The Woman in the Hall is part psychological drama, part cat-and-mouse chase, as well as a darkly comic portrait of how the figure of a single mother could wring pity from 1930s society.

Contributor Bio

G. B. Stern (18901973) was a prolific writer best known in her lifetime for her series The Matriarch: a lightly autobiographical saga of two cosmopolitan Jewish families, struggling through the aftermath of the 1928 financial crash. She was also a playwright and saw several of her books adapted onto screen, including The Woman in the Hall in 1947.

The Philosophy of Houseplants

Sarah Gerrard-Jones

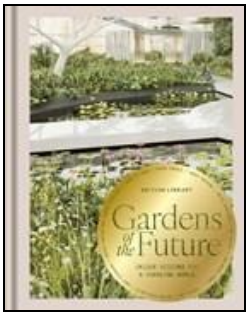

Summary

The desire to cultivate indoor plants is shared by all of us. Houseplants are more than mere decoration: they improve our moods, can be used to treat ailments, and reflect our ever-evolving relationship with nature. Sarah Gerrard-Jones masterfully explores the psychology behind our attraction to houseplants, and the benefits of keeping plants in our homes, from the healing qualities of biophilic design to the philosophy of care.

Practical sections provide fundamental advice on looking after plants and nurturing them back to life, and she also advises on buying plants and the perils of mass production, so that we can all acquire and grow houseplants sustainably.

Contributor Bio

Sarah Gerrard-Jones is a presenter on ITV's Alan Titchmarsh's Gardening Club and a contributor to BBC Gardeners' World. Her expertise has been regularly featured in publications such as BBC Gardeners' World Magazine, The Sunday Times, Gardens Illustrated, and Livingetc. Sarah is also the founder of the Plant Rescue Box, an RHS-backed initiative aimed at reducing the number of plants discarded by retailers.

Gardens of the Future

Unique Visions for a Changing World

Ruth Chivers, Olivia Laing

Summary

Unique Visions for a Changing World

Accompanies Unearthed, the British Library Exhibition edited by Ruth Chivers, with a foreword by Olivia Laing.

Ten award-winning designers bring their unique vision to a series of garden types—both public and private—to inspire, motivate and provoke. Given a brief that extends to a maximum of 50 years into the future, their original designs mitigate the effects of a changing climate, encourage biodiversity, and address issues of legacy and land ownership, changing societal needs and individual wellbeing. They provide hope in a time of uncertainty and emphasize the power of gardening to nurture nature and adapt to change.

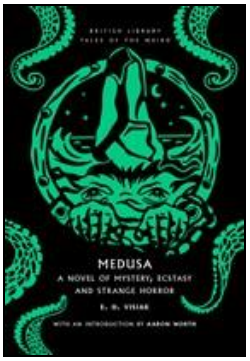

Interspersed between these original designs are features linking the garden types to themes and items in the British Library exhibition, Unearthed: The Power of Gardening, which draws on the Library's rich botanical and horticultural collections.

Medusa

A Novel of Mystery, Ecstasy and Strange Horror

E.H. Visiak, Aaron Worth

Summary

...a little on one side of me, I spied something that moved along upon the verge with a sliding writhing motion, seeming like the extremity of a sort of trunk; like the body of a huge serpent… Drawn by horror's fearful traction, I moved to the verge of the parapet and looked down…

Somewhere around the early eighteenth century, young Will Harvell joins a sea voyage in search of a mariner's missing son which gradually finds itself drawn towards an ancient and indescribable terror of the ocean in E. H. Visiak's classic novel, which returns to print featuring a new introduction by horror expert Aaron Worth.

Combining elements of Conradian sea adventure with Atlantean mythology and a uniquely unsettling brand of metaphysical, sublime horror—all delivered in Visiak's high literary style—Medusa remains a distinctive, influential and still exciting work in the history of early twentieth-century weird writing.

Contributor Bio

E. H. Visiak was the pen name of the British writer and critic Edward Harold Physick, an expert on Milton and celebrated Edwardian poet best known for Buccaneer Ballads (1910) and a handful of strange short stories. His novel Medusa (1929) is heralded as an important contribution to weird fiction.

Phantoms of Kernow

Classic Tales of Haunted Cornwall

Joan Passey

Summary

The phantoms are stirring once more.

"Onward came the ill-omened craft. It passed through the breakers on the shore, glided up over the sands, and steadily pursued its course over the dry land, as if it had been water."

Kernow—as Cornwall is known in the Cornish tongue—is a land haunted by a long heritage of ghost tales and uncanny folklore, from its wicked wreckers and the spectral death-ship to mine-dwelling fiends, blood-sucking abominations and the revenant spirits of a druidic past. And the phantoms are stirring once more.

In her new selection of sixteen stories hailing from 1865 to 1952, Joan Passey charts a course through this unique literary landscape, including timeless retellings of ghostly lore, rare Victorian chillers and weird nightmares by key figures of Cornish literature such as Sabine Baring-Gould, Arthur Quiller-Couch and Daphne du Maurier.

Contributor Bio

Joan Passey is a lecturer at the University of Bristol specializing in transhistorical Gothic fiction. She is the author of Cornish Gothic (2023, University of Wales Press) and editor of the Tales of the Weird collections Cornish Horrors (2021) and (with Jimmy Packham and Emily Alder) Our Haunted Shores (2022).

Around the World in 80 Schools

A Global Journey to Discover What Makes a Good School

Adam Seldon

Summary

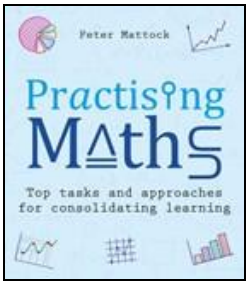

In an increasingly unstable world, schools have the power to shape future generations. Yet in the UK and the US, they are falling short. Young people are not adequately prepared to face the range of challenges hurtling towards them—whether in technology, wellbeing or the environment.

Statistics reveal British and American education systems in crisis: low student attendance, teacher recruitment and retention issues, student behavior problems, declining teacher morale, wellbeing problems and more.

Around the World in 80 Schools identifies schools that understand education as more than academic outcomes or a transaction that allows students to move up the next rung on the academic ladder. Unlike other books that focus narrowly on high-performing systems influenced by OECD PISA results—such as Finland, China, or Japan (which assess a narrow aspect of educational output based on what is testable, rather than what is of most value)—this book explores schools across every continent. It documents regions less commonly associated with educational excellence, including Africa, Central Asia, Aust...

Adam Seldon is a secondary school teacher, former Head of Year and former Head of History at King Solomon Academy in London. Having grown up in a family of educators—his parents, Joanna and Anthony Seldon were both teachers—schools have been a constant part of his life. After nearly a decade in the classroom, Adam came to realize that British education could benefit from a broader, more global perspective.

Practising Maths

Top tasks and approaches for consolidating learning

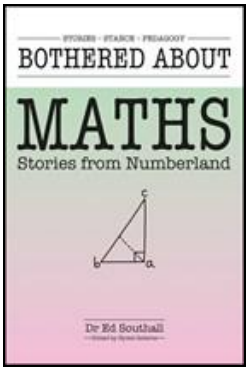

Peter Mattock

Summary

The first aim of many maths curricula is for pupils to become fluent in the fundamentals of mathematics, including through varied and frequent practise with increasingly complex problems over time, so that pupils develop conceptual understanding and the ability to recall and apply knowledge rapidly and accurately. In " Conceptual Maths" , Peter Mattock wrote about the importance of pupils learning about mathematical concepts, rather than just " doing" maths. This isn' t to say that doing maths is not important, simply that if all pupils learn through a mathematical education is to " do" stuff – carry out calculations and follow procedures – then this isn' t much of a mathematical education. To receive a true mathematical education, pupils need to learn both ' about' maths and ' to do' maths. Practice is crucial, however, regardless of whether pupils are learning ' about' or ' to do' maths. There is a widely believed and persistent myth that it takes 10,000 hours of practise to master a particular skill. Of course, what the people quoting the 10,000 hours rule often fail to mention is...

Bothered About Maths

Stories from numberland

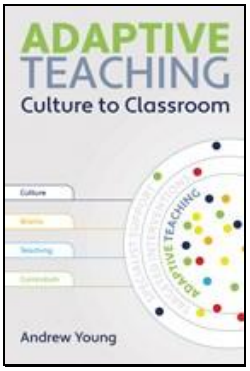

Hywel Roberts, Ed Southall

Summary

The word ' math' can conjure up a lot of negative feelings for many people. Memories of frustration, anxiety, inadequacy or a sense of helplessness are unfortunately not uncommon. It doesn' t have to be this way! The math classroom can be a warm, inviting and safe space to share intrigue, ideas and observations. A place where making math make sense for everyone is front and centre, and students are inspired to openly volunteer their thinking about problems, offering each other ideas of how to solve them. Bothered About Maths is the first spin-off from the bestselling Botheredness book by Hywel Roberts. Botheredness is about regaining professional integrity as a teacher – going the extra mile for the benefit of students and, more importantly, for teachers themselves. Essentially, botheredness is a catch-all term for great classroom culture, teaching, optimism, storytelling, warmth, and contextual learning.

Contributor Bio

Hywel Roberts is a teacher, writer and speaker. He wrote Botheredness: stories, stance and pedagogy in 2023. Bothered About Maths is a companion book to that bestseller. He needed Ed to write it as he isn' t good with numbers. As well as education, Hywel loves film and music. He also part owns a brewery with some pals. www.botheredness.co.uk Ed Southall has worked in maths education for over 20 years in local, national and international roles across all age ranges. He is the author of a number of maths education and teacher training books, and can be found running up hills in Yorkshire most weekends, preparing for another brutal marathon some place mad.

Adaptive Teaching

Culture to Classroom

Andrew Young

Summary

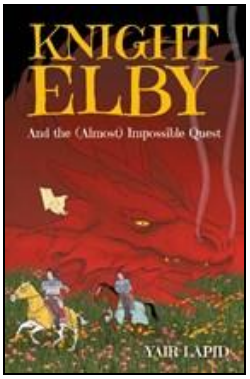

Adaptive Teaching offers a grounded, compassionate guide to inclusive education. Based on a highly successful CPD program, it is a thoughtful guide for teachers and school leaders who wish to learn more about special educational needs and/or disabilities (SEND) and gain sensible advice on how to teach inclusively by working smarter, not harder.

By focusing less on labels and more on cognitive load, executive functioning and working memory and communication, the reader is equipped to cater for the needs of pupils with SEND in much more productive and sensitive ways. Rather than seeing the children as the barrier, this approach encourages teachers to understand the barriers that they are faced with, and this shift in perspective makes adaptive teaching feel achievable and transformative. Structured around four key areas (culture, brains, teaching and curriculum), this book connects theory to practice with clarity and purpose.

Adaptive teaching is not about adding more to a teacher's workload. It's about refining what we already know works, using pragmatic teaching and learning strategies...

Knight Elby

And the (Almost) Impossible Quest

Yair Lapid

Summary

A hilarious adventure with a thrilling dragon-sized quest, featuring Knight Elby and his friends, with short chapters ideal for reading aloud at bedtime.

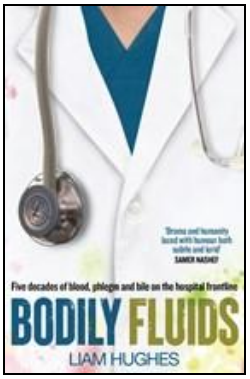

Meet Elby, a young and hopelessly heroic knight whose valiant heart is matched only by his knack for losing his sword at the worst possible moments. With the help of his friends, Elby is determined to rescue the enchanting Princess Eleni from the clutches of the menacing Queen Concenta Cylmus.

Knight Elby the Brave is a laugh-out-loud, edge-of-your-seat tale packed with thrilling scrapes, bizarre twists, and the kind of mental gymnastics that might make your head spin. From narrow escapes in crumbling castles to outsmarting riddling trolls, Elby's quest is a whirlwind of action and hilarity. But beneath the sword-swiping (when he can find it) and dragon-ducking, Elby's story reveals the true courage of friendship, determination, and believing in yourself—even when you trip over your own armor.

This uproariously funny, action-packed rollercoaster is a must-read for adventure lovers, laugh-seekers, and anyone who's ever felt like they've...

Bodily Fluids

Five Decades of Blood, Phlegm and Bile on the Hospital Frontline

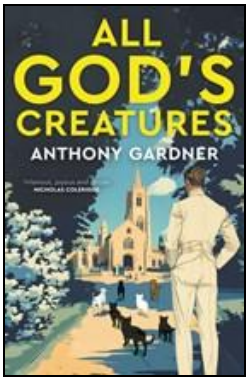

Liam Hughes

Summary

'Drama and humanity laced with humour both subtle and lurid' Samer Nashef, author of The Naked Surgeon The Greek physician Hippocrates thought the human body contained blood, phlegm and bile. In the right balance, these fluids produced health; if not, pain. Liam Hughes is very familiar with bodily fluids. He spent nearly five decades on the NHS frontline, ultimately as a senior cardiologist. Extending the Hippocratic list to include sweat, tears, urine, solid waste and spunk (fortitude), he uses this framework to tell his own story of the highs and lows of hospital life. The terminal patient begging for a 'Brompton cocktail' to end his suffering; the loathsome on-call surgeon who impales himself on a shooting-stick; the selfless consultant who rams a police car to save a patient's life: all shape Hughes' strong sense of what the medical calling should and should not entail. In a lively mixture of the lewd, the gross-out and the deeply humane, he conveys the pain, pleasure and pathos of hospital life. By turns moving, instructive, hilarious and outrageous, Bodily Fluids also expresses...

Contributor Bio

Liam Hughes was accepted to Cambridge to study the arts, but on a whim decided he wanted to become a doctor. Despite not having a single science A-level, he gave up his coveted Oxbridge place for a chance at medical school. Over more than forty years in the NHS, he rose to become a senior cardiologist in East Anglia and helped raise more than £2 million to develop cardiac services—including by rowing the Atlantic in world-record time. Now retired, he lives in France.

All God's Creatures

Anthony Gardner

Summary

Mild-mannered editor Ben Fairweather is horrified when his genteel religious magazine is taken over by a fanatical movement that believes animals are closer to God than humans—and should receive Holy Communion.

As this bizarre theology sparks a national revival, Ben is swiftly canceled as a pet-phobic bigot and forced to start over as a nightclub pianist.

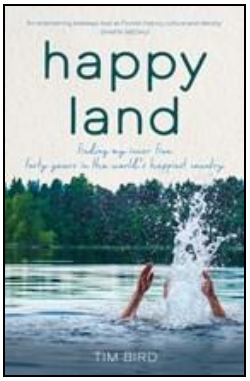

There he meets journalist Anita Scott, who's determined to expose Russian oligarch Oleg Ogorodnikov—recently elevated to the House of Lords—for what she believes is cultural vandalism. But Ogorodnikov's real scheme is far more sinister: a plot to seize control of London's financial system.

Unaware that his own fingerprints are all over the theological unrest, Ben and Anita are drawn into a high-stakes world of espionage, art forgery, artificial intelligence, and murder.

Anthony Gardner's ingenious caper blends madcap intrigue with sharp satire, capturing the absurdities of modern life—religious extremism, power-hungry elites, and the rise of the machines—in a story that is both thrilling and darkly funny.

Contributor Bio

Anthony Gardner is an Irish author and journalist based in London. He was the founding editor of the Royal Society of Literature Review, has written for a wide variety of publications including The Sunday Times Magazine, the Irish Times and The Economist, and is the former deputy editor of Harpers & Queen. He is the author of two previous novels—The Rivers of Heaven and Fox—and two collections of poetry, The Pool and Other Poems and The Moss in Lanthwaite Wood, which was longlisted for the Rathbones Folio Prize.

Happy Land

Forty years in 'the world's happiest country'

Tim Bird

Summary

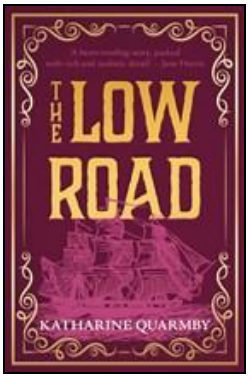

Tim Bird arrived in Finland by accident in the early Eighties. More than forty years on, he is still there. He has watched the transformation of his adopted homeland from semi-detached member of the Soviet bloc to modern European nation that tops the rankings, year after year, as 'the happiest country in the world'.

Does it deserve that status? Do the Finns, known for their hard drinking, their sisu (grit) and their passion for heavy metal, recognize that description of themselves? Telling the story of his own path to Finnish citizenship while also delving into the writings of a 19th-century British traveler, Bird interrogates the claim made on Finland's behalf.

In this clear-sighted – but never cynical – sideways look at the land of the sauna, the Northern Lights and the Moomins, Bird spotlights the Nordic nation's distinctive culture, landscape and language. As he helps us understand the Finnish notion of contentment, are there life-lessons for the rest of us?

Contributor Bio

Tim Bird is a writer, editor and award-winning photographer with dual British and Finnish citizenship. His published works include A Baltic Odyssey, Suomenlinna – Islands of Light, and Living in Finland (co-authored with Ingalil Snitt). He contributes to various publications such as The Independent, the Daily Telegraph, Finnair's Blue Wings and Hidden Compass. He lives in Helsinki.

The Low Road

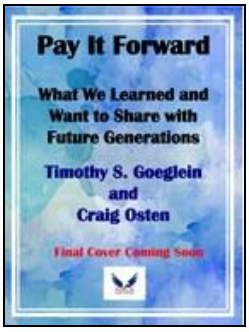

Katharine Quarmby

Summary

'A heart-rending story' Jane Harris SHORTLISTED: New Angle Prize Norfolk, 1813. In the quiet Waveney Valley, the body of a woman – Mary Tyrell – is staked through the heart after her death by suicide. She had been under arrest for the suspected murder of her newborn child. Mary leaves behind a young daughter, Hannah, who is sent away to the Refuge for the Destitute in London, where she will be trained for a life of domestic service. At the refuge, Hannah meets Annie Simpkins, a fellow resident, and together they forge a friendship that deepens into passionate love. But the strength of their bond is put to the test when the girls are caught stealing from the refuge's laundry, and they are sentenced to transportation to Botany Bay, setting them on separate paths that may never cross again. Drawing on real events, The Low Road is a gripping, atmospheric tale that brings to life the forgotten voices of the past – convicts, servants, the rural poor – as well as a moving evocation of love that blossomed in the face of prejudice and ill-fortune.

Contributor Bio

Katharine Quarmby has had a long career as an investigative journalist in the print and broadcast media. Her reporting on Rwanda (alongside Fergal Keane) won the One World Trust Award for Best News Film of 1999, and in 2011 she was shortlisted for the Paul Foot Award for her work on disability hate crime. Her non-fiction books include No Place to Call Home, about the lives of Travellers, and Scapegoat, based on her work on disability hate crime. She has also written several books for children. The Low Road is her first novel.

Field Notes

Coming-of-Age Comics and Tales of Rural Resistance

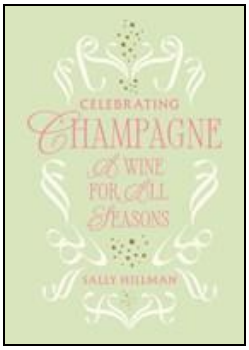

Layne Ilderton, Celso Ricardo

Summary

Field Notes: Coming-of-Age Comics and Tales of Rural Resistance features short stories inspired by real rural teens from around the U.S. Each story takes place in a different rural setting spanning from the Appalachian mountains to the deserts of the Southwest. Each story features rural teens who have one thing in common: they have parts of their identity which may not fit the stereotype of a rural person. Each story dives into new characters' lives, providing vivid details as to how their rural place shapes their decision-making, their relationships, and their identities. The book's stories feel authentic because they are – they are inspired by real events and real people. This YA short story collection will have immense reach among younger teens today, starting as young as middle school. FIELD NOTES will bring a lighthearted way to understand and cope with difficult situations many high schoolers— especially those who are queer and/or BIPOC — may face. However, this reach isn't limited as the multi-chapter anthology has a diverse cast. Everyone may feel represented in this antholog...

Summary

The concept is simple: each number represents a letter, so, starting with the solved letters, use your logic and vocabulary to reveal more letters, form words, and then crack the code! The most difficult puzzles for top solvers contain no solved letters so you need to employ all your logical strategies to crack those.

The Codeword series is so popular because you don’t need any prior knowledge, unlike a crossword. You can just pick up a pen and get puzzling. It steadily increases your vocabulary, as the difficulty slowly grows as you progress through the book, and even though you’ll be working your brain, it’s the perfect way to unwind.

Solo

Neil Clark

Summary

It's fun to be part of a busy, whizzy crowd. Sometimes, when things are noisy, do you long for the space and quiet that lets your imagination flow? Get ready for Solo to take you on an adventure where we discover being alone is not the same as being lonely, and you should not judge an introvert by her cover!

We can guess Solo is an introvert through her name, but you can see from her bright yellow coat that she's also strong and independent. She isn't lonely: she enjoys being alone. Jesse is a classic extrovert who immediately asks Solo to play, but he also has emotional intelligence, working out quickly that Solo is overwhelmed. When he finds her again, they create a special place where the two are friends who perfectly compliment each other.

Clark uses colour and shape to perfectly express the complexity of each character and show us the story instead of just telling.

History of the World in Maps

The Ultimate Cartographic Exploration of Our Past

Philip Parker, Collins Books

Summary

From Babylonian tablets to digital mapping, the world has evolved rapidly, along with the ways in which we understand and depict it. In this time, cartography has not only kept pace with these changes, but has often driven them. In this fully revised and updated edition spanning more than 4,500 years, each individual map provides a unique visual insight into our past.

This beautifully designed collection includes many famous examples of cartography, along with some that deserve to be better known. Witness countries and cities come and go, empires rise and fall, significant geographical discoveries, and key historical events unfold.

Key maps shown include:

- Babylonian clay tablets, c.2300 BC and c.600 BC – some of the world's oldest surviving maps
- Hereford Mappa Mundi, c. 1290 – medieval map of the world
- Aztec City Maps 1524/1541 – precious images of the Aztec capital and their migrations before the Spanish came
- Cook Chart of New Zealand, 1770 – the first complete chart of the coastline showing that New Zealand was made up of two islands
- Selden Map of China, c. 1620 – Ming map of China and So...

Pain is a Foreign Country

An Anthology of Recent Romanian Poetry

Paul Doru Mugur

Summary

This anthology captures the bold evolution of contemporary Romanian poetry, where deeply rooted local sensibilities meet a global literary vision. With original translations from Romania, it offers English-speaking readers a rare opportunity to experience a new wave of cosmopolitan, boundary-crossing verse.

After joining the EU, over the last decade, as a consequence of both the free cultural exchange with Western Europe and with the world in general, facilitated by the new technologies and the social media, Romanian poetry evolved significantly, fusing a sort of emerging "global poetics" with its strong local neo-realistic cosmopolitan sensitivity.

The poems included in the anthology by highly-accomplished younger Romanian poets bear witness to a poetics rooted in Romania but with branches spreading all across Europe and the Americas. The poems included in the book are all original translations from Romanian and have been specially prepared for this anthology.

This is an extraordinary collection that will appeal to a many types of poetry readers.

Contributor Bio

Smile! Vol. 4

Mitei Hattori

Summary

"Yuushi is thought to have been consumed whole by the cultish religion, yet...his eyes haven't lost the light within. As it turns out, his old friend, Uozumi, and the police are working from the outside of SHS, while Yuushi works from the inside, in order to take the sinister organization out by the root. The only problem is the cult's personal silencer, Imanami, has also begun to make his move! For every mystery unraveled, a new one seems to appear, but the truth behind the fanatical organization is starting to emerge..."

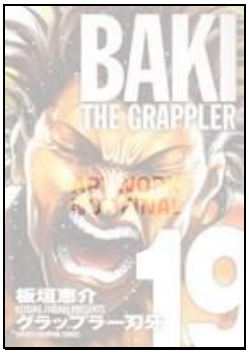

Contributor Bio

MITEI HATTORI made his debut in 2021 with breakout hit Smile!, which was serialized in Weekly Manga Goraku (Nihon Bungeisha). The series quickly gained attention for its dark psychological themes and bold visual style, establishing Hattori as a striking new voice in the seinen manga scene. Driven by his deep discomfort with forced smiles and inspired by his conversations with people raised in religious cults, Hattori explores themes of faith, control, and the societal pressure to appear happy.

Me and the Alien Mumu Vol. 3

Hiroki Miyashita

Summary

An alien named Mumu is a survivor of a civil war that saw the destruction of his planet's scientists, leaving only its fools alive. In an attempt to understand the advanced technology his species left behind, he's infiltrated Earth, a planet with a lower level of civilization, to study their so-called ""home appliances,"" which contain facets of all kinds of technological knowledge. However, a group of Mumu's fellow cat-shaped invaders from a radical faction arrives in a spaceship to conquer Earth! Will Sakurako, a regular college student and Mumu's owner, be able to warn her planet about the impending crisis?

MAGICA Vol. 2

Yuzuko Hoshimi

Summary

Each and every being has a wondrous story to tell, if you'll listen. Long, long ago, there once lived a beautiful mage. The mage had but only one spell: the strange ability to turn the twinkle of life into gems. It was a powerless magic that couldn't save anyone, but the mage believed in it, witnessing all the comedies and all the tragedies across the universe and weaving them into tales with wondrous luster. And so, the curtain rises on a heart-stirring fairy-tale fantasy!

Contributor Bio

I'm Yuzuko Hoshimi, an apprentice witch. Through my work, I strive to bring you a moment of enchanting magic. Whether it's a picture book, a fairy tale, a manga, or a novel, you may find the boundaries in my creations a little hard to define. But that’ s exactly how it should be. After all, boundaries don't truly exist to begin with, so why not leap over them? And surely, something from this hazy little world will reach your heart. I call that magic.

MITEI HATTORI made his debut in 2021 with breakout hit Smile!, which was serialized in Weekly Manga Goraku (Nihon Bungeisha). The series quickly gained attention for its dark psychological themes and bold visual style, establishing Hattori as a striking new voice in the seinen manga scene. Driven by his deep discomfort with forced smiles and inspired by his conversations with people raised in religious cults, Hattori explores themes of faith, control, and the societal pressure to appear happy.

Johnny Cooper's Field

Don J Snyder

Summary

From the author of the BBC Radio 2 Book Club Recommended Read, The Tin Nose Shop.

On Christmas Eve, homeless Johnny saves the life of a beautiful young stranger. Against all odds, the two fall deeply in love. But Elizabeth's wealthy father is horrified by the relationship and uses his power to tear them apart. When Elizabeth discovers she is pregnant, the child is taken away and given up—without Johnny ever knowing his son exists.

Twenty years later, that lost child, searching for answers about his identity and past, is unknowingly drawn back into his parents' unfinished love story. As he uncovers the truth, he also finds love of his own, proving that some connections can survive even the deepest separations.

A moving and emotional novel about love, class, sacrifice, and the enduring bonds between parents and children, this is a story of hope, second chances, and the ties that refuse to be broken.

Contributor Bio

Don J Snyder was born and raised in America. He is the author of ten novels and non-fiction books, and wrote the movie Fallen Angel that starred Gary Sinise and Joely Richardson. He now lives in Scotland where he established the world's only caddie training school for soldiers, to try to help restore servicemen from around the world who are suffering from PTSD.

Movie Rogue

William Coles

Summary

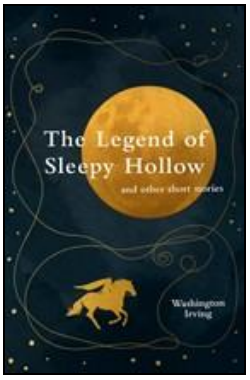

"I haven't read a funnier book all year." —The Wall Street Journal

The world's hottest movie couple, Tom Cruise and Nicole Kidman, are enduring a year-long film shoot with the world's most pernickety film director, Stanley Kubrick. Unfortunately the super-secret film set of Eyes Wide Shut has been invaded by Kubrick's worst nightmare: Kim the tabloid reporter, complete with his trusty spy-pen camera.

Based on a true story, Movie Rogue details how in 1996 a Sun reporter became an extra on one of the most searingly graphic scenes in movie history. Along the way – it's said – he also befriended both Tom Cruise and Kubrick. But this reporter is so much more than a mere scum-sucking tabloid hack. He is also a matchmaker, and with a wave of Kim's pixie dust, even the most far-fetched couples can fall in love.

The Legend of Sleepy Hollow

and Other Short Stories

Washington Irving

Summary

Considered one of America's earliest ghost stories, this classic 1820 short story follows a superstitious schoolteacher competing with a rugged local farmer for the hand of a young woman. One fateful night, his rivalry and fears culminate in a terrifying encounter with the ghostly Headless Horseman.

Inspired by European folk tales he encountered during his travels, Washington Irving wove themes of superstition, ambition, and greed into a story that would become a cornerstone of American Gothic literature. For more than 200 years, The Legend of Sleepy Hollow has captured readers' imaginations, cementing its place in literary history and popular culture.

Today, the legend lives on—especially each Halloween, when the Headless Horseman is said to ride once more through the village of Sleepy Hollow.

Contributor Bio

Washington Irving, born in New York in 1783, became one of the most celebrated American writers of the nineteenth century. He began writing essays at the age of 19 and went on to author some of the nation's most enduring stories, including Rip Van Winkle and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow. In addition to his fiction, he wrote an extensive biography of George Washington. Irving passed away in 1859, shortly after the publication of Life of George Washington.

Carmilla

Joseph Sheridan Le Fanu

Summary

"You will think me cruel, very selfish, but love is always selfish; the more ardent the more selfish."

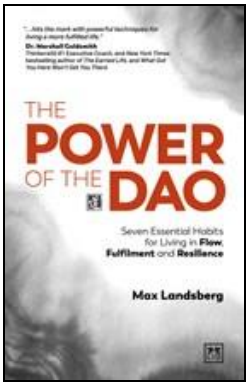

Often regarded as the first vampire novel, this late-19th-century Gothic romance is set in Austria and follows a young woman living in isolation whose quiet existence is disrupted by the arrival of a beautiful and unsettling guest. Charged with sensuality and psychological tension, Carmilla blurs the boundary between love and death, desire and danger.

Written during the Victorian era, the novel reflects contemporary anxieties around social change, including the rise of the middle class and the pressures of industrial and social reform. Its themes of forbidden intimacy and emotional obsession challenged conventions of its time and continue to resonate today.

Carmilla was inspired in part by John Keats's poem "La Belle Dame sans Merci," which tells of a mysterious woman who seduces men into passion and despair. The novella is best known as a major influence on Bram Stoker's Dracula, establishing many of the tropes that would come to define vampire fiction.

Contributor Bio

Joseph Sheridan Le Fanu was born in Dublin in 1814 and died in 1873. He went to Trinity College and became a lawyer in 1839 before pursuing journalism. Le Fanu was born into a family of playwrights and authors. He wrote The Purcell Papers as a student and became known for gothic fiction. Le Fanu published 14 novels throughout the mid- and became the publisher and owner of multiple newspapers and magazines. His best-known work, Carmilla, was published in 1872 and popularized vampires.

The Power of the Dao

Seven essential habits for living in flow, fulfilment and resilience

Max Landsberg

Summary

"Insightful and engaging! … this book hits the mark with powerful techniques for living a more fulfilled life."

— Dr. Marshall Goldsmith, Thinkers50 #1 Executive Coach, and New York Times bestselling author of The Earned Life and What Got You Here Won't Get You There

What if you could live your life in flow … all the time?

Feel "in the zone," "on your game," or even "on fire." Experience complete focus, deep involvement, and genuine enjoyment in whatever you are doing. Gain energy from your activities don't run out of it. Feel calm, almost ecstatic.

Most of us have touched this state briefly. But what if you could enter it not just for a fleeting moment, nor a single day — but sustain it as a way of life?

In this book, you will discover:

- Seven Daoist-inspired habits for creating flow and resilience every day.
- Practical exercises and reflections to help you apply these principles at work and at home.
- A clear guide to moving with life's challenges rather than against them — with more calm, energy, and fulfilment.

The Art in Marketing

Why we need less science and more art in marketing

Anthony Tasgal

Summary

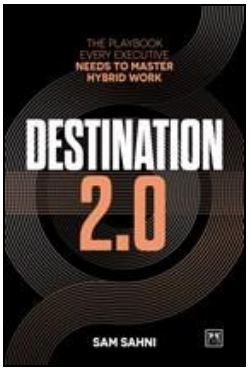

This timely book challenges the prevailing notion that marketing is—or should be—a purely scientific discipline. Drawing inspiration from Germaine Greer's claim that "marketing is the art form of the twentieth century," Tasgal argues that the field's relentless pursuit of scientific rigor—particularly its imitation of physics through universal laws, reductionism, and "arithmocracy"—has suppressed marketing's artistic and cultural essence.

Tasgal delivers a powerful call to action for marketers and communicators, urging them to reclaim creativity from the margins and restore it to the heart of their work. He asks why creativity was ever isolated and reserved for a select group of "creatives," rather than recognized as fundamental to all marketing endeavors.

The Art in Marketing Book offers a compelling vision for bridging the false divide between science and art in marketing, showing how a shift toward an art-centered approach can unlock greater distinctiveness, creativity, and meaningful insight for brands in today's complex marketplace.

Anthony Tasgal spent 20 years as an ad agency planner before setting up POV, a strategic brand consultancy. He is a Training Director for the CIM and a Visiting Lecturer at Buckingham, Nottingham Trent and Beijing Normal Universities.

Harmony in Differences

An introduction to politeness in intercultural communication with China

Catherine Xiang

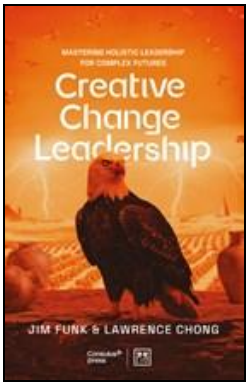

Summary

This is the second title in the "Navigating China" series of books written by leading experts in the field of international business and cross-cultural communications. The book examines the importance of "politeness" when communicating and doing business in China, and what you should and should not do to make your experience a success.

In the business world, politeness is more than just social etiquette – it's a cornerstone of success. Relationships are at the heart of business, and politeness acts as the glue that keeps those relationships strong. However, the way politeness is expressed can vary significantly across cultures, particularly for foreigners doing business in China. Politeness in China is deeply rooted in respect for hierarchy, relationships and cultural traditions. A simple business request in the West might be direct and efficient, but in China, it often requires more careful consideration of tone, humility and relational context. This book will help anyone doing business in or with China to navigate the hidden traps and understand how politeness works across cultures...

Creative Change Leadership

About mastering holistic leadership in a time of disruption

Lawrence Chong, Jim Funk

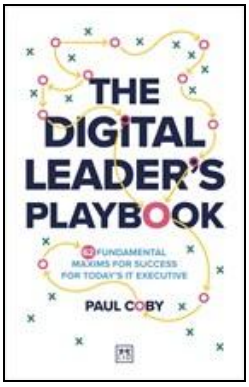

Summary

We are living in a uniquely disruptive age, one that demands a fundamental reassessment of leadership. The rapid advancement of artificial intelligence (AI) and robotics is redefining the very essence of human purpose. Simultaneously, the established global order is dissolving, with the world increasingly divided into competing spheres of influence. In this era of dismantled norms and emerging structures, shaped by both human and artificial intelligence, a complex present foreshadows an even more challenging future. To navigate the complexities of AI, global conflict, and economic disparity, a holistic leadership model is required, one that must prioritize not only organizational efficiency but also the well-being of humanity and the planet.

This book outlines the characteristics and new competencies for leaders to be able to navigate in today's world, and lead creative and lasting change. Most leadership models are about doing things (crafting a vision, communicating, directing and achieving outcomes). But those models were developed for more stable times. The world is different now,...

Wildlife Photographer of the Year Diary 2027

Natural History Museum

Summary

The Wildlife Photographer of the Year competition is the world's most prestigious showcase of nature photography, celebrating remarkable images that capture the beauty, fragility, and diversity of life on Earth.

This large-format 2027 desk diary features 52 breathtaking photographs from recent competition finalists and winners. Each image is accompanied by a caption describing where and when it was taken, along with the behavior or natural phenomena on display.

Spaciously designed in a week-to-view layout, the diary includes a ribbon marker for easy navigation and lists national and religious holidays. A perfect gift for nature lovers, conservation enthusiasts, and budding photographers, it brings the wonder of the natural world to your desk all year long.

Contributor Bio

The Natural History Museum, London, is one of the world's leading scientific institutions, dedicated to understanding and protecting the natural world. Founded in 1881, the Museum holds more than 80 million specimens and conducts pioneering research in biodiversity, conservation, and Earth science, while welcoming millions of visitors each year to its galleries and educational programs.

The Museum owns and organizes the Wildlife Photographer of the Year competition, now in its 60th year, which showcases the very best wildlife images taken by leading professional and amateur photographers around the globe. The most innovative and imaginative photographs are judged and selected by a panel of experts, and the chosen images form a major annual exhibition at the Natural History Museum and at venues across the UK and worldwide from the end of October onward.

Through its publications, exhibitions, and public outreach, the Natural History Museum works to inspire curiosity, encourage scientific understanding, and promote a future in which both people and the planet can thrive.

My Ex-Girlfriend's Wedding

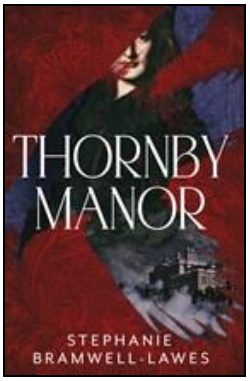

Sophie Crawford

Summary

A romcom for the modern age filled with magic, heart and the absurdities of the sapphic dating scene. Hope has nothing going for her. She's in a job she hates, she's been forced to quit her band after losing the ability to play guitar and, to make matters worse, her ex – the love of her life, Julia – is now getting married to her best friend's ex (messy, right?). But there's one silver lining: Hope has been invited to play at their wedding... and she's going to get Julia back. However, the road to true love is never easy, and Hope's journey is blocked by tarot readers, hen parties, visions from the past and, worst of all, Ruby. With their big eyes and extremely kissable mouth, Ruby is new to London's convoluted queer scene and a much-needed breath of fresh air for Hope. Will Hope win back the woman she loves, or does the universe have something else in store? Perfect for fans of Looking for a Sign by Susie Dumond, Funny Story by Emily Henry and The Seven Year Slip Ashley Poston, with notes of Really Good, Actually by Monica Heisey.

Thornby Manor

Stephanie Bramwell-Lawes

Summary

Penniless and newly orphaned Briar Monroe finds shelter at Thornby Manor, a brooding estate above a mist-shrouded lake. But whispers of a dead wife, an estranged son and locked-away secrets haunt its corridors … Atmospheric, intoxicating and laced with peril – a spellbinding historical mystery of love, betrayal, obsession and a house that will not release its past...

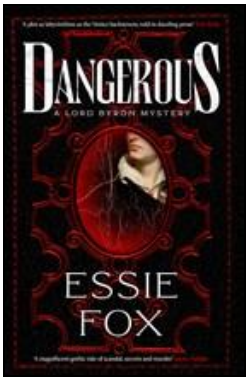

Warwickshire, 1891. Recently orphaned and left destitute, Briar Monroe accepts the protection of Lord Danville and the shadowed sanctuary of Thornby Manor. The great house looms above a mist-shrouded lake, its corridors heavy with secrets – not least the mysterious death of Lady Elizabeth Danville, and the unspoken tensions between her formidable widower and his magnetic son, Gabriel.

As Briar navigates the undercurrents of a household ruled by watchful servants and locked doors, she is drawn ever deeper into a web of suspicion, desire and fear. Whispers in the night, figures at windows, and a constant sense of being watched leave her questioning not only the truth about Thornby, but her own safety within its walls.

Dangerous

Essie Fox

Summary

When the disgraced Lord Byron is associated with the deaths of women in Venice, he turns detective to unveil the killer and clear his name. A dazzling, riveting historical mystery by the author of the Sunday Times bestseller, The Fascination.

- "Brooding and brilliant" —A.J. West
- "What could so easily have been a risible premise for a novel becomes, in Fox's expert hands, the starting point for an atmospheric thriller" —Sunday Times
- "As mesmerizing and charismatic as Byron himself can ever have been … a magnificent gothic tale of scandal, secrets and murder" —Janice Hallett
- "Evokes all the grimy charisma of eighteenth-century Venice … a mystery as sinuous as the city's alleys and canals. I was enthralled" —Elizabeth Fremantle
- "A dark treat … splendidly gothic and impressively researched" —Andrew Taylor

Fiction can be fatal...

Living in exile in Venice, the disgraced Lord Byron revels in the freedoms of the city.

SCANDAL

But when he is associated with the deaths of local women, found with wounds to their throats, and then a novel called The Vampyre is published under his name, rumors begin to spr...

Under the Blazing Sun

The darkly funny, atmospheric, twisty sequel to Thirty Days of Darkness...

Jenny Lund Madsen

Summary

Hannah's love life is in ruins, writer's block hits, and her agent sends her to Sicily to finish her sequel. But when murder strikes, Hannah's life turns into the crime novel she's meant to write. Darkly funny, atmospheric, and full of twists, the second instalment in an addictive new series.

'Hilarious, dark and whip-smart, Under the Blazing Sun confirms Madsen as a wonderful literary talent' Doug Johnstone

'The quintessential holiday read, funny and atmospheric. Hannah is the kind of heroine we'd all love as a friend, and it's also a brilliant evocation of the stunning island landscape of Sicily. My favourite read of the year so far!' Kate Rhodes

'A wild ride of murder and humour. The most fun I've had reading a crime novel this year' Will Carver

_____

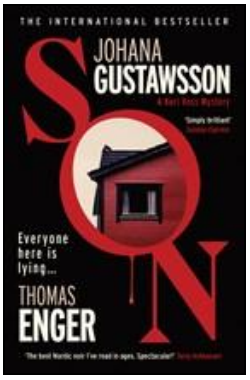

Hannah is miserable. Her love life is in ruins, her contract demands a sequel to her bestselling crime debut – and she's out of ideas. After a mortifying TV interview, her agent ships her off to a sun-drenched Sicilian villa with a simple order: finish the book. No distractions. No excuses.

The Ossians

The gritty, darkly funny cult novel from one of Scotland's finest authors
Doug Johnstone

Summary

A last-chance winter road trip for a Scottish band spirals into wild chaos—seagull massacres, bomb tests, and darkly funny rock'n'roll madness on the edge. A raw, darkly funny novel by one of Scotland's finest authors—newly reissued!

ANNIVERSARY EDITION

INTRODUCTION BY VAL MCDERMID

Connor is twenty-four, brilliant, broken, and out of control. He's the swaggering frontman of The Ossians, a Scottish indie band on the brink of signing a major record deal.

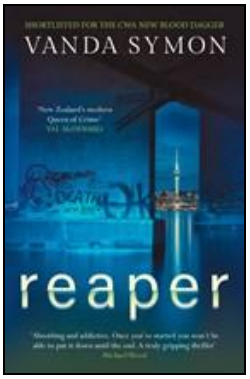

Desperate to make their mark, they head off on a two-week winter tour across the cities and hinterlands of Scotland—a last-ditch attempt to find fame, purpose, and themselves.

But the tour soon spirals into a surreal, chaotic odyssey. From seedy bars and snowbound towns to a final, defining Glasgow gig, the band hurtles through a whirlwind of seagull massacres, botched drug deals, a mysterious stalker, radioactive beaches, bomb-testing ranges, epileptic fits, riotous Russian submariners, deadly storms, epiphanies, regular beatings and random shootings.

Raw, darkly funny and wild with energy, The Ossians is a gloriously anarchic story of rock...

Reaper

The twisty, dark new thriller from the new Queen of New Zealand Crime...
Vanda Symon

Summary

A killer is hunting Auckland's homeless. No one cares. No one but Max. These are his people.

Max Grimes is homeless, living on the streets of Auckland—among the forgotten and invisible. But now someone is hunting the homeless, killing them one by one. No one cares. No one except Max.

Trying to put his shattered life back together, Max is pulled into a deadly game when a face from his past reappears, reopening wounds he thought were long buried.

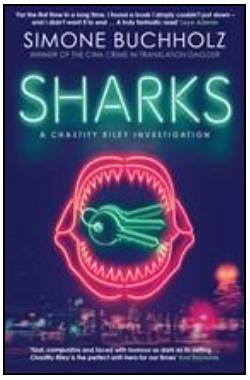

As whispers of a Grim Reaper spread terror through the city, Max must race against time – not only to find the killer, but to outrun the ghosts chasing him.

Because if he fails, he'll be next.

The gripping second instalment in a breathtaking series, from New Zealand's queen of crime Vanda Symon.

Simone Buchholz, Rachel Ward

Summary

In Hamburg's troubled Wilhelmsburg district, Prosecutor Chastity Riley investigates a brutal double murder amid corruption and gentrification. Battling personal demons and powerful foes, she fights to expose a city's dark secrets. Germany's Queen of Krimi returns with the caustically funny, breathtakingly dark next instalment in an addictive series...

'As much a character study as the story of a crime … like a flipbook, full of startling images and sudden movements, that will thrill cynics and romantics alike' Sunday Times

'For the first time in a long time, I found a book I simply couldn't put down – and I didn't want it to end. There really should be a word for the sadness you feel when you're nearing the end of a truly fantastic read. Sharks is that kind of book' Leye Adenle

'Taut, compulsive and laced with humour as dark as its setting, Sharks raises the bar again for one of my favourite series. Chastity Riley is the perfect anti-hero for our times, and Simone Buchholz is the real deal' Rod Reynolds

The Hope

The most explosive, utterly compelling, MUST-READ climate-emergency thriller of 2026
Paul E. Hardisty

Summary

In a ravaged future ruled by the descendants of those who caused the climate collapse, a teenager with a remarkable gift must flee for her life and fight to save the last hope for humanity. The searing, unforgettable conclusion to the internationally acclaimed The Forcing trilogy.

The year is 2086. Climate collapse, famine and war have left the world in ruins. In the shadow of the Alpha-Omega regime—descendants of the super-rich architects of disaster—sixteen-year-old Boo Ashworth and her uncle risk everything to save what's left of human knowledge, hiding the last surviving books in a secret library beneath the streets of Hobart.

But Boo has a secret of her own: an astonishing ability to memorize entire texts with perfect recall. When the library is discovered and destroyed, she's forced to flee—armed with nothing but the stories she carries in her mind and a growing understanding of her family's true past. Hunted and alone, she must fight to save her loved ones and bring hope to a broken world with the help of some unlikely allies

Johana Gustawsson, David Warriner

Summary

When two teenagers are found brutally murdered on the island of Lidingö , dressed in white tunics and wearing crowns of candles, former French police officer Maï a Rehn joins local Commissioner Aleksander Storm to unravel a mystery with a shockingly dark heart. The highly anticipated sequel to the international bestselling gothic mystery, Yule Island.

As Autumn deepens into darkness in Lidingö , on the Stockholm archipelago, the island is plunged into chaos: in the space of a week, two teenagers, the son of the island's mayor and that of a powerful businessman, are brutally murdered. Their bodies are left deep in the forest, dressed in white tunics with crowns of candles atop their heads, like offerings to Saint Lucia.

Maï a Rehn has fled Paris for Lidingö , where her husband has grown up, trying to come to terms with the death of their only daughter in a car accident. But when the murders shake the island community, the former police commissioner is drawn into the heart of the investigation, joining Commissioner Aleksander Storm to unravel a mystery as chilling as the Nordic winter. _____

In Norway's far north, something unspeakable is surfacing...

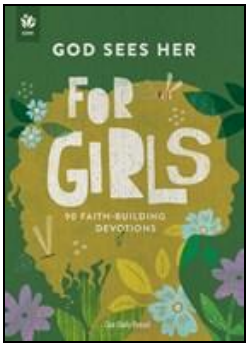

When a mutilated body rises from the icy waters off the jetty in Kjerringøy, it shocks the quiet coastal village – and stirs something darker beneath. Not long after, a young woman is found dead in a drab Bodø apartment. Suicide, perhaps. Or something far more sinister.

Detective Jakob Weber and former national investigator Noora Yun Sande are drawn into both cases. Then a hiker reports a terrifying encounter in the nearby wilderness: a solitary cabin … and a man without a face.

As the investigation deepens, the clues grow more disturbing – and the wild, wintry l...

100 Faith-Strengthening Devotions for Middle Schoolers

Crystal Stine

Summary

Equip your middle schooler to grow a more confident faith and to reflect God's love in every action and reaction.

In 100 devotions, Crystal Stine dives into what the Bible has to say about the many things your preteens might encounter in middle school—things like conflict, worry, and anger; gossip, friendship, and popularity; loneliness, confidence, and success.

Each reading includes

- an encouraging bible verse,
- an illustration or personal story on a relatable topic,
- and a fun activity or challenge to help tweens live out what they've learned.

Middle school can be an incredible time of exciting opportunities, growing friendships, and new experiences. But it can also be full of decisions, doubts, and drama. In other words, middle school is hard. The good news? We have an incredibly awesome God who loves your children and wants to help them in all seasons of life!

You Won't See Me

When the Beatles Ghosted Imelda

David Guerrero

Summary

The Beatles, on what would be their final world tour, arrived in a country unlike any other.

In the mid-1960s, the Philippines hosted America's largest military bases in the region while the Vietnam War was escalating. The Marcoses were photogenic and, on the surface at least, presented as poster children for democracy; Life magazine even dubbed Ferdinand and Imelda the "Jackie and JFK" of Asia. The Beatles' management saw the tour as a lucrative opportunity to open new markets.

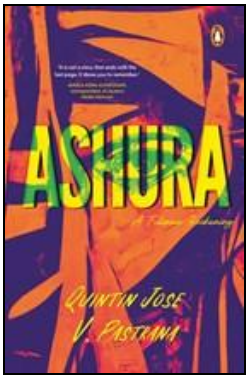

Before their arrival, invitations were sent—both directly and via the local promoter—for lunch at the Presidential Palace. Whether the invitations were accepted remains disputed. On the morning of July 4, 1966, when escorts arrived to collect the band, their manager, Brian Epstein, refused to attend, leaving over 300 people, including Imelda and her family, standing on live television.

Despite two large and successful concerts, the band's experience with official displeasure left them fearful for their security and eager to leave. A chaotic encounter at the airport with Palace guards convinced them never to retu...

Ashura

A Filipino Reckoning

Quintin Jose V. Pastrana

Summary

In a country riven by death and corruption, unlikely companions risk everything to find a little girl whose secret could expose murderers hiding in plain sight.

Ashura is the story of three lives, intertwined by fate and circumstance, speaking truth to power amid the escalating tide of extrajudicial killings in modern-day Philippines.

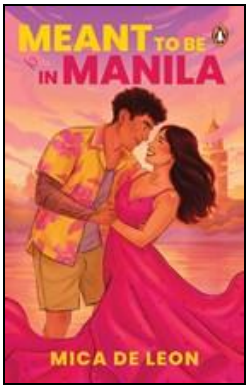

Spanning three continents, seven cities, and twelve months, the novel weaves a powerful narrative of interrupted youth, shared identity amid brazen politics, and the elusive search for justice. It traces the invisible threads of kinship that grow stronger as its characters navigate the fragile line between life and death, history and love.

The reader is drawn into separate inner journeys that converge on the bloodstained streets of Metro Manila and Mindanao, the shifting corridors of power in Washington, DC, and the dark recesses of Barcelona—culminating in an uncertain reckoning at the International Criminal Court in The Hague. Ultimately, Ashura becomes a shared, unfinished legacy of a nation still struggling to define itself.

Meant to be in Manila

Mica De Leon

Summary

She’s done with destiny. He’s chasing the past. But fate has other plans.

Sophia Joaquin is done believing in “meant to be.” After uprooting her life for love—only to be ghosted the moment she arrived in Vancouver—she’s heading back to Manila, heartbroken and humiliated. Rafael Herbert, an architect and artist, is on a mission to win back the girl who ghosted him. By a twist of fate on their flight home, they meet and strike an unusual deal: he’ll be her fake fiancé for her brother’s wedding, and she’ll help him track down his lost love.

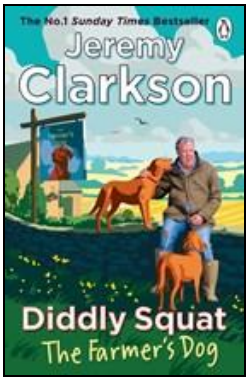

As they navigate Manila’s bustling streets, old churches, and hidden gems, their fake romance begins to feel surprisingly real. Maybe love isn’t about finding the right person—it’s about finding the right person at the right time. And maybe, just maybe, that time is now.

Before Sunrise meets Love Hard in this Romcom set on a walking tour of Manila, Philippines, following Sophia Eunice “Piayaya” Hermosa, a former Philippine history teacher, and Raphael Alfonso “Rafal” Herbert, an urban housing architect. Touring the city while seeking closure from their ...

Diddly Squat: The Farmer's Dog

Jeremy Clarkson

Summary

Pre-order the all-new collection of hair-raising missteps and hilarious antics from Diddly Squat Farm, featuring gentleman farmer and two-time Sexiest Man Alive winner, Jeremy Clarkson.

"Fans of Prime TV series Clarkson's Farm will enjoy this companion." — Irish Times

Uncooperative animals, underperforming crops, and best-laid plans gone awry—Jeremy Clarkson's farm truly is the gift that keeps on giving.

As one overseas visitor* admitted, he only came to Diddly Squat because he couldn't believe Jeremy could really be that incompetent.

Never one to be discouraged, our hero decides to channel his entrepreneurial flair into a new venture: a pub. And just a few short weeks later, The Farmer's Dog opens its doors.

All British produce, Hawkstone beer on tap, a private bar for farmers, and a vintage tractor hanging from the ceiling—the perfect country pub. A welcome distraction from sustainable farming initiatives, psychedelic wheat, angry London protests, and a headbutting goat.

What could possibly go wrong?

Besides the toilets packing up and the electricity running out, of course. As the Cotswol...

How the people who power Formula One thrive at the limits

Simon Lazenby, Damon Hill

Summary

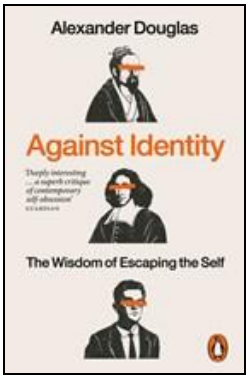

As lead presenter for Sky Sports Formula One live coverage, Simon Lazenby is at the center of Grand Prix race-weekend action. With a foreword by legendary motorsport driver Damon Hill, in this book Simon takes us off camera to give us exclusive, behind-the-scenes access to the people who power this multi-billion-pound sport.

Drawing on over a decade's accumulated first-hand knowledge and connections across the paddock, Simon talks to key experts and professionals within the teams and the overall organization, who each reveal how they operate, how they compete, the skills they've learnt to navigate the challenges they face.

Among the insiders who let us into their world are Max Verstappen's race engineer, whose voice we hear on the driver's cockpit radio communicating key strategic decisions, and the Aston Martin mechanic who oversees the team responsible for assembling the F1 car from 14,500 different components before each GP. There's the performance coach, who has to ensure that the drivers' necks can withstand the equivalent of 24kg of weight (helmet + head + G force) and Giorgio Pi...

Against Identity

The Wisdom of Escaping the Self

Alexander Douglas

Summary

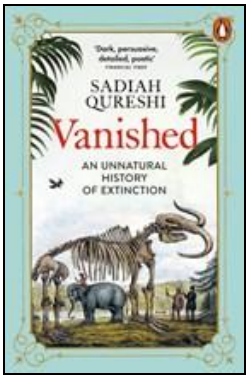

Modern life encourages us to chase the perfect identity. Whether we aspire to be the best lawyer or charity worker, life partner or celebrity influencer, we emulate the exemplars around us—hoping it will bring us happiness. But this pursuit often leads to a complex game of envy and pride. We may achieve these identities, only to crave admiration from others. We clash with those whose identities oppose ours—fueling polarization and even violence. And when their blows land, we're left feeling hollow.

In Against Identity, philosopher Alexander Douglas seeks a different kind of wisdom. Drawing on the ideas of three great thinkers—ancient Chinese philosopher Zhuangzi, Dutch Enlightenment thinker Benedict de Spinoza, and twentieth-century French theorist René Girard—Douglas explores how identity can become a form of spiritual violence that pulls us away from truth.

Across their worlds and radically different cultures, we see how, in times of historical upheaval, our hunger for a fixed sense of self grows stronger. Yet it is precisely in these moments, Douglas argues, that we must make peace...

Vanished

An Unnatural History of Extinction

Sadiah Qureshi

Summary

Shortlisted for the Royal Society Trivedi Science Book Prize 2025

"A vital and important book." — David Olusoga

From award-winning historian of race, science, and empire Sadiah Qureshi comes a groundbreaking and deeply moving history of extinction — as a scientific idea, an imperial legacy, and a political choice.

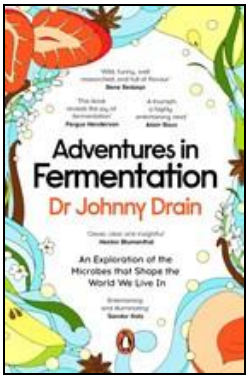

Anyone alive today belongs to a tiny fraction of all who have ever lived: more than 90% of species that once existed are now extinct. How did we come to see ourselves as survivors in a world where species can disappear forever — or even as agents capable of driving a sixth mass extinction?

Qureshi reveals that extinction is a surprisingly modern concept — and not nearly as "natural" as we imagine. Until the late eighteenth century, Europeans believed species were perfect and unchanging creations of God. But as revolutions reshaped the world, scientists began to recognize that fossils — like mammoth bones — were not relics of still-living creatures, but evidence of species lost forever. Extinction, once a theological impossibility, became an accepted, even inevitable, truth.

Yet ...

Sacrifice

A Year in the Life of a Champion Jockey

Oisin Murphy

Summary

Born prematurely—weighing less than a bag of sugar—Oisín Murphy's life has always been one of struggle. From a young age, he found communion with horses. Mesmerized by their power and spirit, he discovered a natural gift for the saddle.

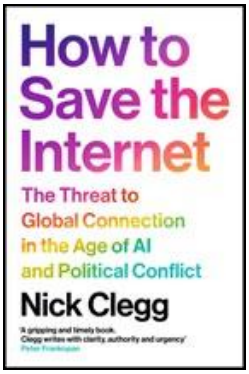

Oisín quickly established himself as one of horse racing's most prodigious talents. But reaching the pinnacle of the sport required a high-wire act that pushed his body and mind to their limits. Despite winning three consecutive champion jockey titles, alcohol addiction lurked beneath the surface, and a string of misdemeanors eventually led to a year-long ban.

"I dealt with success and failure the same. Drink was the rock I perished on. The day I picked up the championship trophy, there was no element of joy in it for me."

Fast-paced and searingly honest, Sacrifice follows Oisín's extraordinary journey back from the brink to rediscover his love for the sport and reclaim his champion jockey crown in 2024. It lays bare the realities of life as a professional jockey—and the personal cost of success in a sport that demands total obsession.

Contributor Bio

Oisin Murphy grew up in Killarney in Ireland. He started riding ponies from the age of 4 and competed in show jumping before switching to flat racing. He has won two British Classics and a number of Group 1 races. He has been British Champion Jockey in 2019, 2020, 2021 and 2024.

How to Save the Internet

The Threat to Global Connection in the Age of AI and Political Conflict

Nick Clegg

Summary

"A wake-up call we cannot afford to ignore." — Tony Blair

"A vital read for anyone building or regulating the next era of technology." — Reid Hoffman

The global, open internet is fragmenting.

As democracies seek to rein in the power of Big Tech, as Silicon Valley turns toward an America-first agenda, and as authoritarian regimes like China and Russia wall off their citizens from the rest of the online world, the most powerful tool ever created for global connection now faces disintegration.

Drawing on his experiences inside Meta and his interactions with world leaders, Nick Clegg—Meta's former President of Global Affairs—reveals where Big Tech has gone wrong, how Silicon Valley's insularity has blinded it to its missteps, and what radical reforms are needed if global platforms are to secure a sustainable future.

Clegg also challenges the prevailing narrative that these companies' algorithms inevitably polarize, manipulate, or harm society, arguing that many of these claims are overstated or false. While he agrees that new regulation is vital, he warns that building national borders around...

Contributor Bio

Nick Clegg recently stepped down as President, Global Affairs at Meta, the company's chief policy decision-maker and its principal interlocutor with world leaders, governments and policymakers around the globe. Previously he was Deputy Prime Minister of the UK. At Meta, he shifted the company toward engagement with regulation, created an independent Oversight Board and opened it up to rigorous academic research. He managed some of the most complex issues the company faces, including content policy and elections, and took key decisions on the suspension (and later reinstatement) of President Trump, the handling of misinformation

Letters To Sartre

Simone de Beauvoir

Summary

These intimate love letters reveal the close, open relationship between de Beauvoir and Sartre, two of the twentieth century's most groundbreaking thinkers - two people living out their philosophy.

De Beauvoir lived her feminist philosophy. She never married or had children, she had many affairs with both men and women, and she actively defied societal norms for women of her time. At the same time she conducted an intense, long-term relationship with the philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre, who she referred to as her husband.

Beauvoir and Sartre met as philosophy students in Paris in 1929. For over 50 years, until their deaths in the 1980s, the couple had a close, open relationship. This book contains her love letters to him, revealing the details of her everyday life and her passion for the man who shared her ideals. It is an intimate portrait of a woman living in an adventurous, complicated way in the name of individual freedom.

De Beauvoir and Sartre are buried together under a shared gravestone in Montparnasse cemetery in Paris. Despite her career as a writer, philosopher and the founder o...

Contributor Bio

Simone de Beauvoir was born in Paris in 1908. In 1929 she became the youngest person ever to obtain the agrégation in philosophy at the Sorbonne, placing second to Jean-Paul Sartre. She taught at the lycées at Marseille and Rouen from 1931-1937, and in Paris from 1938-1943. After the war, she emerged as one of the leaders of the existentialist movement, working with Sartre on Les Temps Mordernes. The author of several books including The Mandarins (1957) which was awarded the Prix Goncourt, de Beauvoir was one of the most influential thinkers of her generation. She died in 1986.

Every Monument Will Fall

A Story of Remembering and Forgetting

Dan Hicks

Summary

The culture war is over—if you want it to be. It wasn't even a culture war, Dan Hicks argues; it was a war on culture. A sustained attack, he shows, carried out through the weaponization of civic museums, public art, and even universities—and one with deeper roots than most imagine.

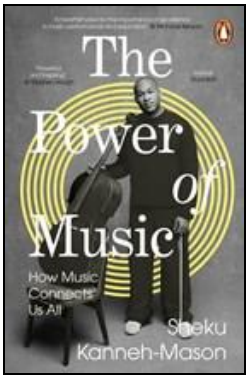

Tracing the origins of today's conflicts over art, heritage, memory, and colonialism, Every Monument Will Fall connects the dots between the building of statues, the founding of academic disciplines such as archaeology and anthropology, and the warehousing of stolen art and human remains in museums—including the very one where Hicks himself is a curator.

Part history, part biography, part excavation, this sweeping narrative spans from the Yorkshire Wolds to the Crimean War, from southern Ireland to the American Civil War, from the City of London to the University of Oxford—revealing how militarism, slavery, racism, and white supremacy remain embedded in the heart of our cultural institutions.

Every Monument Will Fall is an urgent reappraisal of how we think about culture—and how we can find hope, remembrance...

The Power of Music

How Music Connects Us All

Sheku Kanneh-Mason

Summary

Music is what makes us alive, mindful and connected to each other. Music is what makes us human. This is the power of music.

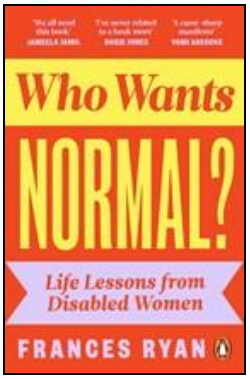

Cellist Sheku Kanneh-Mason knows and feels the transformative power of music as much as any musician alive. From winning the prestigious BBC Young Musician Award to performing at Harry and Meghan's wedding; from Bach's solo suites to Bob Marley's reggae; his ferocious passion shines through in every single performance, whether in a packed-out concert hall or on record.

But how was it that someone like him – a person of color, from a state school in Nottingham – rose to the upper echelons of the classical music world? What were the obstacles that he had to overcome, what did he learn along the way, and how could a young person follow in his footsteps today?

In The Power of Music, Sheku explores the experiences and values that led him here, from a childhood of football practice and family music sessions, to his work today in the world's finest concert halls and in the less privileged communities that surround them. As his star continues to rise, he shows us the dark ...

Contributor Bio

Sheku Kanneh-Mason shot to fame as the winner of the 2016 BBC Young Musician competition, the first black musician to win the award since its launch in 1978. He then became a household name after being invited to perform at the 2018 wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Sussex, which was watched by billions around the world. He records exclusively for Decca Classics, and enjoys a busy schedule of international concert performances, at venues including Wigmore Hall, Carnegie Hall, and the BBC Proms. In the Queen's 2020 New Year's Honors, he was awarded an MBE for his services to music.

Who Wants Normal?

Life Lessons from Disabled Women

Frances Ryan

Summary

"We all need this book." — Jameela Jamil

"A razor-sharp manifesto by one of Britain's most vital voices." — Yomi Adegoke

"Exceptional." — British Vogue

A groundbreaking memoir about what it means to be a disabled woman in Britain today — from acclaimed journalist and author Frances Ryan — featuring insights and personal stories from more than 50 contributors.

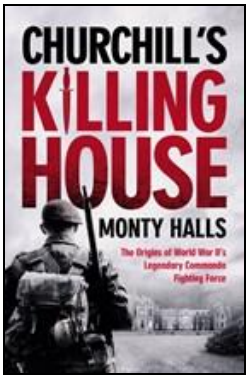

"No one really talks about it. No one really talks about what it is to be a disabled woman, especially a young one. To go a bit mad. To experience pain or exhaustion or feel 92. To navigate all the standard parts of life — exams, careers, dating — but with a body that's different from everyone else's."

Part memoir, part manifesto, and filled with Frances Ryan's trademark warmth, humor, and honesty (alongside hard-hitting facts), Who Wants Normal? explores six key aspects of life: education, careers, body image, health, relationships, and representation — as well as how to survive life's inevitable bumps in the road.

Drawing on Ryan's own experiences and deeply personal interviews with more than 50 of Britain's most prominent women and...

Churchill's Killing House

The Origins of World War II's Legendary Commando Fighting Force

Monty Halls

Summary

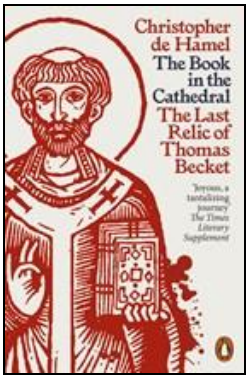

At the end of 1940, Britain was under siege. Poland, Belgium, Holland, Norway and France had already fallen to Nazi rule, and the British army had been destroyed at Dunkirk.

In the rubble of the Allies' crumbled defense, Churchill's Invairlort House was established as a new symbol of defiance – and then hope – against Nazi rule. As the war rumbled on, this austere building became an academy for the brightest and best of all Allied volunteers, where they were transformed from ordinary foot-soldiers into a new breed of warrior – the commando. The list of instructors, advisors, and trainees that passed through it included some of the greatest fighting men of World War Two: William Fairbairn, Eric Sykes, Brigadier "Mad Mike" Culvert, Lord Lovat, David and Bill Stirling - who would go on to form the SAS - and Alick Cowieson amongst them.

Churchill's Killing House tells for the first time the remarkable human story of a new type of soldier and warfare that was created, and how it ultimately led the way to Allied victory over fascism.

Contributor Bio

Monty Halls is a former Royal Marines Officer who served for over a decade. His subsequent career as an expedition leader, broadcaster and travel writer saw his travels continue around the world. He is based in South Devon, where he runs Seadog - an adventure and wildlife production company. His ties to the Royal Marines remain as strong as ever, and he is a passionate supporter of the RM Charity in their efforts to raise funds for the veteran community. He is married to Tam and has two daughters Isla and Molly - the latter being the only team he's worked with that continues to bamboozle him.

The Book in the Cathedral

The Last Relic of Thomas Becket

Christopher de Hamel

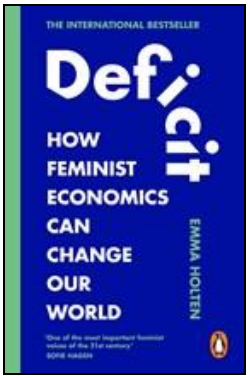

Summary

Medieval manuscript historian and author of the widely acclaimed Meetings with Remarkable Manuscripts discovers the most intimate surviving relic of Thomas Beckett.

The assassination of Thomas Becket in Canterbury Cathedral on December 29, 1170, is one of the most famous events in European history. It inspired the largest pilgrim site in medieval Europe and many works of literature from Chaucer's Canterbury Tales to T. S. Eliot's Murder in the Cathedral and Anouilh's Becket. In a brilliant piece of historical detective work, Christopher de Hamel here identifies the Anglo-Saxon Psalter which Becket cherished throughout his time as Archbishop of Canterbury and which he may even have been holding when he was murdered. Beautifully illustrated, this is an exciting rediscovery of one of the most evocative artifacts of medieval England and the only surviving relic from Becket's shrine.

Contributor Bio

In the course of a long career at Sotheby's and at Cambridge University, Christopher de Hamel has probably handled more medieval manuscripts than anyone alive and his delight and enthusiasm in them run through all he writes. His many books, translated into numerous languages, include A History of Illuminated Manuscripts, Meetings with Remarkable Manuscripts (winner of the Duff Cooper Prize and the Wolfson History Prize), The Book in the Cathedral: The Last Relic of Thomas Becket and The Posthumous Papers of the Manuscripts Club. He is a Life Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. He lives in London.

Deficit

The Hidden Value of Care

Emma Holten, Sherilyn Nicolette Hellberg

Summary

AN INTERNATIONAL BESTSELLER* WINNER OF THE POLITIKEN LITERATURE PRIZE 2024

'Brilliantly rewrites the history of economic thought to place 'her story' at its heart. A must-read' - Kate Raworth, author of DOUGHNUT ECONOMICS

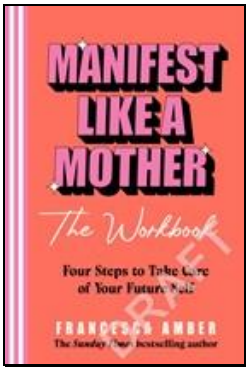

'One of the most important feminist voices of the 21st century . . . The book about capitalism we didn't know we needed' - Sofie Hagen

In 2020, the prominent Danish feminist Emma Holten read an article stating that women were a net ‘deficit’ to society. Women took more than they gave, ‘draining’ the public purse by giving birth and taking parental leave. They contributed less than their fair share in taxes, because they often worked part-time to look after other people at home, or held low-paid jobs in the public sector. Denmark would be richer if women’s lives looked more like men’s, the economic experts concluded. A similar story is told around the globe.

How did we get here? In Deficit, Emma Holten traces how economic thinkers – from the Enlightenment onwards – created a value framework that overlooked and neglected ‘women’s work’ and acts of care. She reveals how t...

My Family And Other Spies

Alistair Wood

Summary

An extraordinary true story of growing up inside MI6, uncovering family secrets, and tracing a legacy of British espionage across half a century.

"A fabulous romp of a book—part John le Carré, part Ealing comedy… compulsively readable." — The Sunday Times

"Tells the story of the author's unique childhood and the extraordinary, shadowy lives of his mother and father." — The Sunday Telegraph

"Truth is stranger than fiction…" — The Independent

"Reads like a Cold War thriller written by John le Carré with an added injection of wry humor." — BBC Saturday Live

"It has always been inculcated into me that no good could ever come of having anything to do with my father…"

As a boy, Alistair Wood grew up within the high-security walls of an MI6 training camp, surrounded by some of the most senior—and most colorful—figures in Secret Intelligence Service history.

After all, he was family. His mother was one of a handful of women who operated behind the lines in postwar Berlin. His father, once one of Britain's most highly regarded intelligence officers, was an absent and enigmatic figure—the reasons for...

Contributor Bio

As one of the only members of his family not to have been employed by the Secret Intelligence Service, Alistair Wood has enjoyed a reassuringly respectable (and successful) career in advertising, working in the UK, US, Korea, and South-East Asia.

All The Wicked

Catelyn Wilson

Summary

LURKING IN DARK CORRIDORS,
HIDDEN IN TOMES OF OLD,
SPIRITS ARE GROWING RESTLESS,
AND HELL IS ONCE AGAIN, OPENED . . .

A year after the events at Ravenswood Academy, Andy Emmerson's life is in turmoil.

Demons, the underworld, and secret societies all exist, and they still haunt her days and nights.

Eager to find the answers she can't locate in the shelves of the library, Andy visits Jae in the underworld.

Only, it is empty of the Gods that once ruled it and inexplicable clues – sent by the mysterious Order – start to appear warning them of dark days ahead.

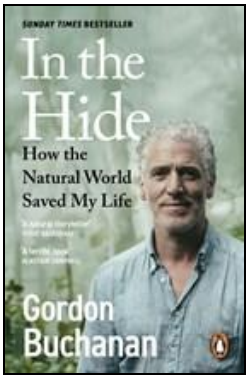

Together they must travel to the eerie streets of Edinburgh and enroll in Eidolon University where they will investigate The Order and unlock its secrets.

Soon they are catapulted into a world of old magic, dangerous rituals, and demonic activity. A world they thought they'd left behind at Ravenswood.

If they fail to discover The Order, and the school's secrets, humanity will fall to the fires of hell.

But if they succeed, Andy may have to make the biggest sacrifice yet.

As something wicked this way comes . . .

In the Hide

How the Natural World Saved My Life

Gordon Buchanan

Summary

Our estate was built on land claimed from fields – we were at the foot of those rolling Kilpatrick hills, but over the roof of the school you could see more green fields and woods. I felt grateful to be on the edge of all that countryside – there was a magnetic pull towards what I thought that wild was or could be. "One day, I'm going to walk to those hills and woods," I'd think to myself.

Soon, it would become a sanctuary.

Gordon Buchanan is probably the best-known natural history cameraman the BBC has ever produced. From wild snow wolf packs in Ellesmere and polar bears in Svalbard to leopards in Mumbai and equine therapy in Mongolia, he has filmed in the world's most far-reaching places for over 30 years. His dedication to his craft means he often spends weeks inside a cramped camera hide, tolerating extreme sleep deprivation and poor living conditions, all in search of that one extraordinary shot.

But dangerous animals were not the only thing he was hiding from.

In the Hide is Gordon's emotionally honest and raw account of a challenging childhood in Dumbarton and on Mull, and the esc...

The power dynamics of the office are never more apparent than when it comes to food: mandatory lunches with the boss, the colleague currying favor with home-baked treats, or the sad remnants of someone's late-night binge.

In a small office in Saitama, Ashikawa is the kind of woman Nitani imagines he'll one day marry—sweet, obliging, and determined to cure him of his instant noodle addiction. Yet he finds himself unable to respect her—or the sugary sweets she brings in to win her coworkers' affection through baking rather than hard work.

Oshio, on the other hand, is bold and uninhibited—Nitani's drinking buddy and kindred spirit. In the stifling atmosphere of the workplace, the two grow close, bonded by thei...

The Great Siege of Malta

Marcus Bull

Summary

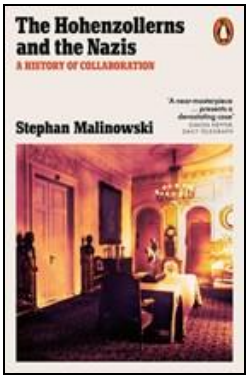

Even as the great siege began it was understood by both sides to be an epic – a potentially decisive encounter between an uneasy assortment of soldiers, native Maltese, adventurers and Knights Hospitaller on a strategically crucial but near waterless island and a vast, seemingly all-powerful Ottoman armada. With three quarters of the Mediterranean's coasts already in the hands of the Sultan and his allies, all eyes were now on Malta.

This superb new account of the siege emphasizes the crucial importance of the siege while at the same time putting it in a far wider context. While since mistakenly recast as a climactic battle between the West and the East, it was also much more interesting and nuanced than that – both sides had many other interests and priorities beyond Malta. Süleyman the Magnificent had conquered and subsumed regions from Hungary to the Persian Gulf; Philip II was building an empire in America and Asia.

Drawing on a wide range of eyewitness stories, Marcus Bull gives a vivid sense of the period's technologies, values and assumptions. It was a grim world built on the la...

The Hohenzollerns and the Nazis

A History of Collaboration

Stephan Malinowski, Jefferson Chase

Summary

The shocking true story of the German monarchy's collaboration with the Nazis — already a bestseller in Germany, now available in English for the first time.

Winner of the German Non-Fiction Prize 2022

"Malinowski's work is a near-masterpiece, relating a story not synthesized in this way before—and about which any number of self-serving myths exist." — Simon Heffer, The Telegraph

"Stephan Malinowski's brilliant book strikes a balance between the forensic analysis of individual behavior and a new understanding of how the toxic political culture of a defeated monarchy helped to disrupt democracy in Germany." — Christopher Clark

When Kaiser Wilhelm II fled into Dutch exile in November 1918, the disappearance of the Hohenzollern dynasty seemed one of the most sudden and complete downfalls in modern history. But that is not the full story.

Stephan Malinowski's The Hohenzollerns and the Nazis is a groundbreaking work of historical recovery. It reveals how both the Weimar Republic and the Third Reich found it useful to publicly dismiss the former royal family, even as the Hohenzollerns themselv...

Become Unstoppable

The Blueprint from the World's Most Successful Sports Team

Gilbert Enoka

Summary

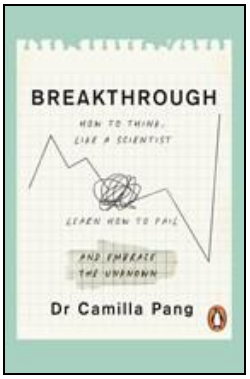

Gilbert Enoka has been a pioneer in sports psychology for over 40 years. First breaking ground at a time when the field was considered taboo, his revolutionary techniques helped transform the New Zealand All Blacks into one of the most dominant teams in sports history—while also elevating professional squads around the world in rugby, cricket, football, basketball, and netball.

Under Gilbert's influence, the All Blacks became the greatest team of a generation: two Rugby World Cup titles (2011 and 2015), 21 consecutive Bledisloe Cups, seven Tri-Nations Series, ten Rugby Championships, and the Laureus World Team of the Year Award, all while spending an astonishing 118 consecutive months atop the World Rugby Rankings between 2009 and 2019.

Now, for the first time, Gilbert shares his groundbreaking methods in Become Unstoppable—a powerful collection of psychological leadership strategies, cultural principles, and game-changing mental skills drawn from elite sport and applicable to every aspect of life. These same insights, long sought by world-class organizations, offer a blueprint for any...

Contributor Bio

Gilbert Enoka is a legendary mental performance coach who has worked with New Zealand's corporate and sporting elite. He is internationally-renowned for his two-decade history with the All Blacks. He has been with the All Blacks for over 250 tests and during that time the team has won back-to-back Rugby World Cups, one Laureus Award (for the best team in the world), 17 Bledisloe Cups, three Grand Slams, seven Tri Nations and five Rugby Championships. Gilbert's reputation has also seen him work with the Black Caps, Silver Ferns, Crusaders and many other high-performing international athletes. A sought-after speaker, Gilbert talks about the psychology behind individual and team success in world-level sport and how this can be applied to any walk of life.

The Breakthrough

How to Think Like a Scientist, Learn to Fail and Embrace the Unknown

Camilla Pang

Summary

From the award-winning author of Explaining Humans

"A wondrous hymn to the scientific method and some of its most profound discoveries—and what it can teach us all about how to live better, richer lives." — Prof. Lewis Dartnell, author of Being Human: How Our Biology Shaped World History

A scientist's journey from observation to discovery is anything but straightforward.

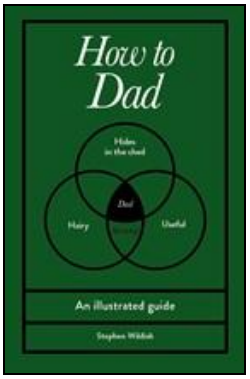

It's filled with failure, unexpected detours, and moments of joyous realization. Science helps us understand ourselves—but what we already know about the world is only half the story.

In this illuminating new book, Dr. Camilla Pang explores some of the biggest mysteries facing science today and reveals how the methods used by cutting-edge researchers—observation, hypothesis, experimentation, and discovery—can guide us in navigating our own lives.

Blending curiosity, compassion, and insight, Dr. Pang shows how thinking like a scientist can help us troubleshoot problems, embrace uncertainty, and uncover the wonder that connects us all.

Contributor Bio

Dr Camilla Pang holds a PhD in biochemistry from University College London and is a postdoctoral scientist specializing in translational bioinformatics. At the age of eight, Camilla was diagnosed with ASD (autism spectrum disorder) and ADHD at twenty-six years old. Her career and studies have been heavily influenced by her diagnosis and she is driven by her passion for understanding humans, our behaviors and how we work. Her first book, Explaining Humans, won the Royal Society Science Book Prize.

Glimmers

tiny moments to transform your life

Nadia Narain, Katia Narain Phillips

Summary

Sun peeking through leaves. A shared smile with a stranger. The sound of birdsong.

A glimmer often feels like a little moment of magic, but it's actually a physical response that is rooted in your body's nervous system, with the power to improve your mood, mental health and overall well-being. A glimmer is the opposite of a trigger—instead of putting your system on high alert, it reassures you that all is safe and well.

Glimmers are a beautiful invitation to the present moment, inviting us to be more aware of ourselves, our environment and the connections we share with those around us. They offer cues of safety and ease to the nervous system, which help us build resilience to better navigate life's ups and downs.

In Glimmers, sisters Nadia and Katia, authors of the international bestseller Self-Care for the Real World, bring together practices inspired by their training and experiences of nervous system healing. Their gentle guidance will help you tune into the glimmers that are all around you.

Summary

The best-selling biography of the greatest spy you've never heard of.

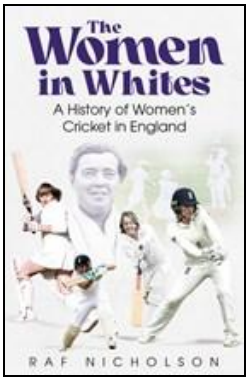

A Suspicion of Spies is the first-ever biography of "Biffy" Dunderdale, telling the fascinating story of an extraordinary man—suave, sophisticated, charming, and wealthy, yet also a ruthless and highly effective spymaster.

From the Russian Revolution to the Cold War and beyond, Dunderdale's career was filled with adventure, courage, glamour, and danger.

In 1916, at just seventeen, Wilfred "Biffy" Dunderdale was working for his father, delivering submarines from Vladivostok to St. Petersburg for the Russian Imperial Navy. During a sea trial with an unfamiliar dockyard crew, he spotted a group of German ships, gave the order to attack, and sank four of them. After narrowly escaping an anti-submarine net with only thirty minutes of oxygen remaining, he surfaced in Kronstadt to find every gun in the port aimed at him. Fluent in Russian, he quickly defused the situation—and was awarded by Tsar Nicholas II the Order of St. Stanislav and the Order of St. Anne, Imperial Russia's highest honors for military valor and bravery i...

Billy Mackay

Miracle Man

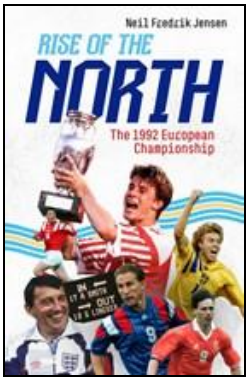

Graeme Strachan

Summary

Billy Mackay lived both the dream and the nightmare after signing for Rangers in 1976. Blessed with blistering pace and a natural eye for goal, he was the most sought-after young winger in Britain. Mackay chose Rangers, where Jock Wallace hailed him as 'the new George Best'. He made his debut at just 16 and spent eight years at Ibrox during one of the club's most turbulent eras. His career briefly shone but was littered with sliding-doors moments. There were big European nights and a League Cup medal. Mackay also played in the 'shame game' against Chesterfield in the Anglo-Scottish Cup in 1980. Then disaster struck. A catastrophic knee injury forced him into retirement at age 23, leaving him barely able to function. Yet, after nearly two years of rest, Mackay made a stunning comeback, joining double-chasing Hearts in February 1986. The papers dubbed him 'the miracle man' as he found himself at the heart of one of the most dramatic climaxes to a Scottish football season in living memory. This is his incredible story.

Contributor Bio

Graeme Strachan is The Courier's senior features writer. He heads up the Dundee publisher's online and print Past Times content. His first book, The Bird and The Feather: Caniggia and Ravanelli's Dundee Adventures, was published in 2019. His second, Brawls, Bribes and Broken Dreams: How Dundee Almost Won the European Cup, became an Amazon best-seller and was chosen as one of The Scotsman's 12 Books of Christmas. He lives in Dundee with his family.

The Nearly Men

The Story of Rangers FC 1966–1969, and How Close They Came to Glory

David Herd

Summary

The Nearly Men is the story of Rangers in the late 1960s, when the club won no trophies and lived in the shadow of the greatest Celtic side in history. Yet this was a Rangers team that possessed some of the club's most revered players, a side that came agonisingly close to glory both at home and in Europe. In Europe they reached a final, a semi?final and a quarter?final. Domestically, they gathered more points than in most title-winning seasons and claimed several Old Firm victories. But they lost when it mattered most, with many crucial moments on and off the pitch highlighting the fine line between success and failure. It was an era of upheaval: legendary manager Scot Symon was sacked while the team were top of the league, and his successor, Davie White, lost his job despite an impressive win ratio and a team playing great football. This may well have been the greatest unsuccessful Scottish side of all time.

Contributor Bio

David Herd is an acclaimed author on the history of Rangers FC, whose four previous books have been lauded by club fans. He writes regularly for various fan media groups, and is a popular speaker at Rangers fan events and on Rangers podcasts. As an expert on the Gers' history, he has appeared many times on official club TV documentaries, as well as on Sky Sports News and STV News.

Falling for Manchester City

The End of the Maine Road Era and the Turbulent 1990s

Marc Higginson

Summary

Falling for Manchester City is a nostalgic first hand chronicle of the club's most chaotic decade – a turbulent period that began with the birth of the Premier League, saw City plunge to the third tier and hit rock-bottom at York, before the sleeping giant finally stirred at a rain soaked Wembley in 1999. The author speaks to the key figures on and off the pitch to chart City's often-woeful but wildly compelling journey through the divisions. Relive the early promise under Howard Kendall and Peter Reid. Hear from those who were there when club legend Francis Lee bought City from Peter Swales. Marvel at Brian Horton's fearless attacking football, and savour the brilliance of Georgi Kinkladze, a lone bright light in the gathering gloom. Wince as City slide towards oblivion, and rejoice as Joe Royle plots the journey back. Hear exclusive untold stories from inside the dressing room, and enjoy a trip down memory lane with this evocative portrait of an unforgettable decade.

Contributor Bio

Marc Higginson is an experienced BBC Sport journalist and lifelong Manchester City supporter. Despite the heartache, he wouldn't swap his experiences of watching Terry Phelan bombing down the left wing or Georgi Kinkladze making mincemeat of opposition midfields for anything. Yes, there were lows – but the highs were and continue to be spectacular. Marc is the proud father of three boys: Luca, Leo and Arlo.

USA 94

The World Cup that Changed the Game

Matthew Evans

Summary

The 1994 World Cup was never supposed to work—not in a country where football barely registered, not with a volunteer bid team scraping together funds, and certainly not under the glare of a press waiting for the whole thing to implode. But when FIFA handed the US the world's biggest sporting event, an unlikely group set out to stage the greatest show on earth.

What followed was six years of audacity, improvisation and sheer stubborn belief. And then came the summer itself: a riot of unforgettable kits, blistering heat, iconic moments, shattering tragedies and attendance numbers no one thought possible. USA 94 didn't just silence the doubters; it helped launch the sport into a new era.

From missed penalties and political battles to a televised car chase and the birth of modern football superstardom, this is the definitive story of the World Cup that changed everything. If Italia '90 cracked open the door to the modern game, USA '94 booted it off its hinges and rewrote the script for good.

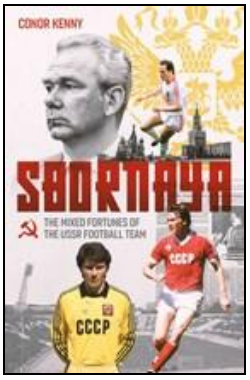

Contributor Bio

Matthew Evans is a freelance football writer specializing in the history and culture of the beautiful game. He has written widely across eras of world football for numerous online platforms, and his work has appeared in print in These Football Times and Nutmeg magazine. A devoted student of football nostalgia, he cites the 1994 World Cup as a defining influence, having experienced the tournament with the wide-eyed intensity of a football-obsessed teenager.

Sbornaya

The Mixed Fortunes of the USSR Football Team

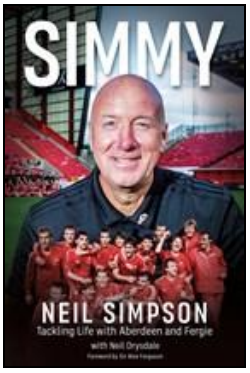

Conor Kenny

Summary

Sbornaya takes you on an evocative journey through the Soviet Union's final decade – politically, economically and culturally unravelling – as seen through the lens of its football world. The book explores the history, politics and geopolitical dimensions of the game: how it began, how it evolved and how it became the country's greatest sporting passion. It reveals how political machinations and behind-the-scenes manoeuvring disrupted a World Cup squad mid-tournament; how two brilliant scientific minds came together to pioneer technological and scientific breakthroughs at a football club; and the recurring story of the USSR's underachievement on the world stage despite its vast resources and talent. All of this unfolds under the shadow of a political system that sought to control, manipulate and micro-manage the game at every level. It is a football story like no other.

Contributor Bio

Conor Kenny's fascination with the Soviet game began with those iconic CCCP shirts and the grainy Sportsnight broadcasts that opened a window on to a far-flung footballing world. That early intrigue evolved into a serious study of Soviet political history as he devoured countless books on the subject. The idea for this book grew out of an online discussion about the epic 1986 World Cup showdown between the USSR and Belgium.

Simmy

Tackling Life with Aberdeen and Fergie

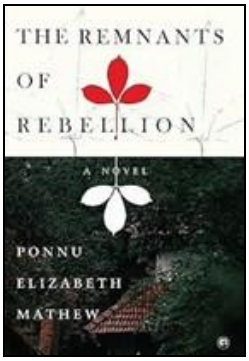

Neil Simpson, Neil Drysdale

Summary

Simmy is the explosive autobiography of Scottish football legend Neil Simpson – fearless Aberdeen midfielder and one of Alex Ferguson's Gothenburg greats. A standout in the Scottish youth set?up, he recalls facing Ruud Gullit and Michel Platini, and earning Scotland caps despite fears his London birth might hinder him. At Aberdeen he became a legend, helping the Dons secure famous victories over Bayern Munich, Real Madrid and Hamburg in 1983, three straight Scottish Cup triumphs (1982–84) and league titles in 1984 and 1985. Yet his tackle on Rangers' Ian Durrant in 1988 saw him vilified, sued for £2m and seeking police protection after his home address appeared in a Rangers magazine. But there were happier times in 2012 when Sir Alex returned to Aberdeen with his Manchester United stars for a testimonial in Neil's honour; while in 2023 Neil and his team-mates were given the Freedom of the City of Aberdeen. From European glory to the tackle that made him Scottish football's most polarising figure, Simpson finally breaks his silence in this hard-hitting account of triumphs, controversy...

Contributor Bio

In a four-decade journalistic career, Neil Drysdale has covered many major sports events, including the 1995 Rugby World Cup and the 2000 Olympics. An award-winning feature writer, his work has appeared in The Herald, The Sunday Times and The Press & Journal. He has authored several books, including a best-selling biography of Scotland and Rangers manager Walter Smith, and he co-wrote Scotland goalkeeper Alan Rough's autobiography.

The Remnants of Rebellion

A Novel

Ponnu Elizabeth Mathew

Summary

When young artist Aleyamma inherits her late grandfather's bungalow in Puthuloor, she hopes to find peace and a new beginning. Instead, she finds herself drawn into the shadows of the manor's violent past. Perched on a hill amid Kerala's lush rubber plantations, the house—once a remnant of British rule—bears the weight of secrets, rebellion, and bloodshed.

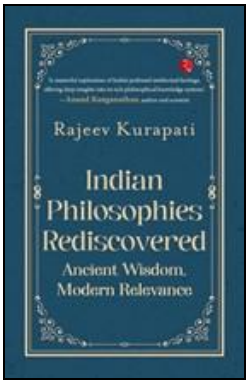

Decades earlier, Aleyamma's grandfather, Eesho, arrived at the same bungalow as a plantation supervisor, full of promise and love for his new wife. But as tensions rise among the estate workers and the radical-left Naxalite movement begins to stir, unrest threatens to destroy everything he holds dear.

Now, haunted by grief and estranged from her Syrian Christian family, Aleyamma must confront the echoes of that turbulent past. As she unravels the stories buried within the walls of the old bungalow, she begins to understand her family's legacy—and the resilience that runs through generations.

Set against the evocative backdrop of Kerala's plantations, The Remnants of Rebellion is Ponnu Elizabeth Mathew's enthralling debut novel—an expl...

Indian Philosophies Rediscovered

Ancient Wisdom, Modern Relevance

Rajeev Kurapati

Summary

Indian Philosophies Rediscovered: Ancient Wisdom, Modern Relevance invites readers on a journey through the intellectual heritage of ancient India, uncovering a tradition of thought grounded in reason, inquiry, and human understanding.

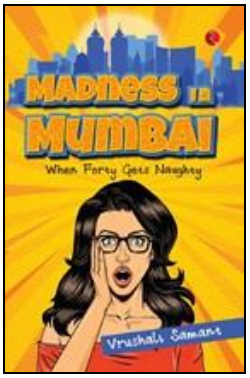

For centuries, Western philosophy has shaped global discourse, often eclipsing the profound contributions of Eastern thinkers. This book seeks to redress that balance, shining a light on India's rich philosophical systems and the remarkable minds behind them. Through accessible and engaging exploration, it reveals how the principles of Indian philosophy—from logic and ethics to metaphysics and self-realization—remain deeply relevant to the modern world.

Blending historical insight with contemporary reflection, Indian Philosophies Rediscovered reawakens the timeless wisdom of the East, reminding readers that civilization's true strength lies in its pursuit of knowledge, dialogue, and self-awareness.

Contributor Bio

Dr. Rajeev Kurapati is a U.S.-based physician, philosopher, and writer whose work bridges the realms of science, spirituality, and philosophy. Triple board-certified, he completed his fellowship in Integrative Medicine at the Andrew Weil Center for Integrative Medicine, University of Arizona. He also holds an MBA from the University of Missouri–Kansas City and an MA in Sanskrit.

Dr. Kurapati offers a deeply reflective perspective on the connection between health, human consciousness, and the wisdom of ancient Indian knowledge systems. Alongside his medical writings, he has authored books that explore the nature of identity, purpose, and well-being, blending modern scientific insight with timeless philosophical understanding.

Madness in Mumbai

When Forty Gets Naughty

Vrushali Samant's

Summary

Until forty, Monica Singh never put a foot out of line. A pampered Pali Hill socialite and the wife of a wealthy businessman, her world revolved around luxury, status, and comfort—everything except love. But when her husband abandons her for his "baby-popping, business-tripling" mistress, VP Sales Luckshmi, Monica's perfectly polished life collapses overnight.

Left with nothing but her wits and her camera, Monica rediscovers her first love—photography—and plunges headfirst into a madcap journey across Mumbai. Between tarot card readings, an unlikely gangster romance, a kidnapping, a car chase, a murder plot, and a very surly policeman, Monica's quest for independence spirals into chaos, comedy, and self-discovery.

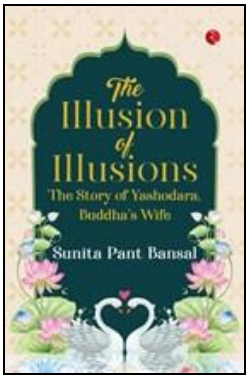

Equal parts hilarious, steamy, and suspenseful, Madness in Mumbai is a whip-smart adventure of reinvention and resilience—proof that sometimes you have to lose everything to find yourself in the city that never stops moving.

Contributor Bio

Vrushali Samant is the author of four novels, including Madness in Mumbai (Rupa Publications). Her previous book, Prime Time Crime (Vishwakarma Publications), has been optioned for a screen adaptation, while He Loves Me Not (Penguin Random House India) was featured at the MAMI Mumbai Film Festival's Word-to-Screen Market.

Her debut novel, Can't Die for Size Zero (Rupa Publications), became a runaway bestseller and earned her a year-long column with Marie Claire India titled "Big Girl in a Skinny World," part of a global initiative with contributors from New York, London, São Paulo, and Melbourne.

Vrushali continues to write stories that explore ambition, identity, and modern life with sharp wit and cinematic

The Illusion of Illusions

The Story of Yashodhara, Buddha's Wife

Sunita Pant Bansal

Summary

The Illusion of Illusions unveils the untold story of Princess Yashodhara, the wife of Prince Siddharth of Kapilvastu—known to the world as the Buddha. In this deeply moving retelling, Yashodhara emerges as a passionate, resilient, and fiercely independent woman whose forty-nine-year journey toward self-realization mirrors her husband's quest for enlightenment.

When Siddharth leaves behind his wife and newborn son to seek answers to humanity's greatest questions, he believes he is serving a higher purpose. But what of Yashodhara, left to face life's trials alone? While Siddharth becomes the Buddha, Yashodhara too embarks on her own path of awakening, one defined by silent strength, sacrifice, and grace.

Told from Yashodhara's perspective, The Illusion of Illusions is a powerful story of love, loss, and transformation—a testament to the courage of a woman who discovers enlightenment within herself and becomes an inspiration for generations to come.

The Trojan Horse

Sanjukta Nandy, Rupali Sebastian

Summary

Long before the time of Christ, the Trojan War became legend—its brilliance lying in a single, audacious strategy of deception and infiltration. Today, a new Trojan War is about to begin.

In the dense, mapless forests of Abujmarh, Chhattisgarh, lies LalTara—a ruthless criminal empire dealing in narcotics, weapons, and power. Its overlord, Bishen Rao, rules with fear and precision, untouchable even to the country's best law enforcement. Years ago, Special Agent Rakesh Srivastava dared to challenge him—and paid a heavy price. Now, his daughter, Isha Srivastava, carries the burden of his unfinished mission.

Armed with intelligence, instinct, and fury, Isha sets out to bring down Bishen Rao from within. Her weapon? A plan as old as war itself—the Trojan Horse. Aided by Sangha, Bishen's own niece and Isha's blood relative, she infiltrates the heart of LalTara. But the deeper she goes, the murkier the lines between duty and destruction become. Caught between loyalty, vengeance, and survival, Isha soon discovers that the greatest enemy may lie within.

The Minister

Will Firth, Stefan Boškovic

Summary

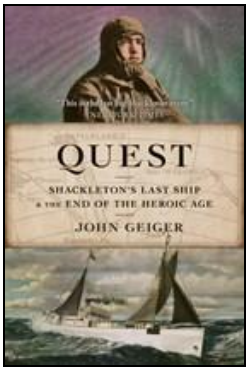

There is nothing easy about being the Minister of Culture of Montenegro—but the next nine days for Valentin Kovacevic will be especially difficult. During an artist's performance, he has accidentally killed her, and now, if he hopes to preserve both his position and his sanity, he must navigate the murky corridors of government bureaucracy, cultural expectations, and relentless family pressures.

The Minister, winner of the 2020 European Union Prize for Literature, is a darkly satirical political noir that exposes the harsh realities behind democratic "transitions." It reveals how the promises of reform can empower corrupt politicians and criminal networks, fuel nationalism, and wipe out the middle class. Sharp, unsettling, and bitingly relevant, it is a portrait of a society where truth is slippery, power is dangerous, and survival demands moral compromise.

Contributor Bio

Stefan Bošković was born in 1983 in Podgorica, Montenegro. His works include the short story collection Transparentne životinje (Transparent Animals, 2018) and the novel Šamaranje (Slap in the Face, 2014), which won the 2014 award for the best manuscript novel in Montenegro. In 2016, he received second prize at the Festival of European Short Stories for "Fashion and Friends." Bošković has also written scripts for a feature film, several short films, a sitcom series, and numerous documentaries.

Will Firth was born in 1965 in Newcastle, Australia, and studied German and Slavic languages in Canberra, Zagreb, and Moscow. He has lived in Berlin, Germany, since 1991, working as a translator of literature and the humanities from Russian, Macedonian, and all variants of Serbo-Croatian. His major recent translations include Andrej Nikolaidis's Till Kingdom Come, Faruk Šehić's Quiet Flows the Una, Miroslav Krleža's Journey to Russia, and Miloš Crnjanski's A Novel of London.

Quest

Shackleton's Last Ship & the End of the Heroic Age

John Geiger

Summary

“This is the last big Shackleton event” – New York Times

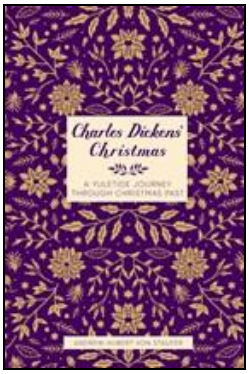

In June 2024, John Geiger led an international team that discovered the wreck of Sir Ernest Shackleton’s last ship, Quest, off the coast of Labrador where it struck ice and sank in 1962. That event captured global attention and renewed interest in the legendary explorer’s fatal last voyage.

This sweeping narrative takes readers from Shackleton’s early polar expeditions, including the famous Endurance calamity that demonstrated his spectacularly resilient brand of leadership, through to his last journey to Antarctica in 1922, during which he died of a heart attack aboard the Quest.

Geiger re-examines Shackleton’s triumphs, his testy relationships with rivals like Vilhjalmur Stefansson, and the Quest’s extraordinary posthumous legacy as it sailed into history—and finally to its resting place. Rich in adventure and anchored by contemporary exploration, Quest blends historical drama with cutting-edge discovery to illuminate a polar epic for a new generation.

Contributor Bio

John Geiger is CEO of the Royal Canadian Geographical Society and author of seven books including the international bestsellers Frozen in Time: The Fate of the Franklin Expedition.

Charles Dickens' Christmas

A Yuletide Journey through Christmas Past

Andrew Hubert von Staufer

Summary

"I will honour Christmas in my heart and try to keep it all the year." — Charles Dickens

Between Charles Dickens’ birth in 1812 and his death in 1870, Christmas transformed from a quiet family day into a bustling commercial celebration filled with cards, advertisements, pantomimes, and dazzling public displays.

Through Dickens’ writing, beloved family recipes, festive pantomimes, and his tours of America, Charles Dickens’ Christmas explores the sweeping social and technological changes of his lifetime that helped shape the modern Christmas — a spirit Dickens captured so perfectly in his work.

This festive season, step back in time with this charming collection and experience the magic of a Victorian Christmas through the eyes of one of literature’s greatest storytellers.

Contributor Bio

ANDREW HUBERT is an expert in the history of Christmas, with over 40 years’ involvement with exhibitions, TV & radio programmes. He co-founded ‘The Christmas Archives’ alongside his late wife Maria. Together they created literary-themed festive books to delight fans of classic authors such as Jane Austen and the Brontës, a series which Andrew is now updating and expanding.

Lost Cars of the 1960s

Giles Chapman

Summary

Sixty diverse cars. Sixty fascinating stories. Sixty contrasting specifications. One uniting factor: they're all forgotten, neglected, or misunderstood classics.

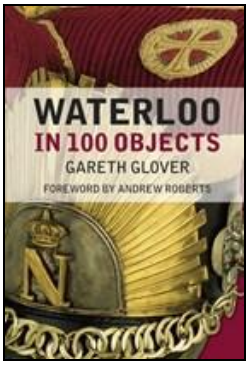

What car is that? Think you know it? Take another look—is it really what you remember? The 1960s may be celebrated as the cradle of the classic car, but these are the tantalizing ones that got away.

In Lost Cars of the 1960s, Giles Chapman presents a lineup of distinctive automobiles that quickly slipped into obscurity. Each car tells an unusual story—often with a surprising ending. This was a turbulent decade when bold new engine technologies were championed and then abandoned, design trends exploded overnight, and car buyers became more unpredictable than ever. Some of these cars fell victim to those shifts—while others were simply a bit too odd for their own good.

Lost Cars of the 1960s is the final installment in a trilogy that also includes Lost Cars of the 1940s and '50s

Contributor Bio

GILES CHAPMAN is an award-winning motoring writer. He has edited and written for numerous car magazines, and contributed to national newspapers. His books include My Dad Had One Of Those, Chapman's Car Compendium, Cars We Loved in the 1950s, 1960s, 1970s and 1980s, and 100 Cars Britain Can Be Proud Of.

Waterloo in 100 Objects (New edition)

Gareth Glover, Andrew Roberts

Summary

Explore the legacy of one of the greatest battles in military history—the Battle of Waterloo—through this finely crafted collection of objects, each telling its own story of that fateful day.

Bullet-pierced armor and dramatic battledress bring readers closer to the heart of the action, while the staggering death toll is made all the more poignant by the personal mementos left behind.

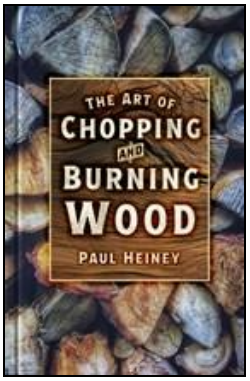

From the grim reality of teeth taken from the fallen and turned into dentures to the romance of Napoleon's steeds, swashbuckling swords, and elegant ballgowns, each object offers fresh insight into the extraordinary events of June 18, 1815.

This is a fascinating journey through one hundred objects—both rare and familiar—forming a unique testament to the enduring significance of the Battle of Waterloo, two centuries on.

The Art of Chopping and Burning Wood (New edition)

Paul Heiney

Summary

How to get sparks back in your life—and keep them burning.

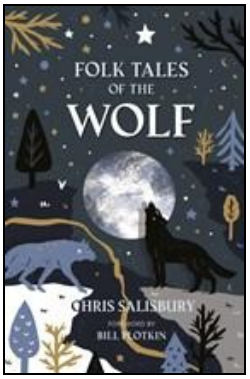

The blaze of a log fire on a cold night speaks to the heart in a way no other flame can. It has character and ever-changing form; vibrant color and balletic movement. Fire transformed the way humans lived—it was the flame that fueled evolution itself—but now this primal force finds itself fading in a modern world of microwaves, induction stoves, and central heating. The flames are slowly going out: homes are built without fireplaces, bonfires are banned, and schoolchildren are no longer allowed to use Bunsen burners. Yet the sight of a flame remains as evocative as ever.

The Art of Chopping and Burning Wood seeks to rekindle that connection—to inspire and to teach—exploring the history of fire and revealing the wonder, beauty, and spirit that a simple flame can conjure.

Folk Tales of the Wolf

Chris Salisbury, Bill Plotkin

Summary

'What a wonderful book. Wolves through a prism of love, understanding and fascination.' – Derek Gow, author and ecologist

Wolves have been hunted to extinction in many countries, clung on in isolated populations near human communities and thrived in remote wilderness: theirs is a story of adaption and survival that is not yet finished.

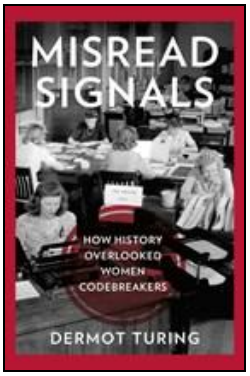

Once prevalent in Britain, the wolf has been much maligned and persecuted, but it has also been missed, and the 'return of the wolf' in this compendium of tales mirrors the aspiration to reintroduce this ancient species to Britain's recovering wild places.

The wolf has wended its way into our collective imagination through traditional narratives around the world. Known as shapeshifter, this animal has weaved itself into our folklore for centuries; from the compelling protagonist and agent of change to the wily trickster and persecutor, and today as a totem of hope for the rewilding movement.

Storyteller and outdoorsman Chris Salisbury ensures the legacy of this beloved creature lives on in an unforgettable collection of wolfish tales to tell out loud.

Misread Signals

How History Overlooked Women Codebreakers

Dermot Turing

Summary

"It is inspirational." – Helen Fry, author of Women in Intelligence

"An important and exciting contribution to history." – Clare Mulley, author of Agent Zo

Bletchley Park is often remembered as a world of brilliant male intellectuals—Alan Turing, William Tutte, and John Tiltman—supported by women in clerical roles. These men worked on the formidable Enigma and Lorenz cipher systems, helping to turn the tide of the war in the Allies' favor.

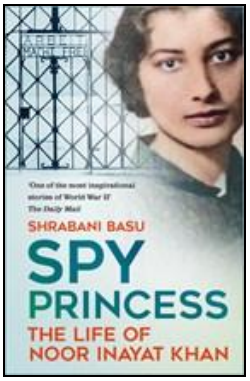

But that's not the full story. Women were not just secretaries or assistants; many were accomplished codebreakers in their own right. And their work wasn't limited to Bletchley, to Britain, or even to World War II.

Misread Signals reveals the remarkable women whose contributions have long been overlooked: Margaret Rock, who solved Enigma and other machine problems; Agnes Driscoll, the U.S. Navy's pioneering codebreaker; and Asta Friedrichs, who after the war became a key source on German Foreign Office cryptography. These women—and many others like them—helped shape the course of intelligence history, only to be written out of it.

Who were they? What di...

The Life of Noor Inayat Khan

Shrabani Basu

Summary

"One of the most inspirational stories of World War II … Reading this book is like watching a butterfly trapped in a net." — Daily Mail

This is the riveting story of Noor Inayat Khan, a descendant of Indian royalty—Tipu Sultan, the Tiger of Mysore—who became a British secret agent for the Special Operations Executive (SOE) during World War II.

In this updated twentieth-anniversary edition of Spy Princess, Shrabani Basu tells the moving story of Noor's extraordinary life—from her birth in Moscow, where her father was a Sufi preacher, to her capture by the Germans. Noor was one of only three female SOE agents to be awarded the George Cross. Even under torture, she revealed nothing—not even her real name.

Held in solitary confinement, her hands and feet chained together, Noor was starved and beaten, yet the Germans could not break her spirit. Ten months after her capture, she was taken to Dachau concentration camp. On September 13, 1944, she was executed. Her final word was "Liberté."

Contributor Bio

SHRABANI BASU is a journalist and Sunday Times best-selling author. Her books include the critically acclaimed The Mystery of the Parsee Lawyer and Victoria & Abdul (now a major Oscar-nominated motion picture starring Dame Judi Dench). She is the founder of the Noor Inayat Khan Memorial Trust and an ambassador for the RAF Museum. She is a frequent commentator on Indian history and Empire on radio and television, and has been awarded an honorary doctorate from the University of London for services to literature.

Sherlock Holmes (New edition)

Inspiring Lives

Roger Johnson, Jean Upton, Gyles Brandreth

Summary

This miscellany delves into the fascinating and enigmatic world of Sherlock Holmes—his place in literary history and how he became the iconic, timeless character loved by millions.

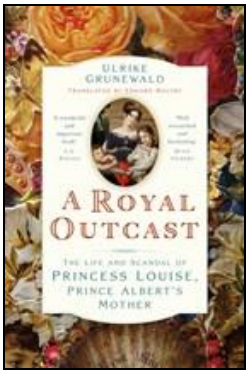

Packed with facts, trivia, and quotes from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's legendary stories, it also explores the weird and wonderful characters who inhabit his pages. Do you know the difference between a Penang lawyer and a tide-waiter? And if you think a "life preserver" is a cork-filled flotation device, how does Wilson Kemp manage to fit one into the sleeve of his jacket?

Sherlock Holmes: Inspiring Lives is a lighthearted and highly informative collection—perfect for both devoted Sherlockians and those newly discovering the world of 221B Baker Street.

Contributor Bio

ROGER JOHNSON and JEAN UPTON have been members of the Sherlock Holmes Society for many years and have both regularly contributed to its popular journal—a publication that Roger himself edits. Other Sherlockian publications they have written for include The Baker Street Journal (American), The Passengers' Log (Australian), The Musgrave Papers (British), and The Ritual (British).

Having met through a shared long-term interest in Sherlock Holmes, Roger and Jean's wedding was attended by Dame Jean Conan Doyle, daughter of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Together they serve as joint custodians of the 221B sitting room at The Sherlock Holmes Pub in London.

A Royal Outcast

The Life and Scandal of Princess Louise, Prince Albertâ's Mother

Ulrike Grunewald, Edward Maltby, Sarah

Summary

"Fascinating, rigorously researched, and vividly told... [a] groundbreaking biography." — Dr. Anna Whitelock

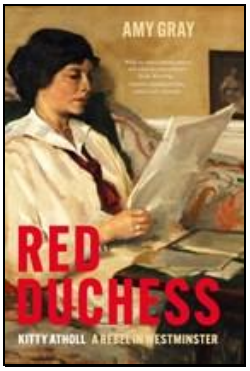

Princess Louise played a crucial role in the rise of the House of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, yet while her son Albert entered history, she was erased from it. Based on a decade of original research, this is the first English-language biography to explore her life and legacy—and the scandal the royal family tried to bury.

Married off to the older Duke Ernst of Saxe-Coburg-Saalfeld, Louise bore two sons, Ernst and Albert. But her unhappy marriage led to her banishment, divorce, and the loss of her children. She died alone at just thirty-one, her reputation destroyed by court gossip and political intrigue. Was she a fallen woman—or a victim of royal machinations? And was Prince Albert truly Ernst's son?

Louise's story is one of scandal, tragedy, and secrets that continue to shape the House of Windsor today.

Red Duchess

Kitty Atholl, A Rebel in Westminster

Amy Gray

Summary

A pioneering female politician who believed women didn't need the vote.
A conservative who shared platforms with communists.
A shy public speaker who traveled the world championing Spanish refugees.

The formidable Duchess of Atholl was full of contradictions.

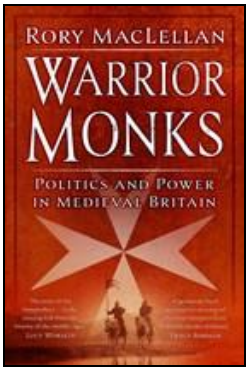

Born into an ancient Scottish family and married to a philandering duke, Kitty Atholl rose above the constraints of class and convention to become a tireless advocate for women and children. By the time she was elected as Scotland's first female MP in 1923, she was already one of the most prominent women in the country—and she would soon shock Westminster with her outspoken rebellions against her own government.

She stood with Spanish refugees and challenged fascism, visited war zones, campaigned alongside political opponents, and defied tyrants—all while writing her own political playbook.

In Red Duchess, Kitty Atholl's extraordinary life finally takes center stage—a compelling story of courage, conviction, and a woman who refused to play by the rules.

Warrior Monks

Politics and Power in Medieval Britain

Rory MacLellan

Summary

298: Alexander of Wells watches William Wallace's army across the field at Falkirk. Hours later, he is dead—cut down by the Scots.

1381: Hated collector of the Poll Tax, Robert Hales, is dragged from the Tower of London and executed, his head paraded through the streets before being placed on a spike atop London Bridge.

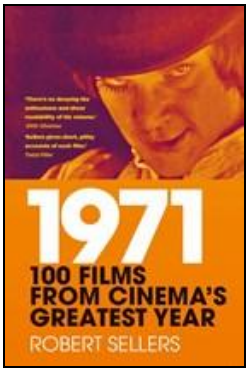

1490s: John Kendal sends coded letters to Perkin Warbeck's supporters and hires an astrologer to murder Henry VII.

These men were not scheming lords—they were Knights Hospitaller. Commonly known as warrior monks, the Hospitallers were a religious and military order sworn to defend the Holy Land, supposedly above war and politics. Yet in Europe they became deeply entangled in local power, taking up positions as royal commanders, administrators, and politicians. They led armies, sat in Parliament, and joined court intrigues and civil wars.

While the Knights Templar have long captured the public imagination, the Hospitallers were just as influential—yet their story has remained largely untold, until now. From the English invasion of Ireland to Henry VIII's Dissolution of the...

100 Films from Cinema's Greatest Year

Robert Sellers

Summary

1971 was a landmark year for cinema.

Woody Allen, Robert Altman, Dario Argento, Ingmar Bergman, Stanley Kubrick, Sergio Leone, George Lucas, Sam Peckinpah, Roman Polanski, Nicolas Roeg, and Steven Spielberg — among many others — were behind the camera, while an extraordinary array of stars filled the screen: Warren Beatty, Marlon Brando, Michael Caine, Julie Christie, Sean Connery, Faye Dunaway, Clint Eastwood, Jane Fonda, Dustin Hoffman, Steve McQueen, Jack Nicholson, Al Pacino, and Vanessa Redgrave all featured in films released that year.

The remarkable artistic flowering of New Hollywood was just beginning. The old guard was fading, the new guard rising. With cinema attendance in decline by the late 1960s and studios struggling to gauge box-office success, executives granted unprecedented freedom to a new generation of filmmakers — and the results changed cinema forever.

Drawing on interviews with cast and crew, bestselling author Robert Sellers explores this pivotal year in film history — a moment when Hollywood and British cinema alike stood at the thrilling crossroads of revoluti...

Contributor Bio

Robert Sellers was born in Leeds in 1965. After graduating from drama school, he dreamed of a career on stage and screen. Alas, aside from a few walk-on roles, the world has been spared his acting — perhaps for the best. Instead, he turned to film journalism, reasoning that if he couldn't appear in the movies he loved, he might as well write about them.

Since the early 1990s, he has written numerous biographies and books on film, television, and popular culture, including the bestselling Hellraisers (Preface, 2009). His book The Battle for Bond was the subject of controversial litigation and was, for a time, banned in Britain.

Highland Folk Tales (New edition)

Bob Pegg

Summary

The Highlands of Scotland are rich in traditional stories. Even today, in the modern world of the internet and supermarkets, old legends dating as far back as the times of the Gaels, Picts and Vikings are still told at night around the fireside.

They are tales of the daoine sìth – the fairy people – and their homes in the green hills; of great and gory battles; of encounters with the last wolves in Britain; of solitary ghosts; and of supernatural creatures like the selkie, the mermaid, and the Fuath, Scotland's own Bigfoot.

In a vivid journey through the Highland landscape, from the towns and villages to the remotest places, by mountains, cliffs, peatland and glen, storyteller and folklorist Bob Pegg takes the reader along old and new roads to places where legend and landscape are inseparably linked.

Contributor Bio

In a career lasting over half a century, storyteller, musician and songwriter BOB PEGG has performed in venues ranging from a Viking longhouse in the wilds of Iceland to the Royal Festival Hall in London. For sixteen years he was an arts worker in the Highlands of Scotland, organising the Tales at Martinmas festival and the Merry Dancers Storytelling Project. He has written a number of books on the themes of folklore and folk tales - three of them for The History Press - and the stories in his broad repertoire reflect the places he has visited and the cultures he has encountered.

Norwegian Folk Tales

Georgiana Keable

Summary

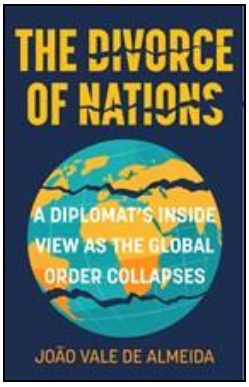

'I summoned my courage, took a hammock and some maps and set out to walk in the stunning landscapes of Lofoten and beyond. For years I had wondered if it would still be possible to go out and collect stories. Raw stories that had been passed on by word of mouth since before people could read.'

Norway's tiny population has a vibrant storytelling tradition – myths, legends and sagas from bogs and snow-capped peaks, some lyrical, others outlandish, all united by their connection to a harsh but splendid nature.

In this collection by wandering storyteller Georgiana Keable, you will find beloved classics retold for modern times, alongside stories never printed before.

Contributor Bio

GEORGIANA KEABLE is a pioneer for the renaissance of storytelling and she likes adventures. She founded 'Fortellerhuset' (The Storytelling House), the Norwegian Storytelling Festival and Storytelling Radio, and received Oslo's Artists Prize for an outstanding contribution to cultural life. Leading work for biodiversity and storytelling, she has taken thousands of teenagers on the Norwegian Pilgrims Way and on botanical story adventures, prompting 12-year-olds to spontaneously hug trees and learn their names. In the remote Lofoten Islands, collecting stories by day and sleeping in a hammock, every stranger had a tale of connection with nature. Her prizewinning book The Natural Storyteller was published by Hawthorn Press, who then commissioned Fairytales, Families and Forests (2023). She lives in Tangen, Norway.

The Divorce of Nations

A Diplomat's Inside View as the Global Order Collapses

JoÃ£o Vale de Almeida

Summary

Today, we are witnessing one of the most dangerous geopolitical moments of modern times — a world heralded by loud populist and nationalist voices, steeped in uncertainty. But how did the nations of the world come to such a predicament? Is the international liberal order doomed?

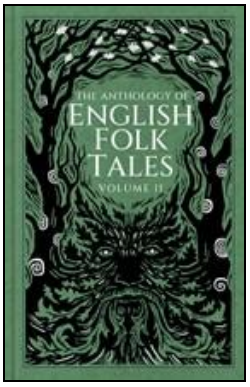

Drawing on decades of experience in Brussels, Washington, New York, and London, one of the world's foremost diplomats lifts the veil on contemporary foreign affairs, tracing how nations have been sleepwalking toward a "Divorce of Nations" — and the steps that might yet mend it.

Having met many of the most consequential global leaders of the 21st century, Ambassador Vale de Almeida offers candid reflections on figures such as Barack Obama, George W. Bush, Tony Blair, Boris Johnson, Angela Merkel, Nicolas Sarkozy, Emmanuel Macron, Hu Jintao, and Donald Trump. He also recalls multiple encounters with Vladimir Putin, highlighting the early warning signs and grievances that foreshadowed Russia's incursions into Georgia and Crimea — precursors to the full-scale invasion of Ukraine in 2022.

Other pivotal moments explor...

One Man and His Hog (New edition)

The Story of a Pig Called Alice

Paul Heiney

Summary

"To call Alice 'just another pig' would be the gravest insult."

Alice, a Large Black pig, was Paul Heiney's best friend, confidante, and therapist. This is the story of their tempestuous relationship, from her arrival as a "large, black, and expensive" Christmas present for his wife to her final days as the beloved matriarch of his traditional farm.

In One Man and His Hog, Heiney shares the joys, mishaps, and lessons of life with Alice. Along the way, he explains why lop-eared pigs are the best to raise (they can't see you coming), how to escape a sow that's decided you're her next mate (throw a bucket and run), and why pigs might just have this whole "life" thing figured out better than we do.

Contributor Bio

Paul Heiney is a writer, broadcaster, and journalist. He has presented ITV's Countrywise and the BBC's Watchdog, and has also worked as an organic farmer, using heavy horses to work his land—an experience that inspired his long-running column in The Times. He is the author of several bestselling books, including Do Cats Have Belly Buttons? (The History Press, 2008).

Mayfly Season

Matthias Jugler, Jo Heinrich

Summary

What if the child you mourned had never died? A harrowing family story about forced adoption, a sinister chapter in East German history, and father-son relationships expressed through a shared love of nature and fishing.

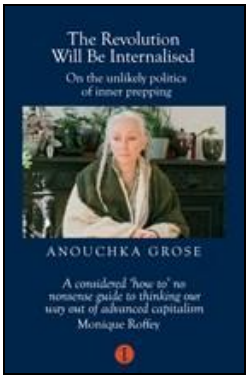

1978, near Leipzig, East Germany. For Katrin and Hans, every parent's worst nightmare comes true when they are told that their newborn baby Daniel has died. Amidst the shock and horror of the news, Katrin doubts what the doctors have told her, feeling that they are lying and that Daniel is still alive: doubts which Hans refuses to acknowledge, and which lead to the end of their marriage.

After the collapse of the GDR, happy in a new relationship, Hans receives an unexpected phone call which prompts him to investigate the past. His research, which takes him deep into recent history, is met with resistance and silence at every turn, until at last a fishing expedition enables the family to start healing from their trauma.

Mayfly Season is an extraordinary portrait of totalitarian state cruelty, the promise of a new beginning and the infinite healing capacity shared by huma...

The Revolution Will Be Internalised

On the unlikely politics of inner prepping

Anouchka Grose

Summary

Anouchka Grose, a leading psychotherapist specialising in climate anxiety, was in general happy with her London life which included a glamorous partner, a teenager, even a spare room. But, shaken by the apparent futility of Western activism in the face of inertia and corruption, she began to question her choices, both material and emotional. Instead of seeking outward answers she went inwards, creating an alternative Eat, Pray, Love for the polycrisis. Inner prepping, or altering your private, interior world as a form of civil resistance, is an oblique way of coming at the classic feminist idea that the personal is political. Grose takes us on an exhilarating, funny, erudite and ultimately uplifting tour of the practices she tried out, including ego-dismantling retreats, animal communication, and tantra, offering myriad ways to revolutionise ourselves and others.

Contributor Bio

Anouchka Grose is a London-based psychoanalyst, writer, lecturer and climate campaigner. Her nine published books include A Guide to Eco-Anxiety: how to protect the planet and your mental health, Uneasy Listening: Notes on Hearing and Being Heard and Fashion: a Manifesto. She has contributed to The Guardian, Granta, Harpers Bazaar, and Radio 4, as well as appearing in Josh Appignanesi's documentary My Extinction.

Perfect Pitch

How Kansas City Became the Heart of American Soccer and Landed the World Cup

Nate Bukaty, Rustin Dodd, Matt Besler

Summary

When the World Cup comes to the United States in the summer of 2026, it will be the first time the tournament has been played in America in 32 years. It will also be the first time the tournament is held in Kansas City, Missouri,

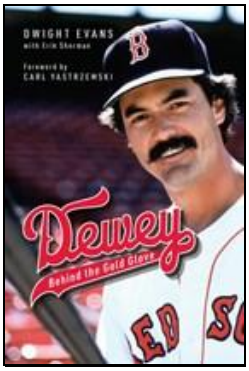

For Kansas City, it will be one of the biggest moments in the city's history. It will also be the culmination of a decades-long story: How Kansas City, an overlooked city in the Midwest, became the heart of American soccer.

In Perfect Pitch, Nate Bukaty and Rustin Dodd chronicle this surprising and delightful evolution, tracing the history of soccer in Kansas City and how that history laid the foundation for a group of local sports executives, city officials, politicians, and rabid fans to lead an improbable bid to host the World Cup.

A true underdog tale, Kansas City's emergence as a soccer capital is symbolic of the larger national story of how America grew from a soccer-skeptical nation to a country with its own unique and vibrant footballing culture. Featuring exclusive behind-the-scenes access to key figures who spurred this soccer renaissance, Perfect Pit...

Dewey

Behind the Gold Glove

Dwight Evans, Erik Sherman

Summary

Finalist for the 2024 Casey Award and selected as a 'Best Baseball Book of 2024' by Sports Collector's Digest

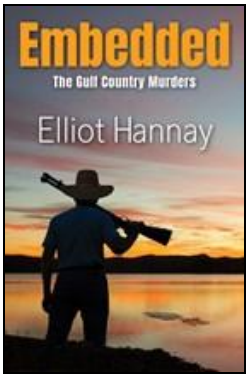

For twenty Major League seasons, the name Dwight Evans was synonymous with sterling defense and a potent bat. A Red Sox legend, he played in 2,505 games in Boston – second only to Carl Yastrzemski – and hit 379 home runs for the club, trailing only Yastrzemski and Ted Williams. Nobody hit more home runs in the American League and no player had more extra base hits in all of baseball than the man affectionately known as Dewey did during the decade of the 1980s, but it was his rifle-like right arm – and eight Gold Glove Awards – that established him as the best right fielder of his era.

In Dewey, Evans and baseball historian Erik Sherman take Red Sox fans back to a glorious time in baseball, filled with unforgettable World Series appearances in 1975 and 1986, legendary teammates including fellow outfield mainstays Jim Rice and Fred Lynn, and some of the most memorable games in MLB history.

Yet for all his greatness on the baseball field, the immense challenges that Evans and his f...

Dwight 'Dewey' Evans was one of the best outfielders in baseball throughout his career and one of the most popular Red Sox players of all-time. Evans was a three-time All Star, eight-time Gold Glove Award winner, won two Silver Slugger Awards, and was a key player on two legendary American League championship Boston clubs. When Evans retired from the game, he was ranked among the Red Sox all-time leaders in games played, home runs, and runs batted in. Evans was inducted into the Boston Red Sox Hall of Fame in 2000. He and his wife, Susan, have given a great deal of time and support to the Neurofibromatosis Northeast charity organization.

The Doughboys Comic

Mitch and Wiger Chew America Crisis On Infinite Girths

Tiger Wiger, Fred Stresing, Meg Casey, Mike Mitchell, Alex Firer

Summary

The beloved fast food review podcast is now a comic book!* WOW! Tiger Wiger and Mike Mitchell' s beloved Doughboys podcast comes to the page! When a cop takes one bite of Wiger and Mitch' s leftovers, he immediately dies, causing our duo to go on the run, and on the bun, as they make their way across America, hiding at In N' Gout, Nacho Dame, Little Romulus' , and other parodies of fast food chains as delicious as the puns are rough! The comic features guest stars such as Evan Susser, Jon Gabrus, and many much more! WOW! Written by Alex Firer (Rick and Morty: Rick' s New Hat, The Onion), and drawn by Fred C. Stresing (Invader Zim, Rick and Morty: Meseeks PI), and overseen by our beloved Doughboys and less beloved Commissioner. It' s like a Doughboys animated series, only better! Paranoid Storytelling

Judson Merrill

Summary

After Judson Merrill publishes a story that becomes fodder for conspiracy theorists and fuels a violent clash, he's desperate to write something—anything—that rises above our toxic online hysteria. When he discovers a daring and brilliant researcher studying the poisonous effects of conspiracy theories, Merrill is convinced she holds the key to diagnosing America's demented culture. But shortly after she agrees to an interview, she vanishes, and any possible diagnosis vanishes with her. Merrill's search for her takes him across Europe and turns up a trail of unsettling research and confounding clues. The story he pieces together offers an explosive explanation for our collective sickness and reveals the many ways in which our media, our communications, and our very beliefs have become fatally diseased. If he can unravel the sprawling conspiracy behind our affliction, he'll still have to convince a paranoid world in which everyone believes what they want to believe.

Contributor Bio

Judson Merrill has long been inspired by the way the novel began—as a fraud and a thief, stealing and repurposing popular storytelling forms. Merrill's fiction seeks to make the ways the internet has changed storytelling visible. Unafraid of big, societal questions, he is attracted to dynamic collaborations. He has made an art book with renowned artist Rebecca Goodale and is currently co-producing a film he wrote (Cult College) about the anxious and uncertain future bearing down on young people and their desperate attempts to navigate a hyper-online world and the destruction of the institutions meant to support them. A graduate of Brown University and Brooklyn College's MFA in Fiction, Merrill's work engages with our most pressing questions while also exposing how form impacts how we process information and make sense of the world.

The Turk at the Door

Luther, Islam, and the Fate of Christendom in the 16th Century

Adam Francisco, Adam S. Francisco

Summary

In the first half of the 16th century, Western Christendom stood at a crossroads. The Ottoman Empire, led by sultans who claimed the mantle of the caliphate, pressed deep into Europe, while within its own borders the unity of the church and society in general fractured in the wake of the Reformation. The Turk at the Door explores this convergence of empires, ideas, and fears through the eyes of Martin Luther, who viewed the Turks not merely as a geopolitical and religious force but as both the rod of God's anger and the Devil's last great assault against Christ's church. In sermons, tracts, and books Luther offered an interpretation of the times and advice for the future—one that rejected crusade, refined the concept of just war, and rooted Christian endurance in faith rather than violence. Historian and theologian Adam S. Francisco brings to life the world Luther inhabited. Bridging the gap between academic scholarship and accessible narrative, The Turk at the Door reveals a reformer who, amid the terrors of his time, articulated a theology that continues to speak to ours.

Contributor Bio

Adam S. Francisco, DPhil (Oxford) is Director of Academics at 1517. He is author of a number of books and articles on the subjects of Islam and Christian apologetics and translator of a number of Luther's Latin and German works on the Turks, Islam, and the Qur'an.

Luther and the Lion

A Narnian Catechism

Samuel Schuldheisz, Samuel Schuldheisz

Summary

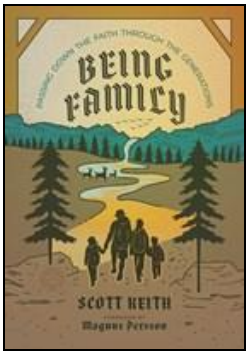

What would happen if Aslan came bounding out of Narnia and began teaching your confirmation class or bible study? What if Martin Luther could've traveled from Wittenberg through a wardrobe into Narnia while writing The Small Catechism?

That's exactly what you'll find in Luther and the Lion, the story where the wisdom of Martin Luther's theology meets the whimsy of C.S. Lewis's storytelling, where the Christian mind teams up with the magic of Narnia for an enchanting exploration of the Chrisitan faith, and where Christian instruction and imagination are not contradictions, but close companions.

Luther and the Lion weaves together the imagination of C.S. Lewis's The Lion, the Witch, and the Wardrobe and the instruction of Martin Luther's Small Catechism. Readers are invited to share in an adventure of Scripture, storytelling, and an imaginative rediscovery of the teachings of the Small Catechism alongside the stories of Narnia. Two great authors. Two classic books. One epic, true story of Good News for you in Jesus, the true untamed Lion of Judah, full of grace and goodness.

Contributor Bio

Samuel Schuldheisz is husband of Natasha, father of Zoe and Jonah, a regular online contributor and fellow at 1517, and professor of the 1517 Academy series on The Inklings. He currently serves as pastor at Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church in Milton, WA. When he is not reading and writing about the Inklings, Imaginative Apologetics, and the crossroads of theology, literature, and the imagination, you can find him hanging out among or hiking through the trees of the Pacific Northwest.

Being Family

Passing Down the Faith through the Generations

Scott Leonard Keith , Magnus Persson , Scott L. Keith, Magnus Persson

Summary

The Christian family isn't a brand. It's a calling.

In Being Family, Dr. Scott Keith offers a compelling vision of what it means to live out the Christian faith through the daily realities of family life. Drawing from Scripture, the Lutheran tradition, and pastoral experience, Keith reminds readers that the home is not a detour from discipleship—it's the very place where God shows up.

With warmth, clarity, and candor, Keith explores the vocations of father, mother, grandparent, child, and friend, showing how faith is passed down not through programs or perfection, but through repentance, forgiveness, and love. This is not a book of parenting techniques. It's a theological and practical guide to embracing your calling—even when it's messy.

Whether you're a parent, grandparent, pastor, or simply someone trying to live faithfully in your relationships, Being Family offers gospel-centered encouragement and a much-needed reminder: you don't have to be impressive. Just present.

Because God is at work—even in your ordinary.

Contributor Bio

Scott Keith is the Executive Director of 1517. He is a co-host of The Thinking Fellows Podcast and a contributor to 1517 and Christ Hold Fast. He is also the author of Being Dad: Father as a Picture of God's Grace. He earned his doctorate from Foundation House Oxford, under the sponsorship of the Graduate Theological Foundation, studying under Dr. James A. Nestingen.

Memoirs of a Psychobiologist

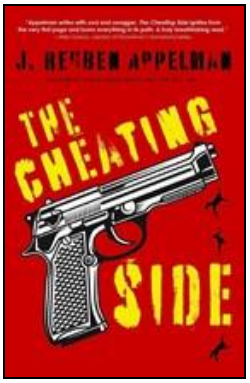

John Staddon

Summary

The Englishman: Memoirs of a Psychobiologist by John Staddon is a reflective and often witty autobiography that traces the author' s unconventional journey from wartime London to academic life in the United States. The early chapters recount his childhood adventures, including quirky schooldays and a stint in colonial Africa, all of which shaped his worldview. The memoir then shifts focus to his academic path, detailing his immersion in biology, behavioral psychology, and the influence of thinkers like B.F. Skinner. Staddon explores complex scientific ideas— like animal learning, choice theory, and interval timing— in an accessible, nontechnical style, peppered with personal anecdotes and philosophical musings. It' s part coming-of-age tale, part intellectual exploration, and part love letter to the scientific method.

Contributor Bio

John Staddon is James B. Duke Professor of Psychology, and Professor of Biology Emeritus, at Duke University. He got his PhD in Experimental Psychology at Harvard University and is the author of more than 200 research papers and books. His published books include Scientific Method: How Science Works, Fails to Work or Pretends to Work (2016), Adaptive Dynamics: The Theoretical Analysis of Behavior (2001), Adaptive Behavior and Learning 2nd Edition (2016), The New Behaviorism: Foundations of Behavioral Science 3rd Edition (2021) and Science in an Age of Unreason (2022). He was profiled in the Wall Street Journal in January 2021 as a commentator on the current problems of science.

The Cheating Side

J Reuben Appelman

Summary

"Appelman writes with soul and swagger. The Cheating Side ignites from the very first page and burns everything in its path. A truly breathtaking read."

—Alex Gansa, creator of Showtime's Homeland series.

When Idaho private investigator Jimmy Chinden's murder investigation threatens a land deal worth millions, the politically protected Aryan mob comes gunning for his family—but the old money outlaws might be outgunned.

From the cheating side of Boise in Garden City, where Idahoans hide their dirtiest secrets, empty-nesting private investigator Jimmy Chinden is tracking a stolen 1961 Impala when he follows a column of smoke into the sagebrush to discover the vehicle—on fire, and with a body in the trunk.

The victim is a reviled swindler, who Jimmy suspects murdered his mother after bilking her out of the no-tell motel she owned. The body's discovery awakens generational demons and sets off a chain of dark events as Jimmy's theft case turns into a murder investigation, threatening to upend a land deal worth millions and putting Jimmy's family at risk as North Idaho white supremacists and t...

The Redux of Sam Murdoch

Mary Kendall

Summary

Sam Murdoch fractured his life into bits and is in dire need of a redux.

While stuck in a midlife meltdown with a broken marriage, angry offspring and a crumbling career, Sam stumbles upon a long-buried family secret: the grandfather he idolized once shot a man. Desperate for an escape (and some answers), he hits the open road in a beat-up Volvo station wagon with his eccentric college buddy, Godfrey, on a quest for truth.

After some meandering through a throwback America of old-time general stores, small-town square dances, vintage diners and quirky characters, the journey takes an unexpected and dark turn in a town called Middlevale. Thrown into a face-off with superstitious and maybe unhinged townsfolk, Sam's little adventure to solve riddles about his family history has shifted to something else altogether.

Amid Middlevale's corn shocks and scythes, Sam must fight to find his path forward.

Dr. Gnoll

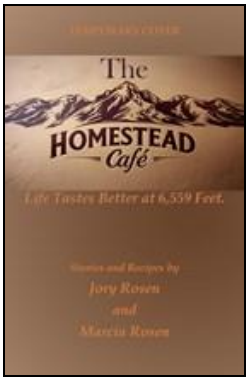

Coy Kissee, Geoff Habiger

Summary

The name is Dagger. Flint Dagger. As codename Quartz, an agent of M.O.U.N.T.A.I.N. (the Ministry of Unorthodox Natural Talents and Information-Nabbing), I'm regularly tasked with the most difficult, world-saving assignments, which I always complete with grace and panache. (And successfully, I might add. Is the world still here? You're welcome.) My latest mission briefing from "D": The nefarious Dr. Gnoll is building a machine that will give him power over all magic on Ados. Unfortunately, both a rival agent - Maxine Charisma (don't smirk at me like that) - and Dr. Gnoll's henchgnolls are already en route to the location of the MacGuffin Rod, an artifact that Dr. Gnoll needs to complete his plans. You must secure the MacGuffin Rod at all costs and prevent Dr. Gnoll from activating his machine. To assist you, Kew, the head of the Ministry's magic division, has outfitted you with the latest magical tools, including a magical clockwork horse to speed you on your journey. The future of all magic is at stake, so godsspeed. A noble steed. A sexy rival. A dangerous artifact. A bunch of incom...

The Homestead Cafe

Life Tastes Better at 6,559 Feet

Marcia Rosen, Jory Rosen

Summary

Every great café has a story.

For The Homestead Café, the story begins at the base of the Sandia Mountains, where locals, families, and travelers gather for good food, warm drinks, and one of New Mexico's most beautiful views.

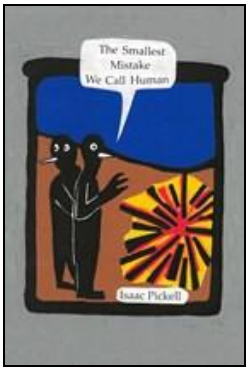

This cookbook is a celebration of that place and the spirit behind it. In addition, the book features a collection of fictional short stories based on real people who helped to inspire many of these recipes and the love of family. They will give you a glimpse into the past that helped the food and the passions that drive us all today.

Inside these pages are the recipes that have helped turn a simple café into a community gathering spot--from comforting breakfasts and fresh-baked pastries to hearty sandwiches and bold Southwestern flavors inspired by New Mexico's love of green chile. Many of the dishes draw from family traditions, while others were created in the café kitchen, tested and refined as friends and guests gathered around the table.

You'll find Homestead favorites like Signature Homestead Breakfast Burrito, Green Chile Stew, Chicken Picata with Balsamic C...

The Smallest Mistake We Call Human

Isaac Pickell

Summary

Isaac Pickell writes from the middle of things: the tensions between Blackness and Jewishness, between loss and inheritance, between being seen and being claimed. But these poems don't search for wholeness so much as they honor the seams—the complicated, unresolved places that keep our lives together.

Grief runs through. Much of it is personal: parents aging, partners wavering, friends dying, old selves discarded. But some of it is inherited—grief for everything America never let become possible, for the history that shaped us but won't hold us, for language that never quite fits. Haunted by economics like redlining, eviction, and scarcity, the book also confronts the grief of precarity.

This is not a book of coming to terms, it's a book that sits beside you while you try to live with what you know. It asks how we carry loss, how we recognize love, and how we move forward when we're still not sure where we stand. The Smallest Mistake We Call Human is a sharp, tender meditation on identity, family, and the contradictions that make us.

The Hanged Man

Katherine Conner

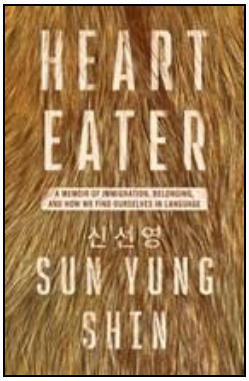

Summary

Against the surreal landscape of the deep south, three Lebanese-American sisters encounter their missing mother six years after she vanished from their lives. Georgia, now a ghost tour guide in the French Quarter, spots her mother's face in the crowd of tour-goes. Virginia, a receptionist at a mental health facility in Mississippi, is sure her mother walks in one day and asks to be committed. Louise, a relay operator in Birmingham, hears her mother's voice late one night on the line. Each of these encounters is fleeting, almost ghostly, ambiguous. Is it really her, their mother, the woman who packed their grandmother's trousseau and walked out of their lives without a word all those years ago? Or is she a vision, a ghost, no more than a memory?

Steeped in the Southern Gothic tradition, in the vein of Flannery O'Connor, William Faulkner, and Jesmyn Ward, this atmospheric collection of linked stories explores our complex relationship with loss and our desperate search for meaning.

Heart Eater

A Memoir of Immigration, Belonging, and How We Find Ourselves in Language

Sun Yung Shin

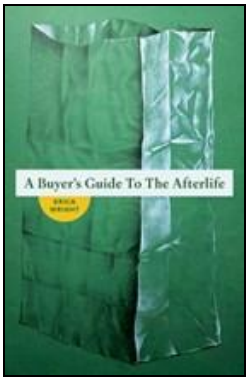

Summary

Heart Eater traces the author's childhood and how she went from being a nameless, abandoned nine-month-old baby in Seoul, South Korea to, as an adult, becoming an award-winning Asian American author who writes in multiple genres. The book is made of short essays, or "field notes," that explore moments and experiences in the author's life that made her pay extra attention to the words being used.

Each titled "field note" memorializes and reflects on encounters with language regarding race, ethnicity, migration, kinship, citizenship, gender, class, that would eventually become the foundation of the kind of writer she would become. Her public school education, her upbringing in the Roman Catholic Church, and nearly everything she experienced during her American childhood contributed to her ability to answer the question that has obsessed her since she was young, "What does it mean to be American?"

A Buyer's Guide to the Afterlife

Erica Wright

Summary

Public pools shuttered for storms. Game shows for endangered species. The teeth of a fine snail. A Buyer's Guide to the Afterlife began for poet Erica Wright as a response to archival images from the American Museum of Natural History. Imagine discovering so many new species in the 16th century, then losing so many in the 21st. The poems in Wright's new collection consider the beauty and fragility of ecosystems, some turning inward, to the animalness of the human body. Through pregnancy, loss, and parenthood, these poems respond to the feats of strength called upon by motherhood as well as the mental gymnastics required to start a family in the face of ecological disaster.

Despite these challenges, A Buyer's Guide to the Afterlife is joyful, often defiantly so. Wright offers us ecopoems, but slant—as quick to banter with God as to praise rainforests.

For more than a decade, she was the Poetry Editor at Guernica Magazine and currently teaches at Bellevue University. She holds degrees from New York University and Columbia University. Bottom Feeders

Arielle Hebert

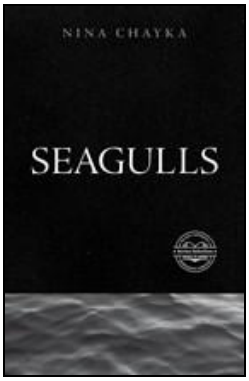

Summary

A vibrant and gritty debut from poet Arielle Hebert, Bottom Feeders is a queer coming-of-age collection set in late 2000s Florida, during the height of the opioid epidemic. Here, overdoses, red tide blooms, and hurricanes are as much a part of growing up as fleeting teenage desires, beach parties, and prom.

This is a landscape of glitter and grime, where young queer love is tested by the tides of addiction and recovery. The collection thrums with a sense of spectacle and surreality, accented by Sarasota's history as a circus town and Florida's deadly wildlife—alligators, needlefish, invasive snakes. The heat, humidity, and salt air of the Gulf become characters in their own right, as haunting as the love, grief, and loss found here. Despite the long shadows cast over these poems, there is beauty, friendship, chosen family, and hope in Bottom Feeders.

Contributor Bio

Arielle Hebert is a queer poet based in Durham, NC, with roots in Florida and Louisiana. She holds an MFA in poetry from North Carolina State University. She won the 2024 Lit/South Award for Poetry selected by Jericho Brown and was included in Best New Poets 2024, guest edited by Anders Carlson-Wee. Her work has appeared in Southern Humanities Review, Grist, Great River Review, Nimrod, and Redivider, among others. Bottom Feeders was a finalist for the St. Lawrence Book Award and is her debut poetry collection.

Seagulls

Nina Chayka

Summary

A Black Lawrence Press Immigrant Writing Series Selection

A teenage Olympic champion in Krakow, a stripper in New York, an American professor at Yale, a tech executive, and a doctor turned undocumented nanny—in a stunning collection of linked stories, Seagulls follows these women and men as they navigate exile, marriage, violence, and love in the aftermath of the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Nina Chayka's debut collection draws on stories collected by the author from Ukrainians and Russians whose lives were shattered by the war, and from the author's own experiences as a member of a Muslim minority in Russia, her escape from harassment and threats of the Russian government, and her eventual exile in the United States.

Through these interconnected lives, Seagulls explores how individuals bound by war find the relentless, if sometimes reluctant, need to move forward.

Now I’m Photogenic and Other Stories I Tell Myself

Jill Rosenberg

Summary

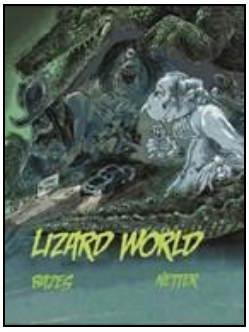

Winner of the 2024 St. Lawrence Book Award

Now I’m Photogenic and Other Stories I Tell Myself is a collection of ten playfully strange and unsettling stories, some realistic and some surreal. The characters in these pages feel alienated: from their communities and relationships, on the streets of wealthy suburbs, at the doctor’s office, in classrooms and swimming pools, in their own homes and their own skin. They wonder: is it better to be alone, imagining the life you want, as fantastic and strange as you wish, or is it better to be in the real world with real people, even if that means you might be hurt, embarrassed, and misunderstood? What if the intensity of it all feels equally threatening and glorious?

In these stories, an angry father wishes he could be loving and gentle; a seven-year-old girl wants to be better at school and thin like her sister; an uncoordinated, awkward teenager is training to be an Olympic athlete. What would happen, we are left to wonder, if these characters brought their wild sides out into the light? What if they stopped trying to be normal?

Lizard World

Terry Richard Bazes, Lou Netter

Summary

In Lizard World, the grotesque collides with the absurd in a time-hopping tale of body horror and dark satire. In 17th-century London, a penniless medical student delivers a corpse to a nobleman with disturbingly specific surgical needs— only to uncover something far stranger than expected. Centuries later, a New Jersey dentist crashes into the Florida swamps and is abducted by the nobleman’ s degenerate descendants, who transplant his brain into a still-living body from another time. As identities blur and monstrous memories surface, the line between past and present dissolves in a surreal battle for control. Twisted, outrageous, and unforgettable, Lizard World is a blackly comic fever dream unlike anything you've read.

The Last Watchtower

Karl Slominski

Summary

"A thoughtful graphic novel in which a solitary man on the moon embraces his past." — Foreword Reviews

Every major violent event—natural or man-made—is observed and logged: tornadoes, wars, hurricanes, earthquakes, volcanoes, riots, and floods.

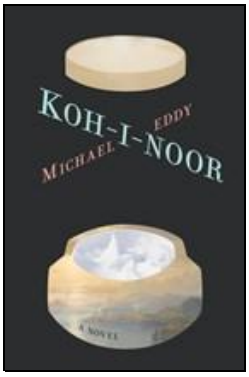

All are ranked and cataloged by the lone occupant of a remote lunar observation station: Cal Ferris.

After 5,840 identical days, the arrival of a mysterious stranger sends the isolated astronaut hurtling into a cosmic exploration of loss, love, and empathy—a rediscovery of his own humanity in humanity's final hour.

Koh-i-Noor

Michael Eddy

Summary

Written with great humour and self-awareness, Koh-i-Noor is a satirical coming-of-age tale about a well-intentioned youth determined to change the world.

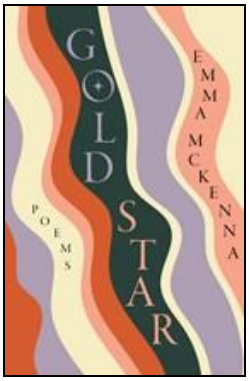

It's 2011 on Nova Scotia's South Shore, and Sean Lohan is at a crossroads. The son of Colorado Buddhists, Sean wonders if he should accept his parents' offer to join their natural cosmetics company or venture out on his own. When an art history professor opens Sean's eyes to the contradictions of capitalism, he realizes he can't avoid or transcend his own personal dilemmas and instead chooses to face them head-on.

Sean's ultimate decision to found a social enterprise leads him to China. At the same time, his close friend Jerry becomes entangled in a Google-like tech enterprise in California, and his girlfriend Samantha pursues her own high-minded interventions in Cuba—each path leading to increasingly risky and complex outcomes.

In the roving literary style of Thomas Pynchon and Mathias Énard, this enthralling debut offers readers a fast-paced adventure through the diverging nuances of economics, spirituality, and extraction. In a per...

Gold Star

Emma McKenna

Summary

In this candid and moving collection, Emma McKenna explores the multifaceted themes of bodily autonomy, capturing the empowerment of queer femme identity.

Drawn from the experience of growing up in poverty in a single-parent home and escaping to the city at the age of sixteen, these poems look at the physical and emotional implications of trauma but also reveal how being bisexual and disabled can be sources of resilience, joy, and creativity.

Examining the way sexism and sexual violence exist as a spectre throughout the lives of women and girls, Gold Star also contemplates issues of child abuse and neglect, reproductive health, and the complex decision to be child-free. Never shying away from the weight of its vital subject matter, this is an urgent and unflinching feminist exploration of embodiment.

Contributor Bio

EMMA McKENNA is a multidisciplinary writer with a passion for women's histories and narratives. She received her PhD in English and Cultural Studies from McMaster University and has published widely on feminist issues. McKenna is also the author of Chenille or Silk, which was shortlisted for the 2020 Hamilton Literary Award for Poetry. Born in Duncan, British Columbia, and raised in Alberta, she currently lives in the Waterloo Region with her husband and two dogs.

Moving Targets

Harry Pinkus

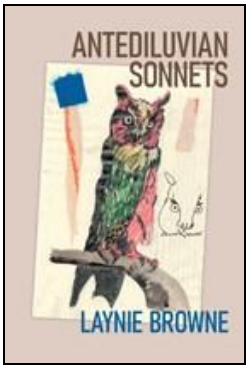

Summary

Whether challenged to solve the mysterious theft of a priceless religious artifact from a Catholic Church or finding an infant taken mysteriously from their adoptive parents, Miles Darien continues to rise to the task. That is until he takes on the cold case surrounding the unexplained death of a Native American man years before. The investigation takes Miles and his life-partner FBI Agent Ken Caldwell, to Wisconsin's Northwoods where the ongoing distrust between the indigenous and white populations is palpable. The case suddenly takes a deadly turn when its resolution leaves a new tragic trail of death. Miles is forced to decide whether he can continue his work while, at the same time, overcoming his guilt and paralyzing sadness. That dilemma drives him to make the biggest decision of his life.

Contributor Bio

Harry's career writing content for clients was rewarding, but something was missing. He needed to write something for himself. His first novel, The Kingmaker's Redemption, allowed him to creatively express his personal point of view through storytelling. Once it was finished, he got right to work on the next book, Human Collateral, which kicked off his new, award-winning series in July of 2022. The second installment, Justified Malice, debuted in October 2023. The third book in the series and his fourth book overall, Moving Targets, is slated to debut in early 2026.

Antediluvian Sonnets

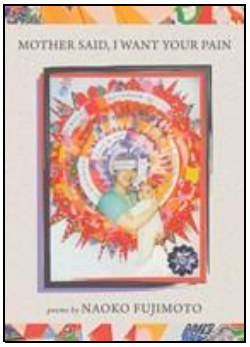

Laynie Browne

Summary

Antediluvian Sonnets sets out to reflect and refract the ways time is constantly bent, especially through elegy. This book is also a love letter and homage text, tracing the lineage of experiments received from one mother of the modern sonnet, Bernadette Mayer. Loss is ageless, and transmutes the notion of any life being linear. Form is another way to consider time, another way for the ancient to become the future.

Contributor Bio

Laynie Browne's recent books of poetry include Everyone & Her Resemblances (Pamenar 2024) and Intaglio Daughters (Ornithopter 2023). She co-edited the anthology I' ll Drown My Book: Conceptual Writing by Women (Les Figues Press) and edited the anthology A Forest on Many Stems: Essays on The Poet' s Novel (Nightboat). Honors include a Pew Fellowship, the National Poetry Series Award for her collection The Scented Fox, and the Contemporary Poetry Series Award for her collection Drawing of a Swan Before Memory. She teaches at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mother Said, I Want Your Pain (2nd Edition)

Naoko Fujimoto

Summary

Three generations later, and still World War II looms large in the daily lives of a Japanese family. Japan's dual role as a perpetrator of war violence and also as a victim of the absolute devastation caused by the dropping of atomic bombs on Nagasaki and Hiroshima complicate ideas of loyalty and identity even to this day. As Naoko Fujimoto's speaker navigates the troubling history of air raids, destruction, and crises, she also struggles with her own ambivalence in bringing a child into that world. Mother Said, I Want Your Pain is a testimony against war, weighing the unhealed wounds that echo through generations.

Alternatives for Succulents

John Paul Martinez

Summary

Alternatives for Succulents bends through the varied landscapes of longing, distance, sorrow, and self-discovery. Sprawling from the rural soil of Wisconsin to the unreachable pockets of space, these formally adventurous poems sift through what it means to want, to lose, and to remain tender. Like wind over an open field, they sprawl with breath. John Paul Martinez’ s lush, aching debut is a book for the heart that breaks open and still blooms.

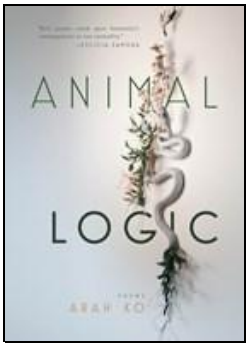

Contributor Bio

Animal Logic

Arah Ko

Summary

Both hymn and howl, Animal Logic speaks in the language of survival. Arah Ko concerns herself with how our world’ s glorious flora and fauna are watched, hunted, cared for, named, ready " to add them to the past and future bestiary, that record we living keep for the dead.” These poems— which consider the drift of jellyfish and the soar of blackbirds— are " built for threat, recoiling from bear caves, cleaned bones, venomous tongues.” In equal measures a work of ecocriticism and a study of human behavior, Animal Logic witnesses. It remembers. It resists.

Rags to Riches

The Nelson Bros. Fisheries Story

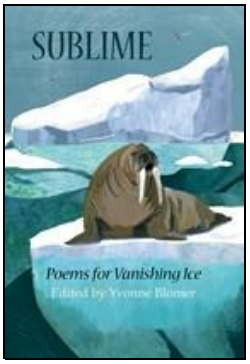

Stuart Nelson, Walter Bruce MacDonald

Summary

Richard " Ritchie" and Norman Nelson were born in Norway and immigrated with their parents to Canada in 1909, where they joined two older Nelson brothers already established on the Fraser River in Sunbury, BC. By age thirteen, Ritchie was crafting gill-nets from discards and fishing the Fraser. In 1929, he and Norman co-founded Nelson Bros. Fisheries, an operation that by the 1950s stretched from the west coast of Vancouver Island to Alaska. With endless energy and boundless bravado, Ritchie and Norman grew Nelson Bros. into a highly successful enterprise, complete with a large fleet of gill-netters, packers, reduction plants, and canneries that processed salmon, herring, halibut, and crab. In an industry that by the 1930s was conservative and corporate, Ritchie and Norman stayed extremely close to their fishermen and shore workers, working tirelessly with and for them— a stance that earned them loyalty, admiration, and even devotion. Champions of all fishermen and cannery workers, Norman and Ritchie were honoured by First Nations. The Tlingit recognized Ritchie as " Big Fin" , an al...

Sublime

Poems for Vanishing Ice

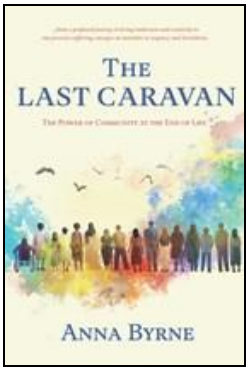

Yvonne Blomer

Summary

sublime (adjective) of such excellence, grandeur, or beauty as to inspire great admiration or awe. sublime (verb) (Chemistry): (Of a solid substance) to change directly into vapor when heated, typically forming a solid deposit again on cooling. In Sublime: Poems for Vanishing Ice, poets from across Turtle Island explore what it means to enter into conversation with ice. The poems in Yvonne Blomer's third, water-focused anthology exemplify sublime as both verb and adjective: these are poems that skate, drink, stomp, crush and dive. In poems that range from street hockey, to snow angels, to meltwater, poets write to the ever-changing ways of ice. Other poems grapple with fires that melt permafrost and rising temperatures that fracture and erode lives. In the poems, fissures form into ever-expanding crevasses, and animals suffer because of humanity' s negative impact on Earth' s most ancient of water systems: ice. Sublime: Poems for Vanishing Ice features poems by Governor General Award winners, Poet Laureates in cities across Canada, and other important voices for our time and place in...

The Last Caravan

The Power of Community at the End of Life

Anna Byrne

Summary

Author Anna Byrne' s close friend Mary Morgan spent her life looking for community. As a youth, the pain of Mary' s mother' s death is made more difficult by her family' s silent grief, financial problems and disapproval of her identity as a lesbian. At 17, Mary leaves her troubled home in Toronto to live among the Guna peoples of Panama— an adventure that ignites four decades of social justice work in war-torn countries around the globe. Flying kites with Bedouin children, smoking with Bosnian men, and resisting the Guatemalan Civil War alongside Maya women offers Mary a powerful salve for her yearning to belong: Chosen family— communities based on mutual values and support. When faced with a terminal diagnosis while living in a remote British Columbian town with few resources, Mary brings the heart of her life' s work— the power of ordinary people to effect change— to bear on her dying. In addition to Anna, she asks two other friends— Jules, and Laurie— to be her " dying team" and help her to die at home. Over 16 months, until her death with Medical Assistance In Dying (MAID), the ...

The Fifth Season

Cori Howard

Summary

In The Fifth Season, award-winning journalist, essayist and poet Cori Howard explores the seasons of a woman' s life, from marriage and motherhood to divorce, what she aptly names " disaster dating" and reinvention. Through the arc of midlife, these poems offer a map back to the self and a return to longing and new freedoms. In poetry that is raw, honest and personal, Howard carries the reader through the thresholds of her life, illuminating the experiences of womanhood and the questions we ask ourselves during times of transition and reimagination.

The Fort George Murders of 1823

Crisis and Co-existence in New Caledonia

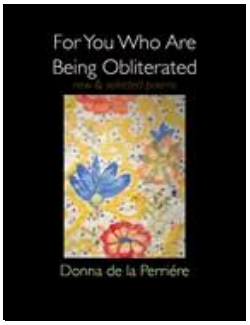

Geoff Mynett

Summary

In 1823, a series of violent events in northern British Columbia shattered the fragile trading relationship between the local Indigenous community and the Hudson' s Bay Company (HBC). In The Fort George Murders, best-selling author and historian Geoff Mynett delves deep into the HBC' s documentation about this exceptional period in BC history. Writers later in the century took the HBC stories and added invented details and imagined motivation like layers of paint and grime over an old painting. Unfortunately, there are few written records from the Indigenous point of view. With a keen and curious sensitivity, Mynett examines the records, always bearing in mind the likelihood of conscious or unconscious bias of the writers. With the murder of two HBC workers following a situation rooted in personal relationships and complicated by tensions between the Indigenous and the settler communities, the future of New Caledonia' s trading district was thrown into crisis. Mynett wades through the imperfect historical record in search of what really happened, seeking to understand this period of ...

For You Who Are Being Obliterated

New & Selected Poems

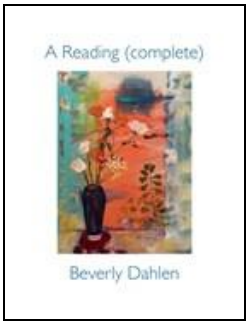

Donna de la Perriere

Summary

"Haunted by history, a ghost dance...enacted with beauty and precision" (Maxine Chernoff) and characterized by "sound orchestration like Lorine Niedecker at her best" (Kevin Killian), For You Who Are Being Obliterated: New & Selected Poems draws from Donna de la Perriè re's five previous collections of poetry and includes more than a dozen new poems that reveal "poetry's essential miracle... vision awash in vision itself" (Donald Revell). In what has been called "the most necessary poetry we've had in a long, long time" (Gillian Conoley), de la Perriè re's work navigates the landscape of gender and violence, familial and regional history, grief and mortality, and the intersection of the material world with the Eternal. "One urgent line at a time is drawn like a blood sample: here is a poet of enormous and visionary talent" (Jane Miller).

Contributor Bio

Donna de la Perriè re is the author of five collections of poetry: three books — Works of Love & Terror (2019), Saint Erasure (2010), and True Crime (2009), all from Talisman House — as well as two chapbooks, Night Calendar (Omerta, 2018) and First Love (The Poetry Center Chapbook Exchange Collection, 2013). She co-founded San Francisco' s Bay Area Poetry Marathon reading series (2004-2019) and taught creative writing at San Francisco State University for twenty years.

A Reading (Complete)

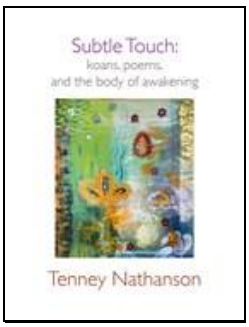

Beverly Dahlen

Summary

A Reading may be the most important "least known" work of poetry of the last 40 years. It shimmers with deep dives into psychology and languagemaking, marking Dahlen as of the tribe of Virginia Woolf, HD, and her own contemporaries, some of whom, with her, are great writers of our time, and great groundbreakers in terms of the possibility of a women's, and a human, literature

Contributor Bio

Beverly Dahlen, San Francisco, has published over a dozen books of poetry, known for their psychological depth and linguistic dexterity. The most well known work, A Reading, now has some six volumes and will be published as a single long book by Chax Press in 2026. Dahlen grew up in the Pacific Northwest, but as a young adult moved to the California Bay Area, where she became, by the 1970s, one of the women involved in writing a new sort of innovative poetry, through her own work and her work on the influential journal (HOW)ever.

Subtle Touch

Koans, Poems, and the Body of Awakening

Tenney Nathanson

Summary

So this is the " uh-oh, poetry" section. Many poets are good at conjuring the sense of " subtle touch" that can be provoked by what we see or hear, making it palpable. Sometimes the focus is observed kinetic rhythm; sometimes it' s intuited texture. These seem to register bodily for the poet. Reading the poem, we can feel them echo again in us. So poetry does a nice job of playing the role of the finger pointing at the moon, priming us for a sense of subtle touch we can carry back into the world, and into our practice with koans. Walt Whitman is especially good at evoking both the pervasive background aspect of subtle touch and the dramatic thusness of some particular creature looming forward to fill our awareness.

Tenney Nathanson (PhD, Columbia University) teaches graduate and undergraduate courses in contemporary American poetry, modernist poetry and poetics, nineteenth century American poetry, American Buddhism and American poetry, and close reading. His critical book Whitman's Presence: Body, Voice, and Writing in Leaves of Grass was published by New York University Press in 01/01/1992 (and reissued in 1994). A poet as well as a scholar, Tenney has also published Ghost Snow Falls Through the Void (Globalization) (Chax Press, 01/01/2010), Home on the Range (The Night Sky with Stars in My Mouth) (O Books, 2005), Erased Art (Chax Press, 2005), and One Block Over (Chax Press, 01/01/1998). His recent critical work focuses on contemporary American poetry, often in relation to the American Zen tradition. Sweep

David Abel

Summary

Sweep is not a long poem or a series of short poems but a log of practice, determined / to find a structure to inhabit to bits. The form’ s generosity lets the bits live, passes them along, unforeseeable, irregular, and ordinary. It tells us what it is as it goes: The Encyclopedia of Unfinished Business. But also, A library is a cemetery in which every grave has a voice, and can speak. In this openwork, isolate moments float in silence, cottonwood-fluff light, carried together by a wandering ground bass. Did I say silence? Made of words: no single poems but a noncount poetry, including even a certain unmodified noun. This notation can be laugh-out-loud funny— Big 12 defense a sieve? That’ s grudge talk.— or gently devastating— Everyone leads three simultaneous lives: / their hidden work, their death, and their disguise.— or both at once.

Contributor Bio

David Abel is a poet, editor, and interdisciplinary artist, and the proprietor of Passages Bookshop in Portland, Oregon. With a group of friends he founded the Spare Room reading series in 2002, still going strong in its twenty-fourth year. The author of more than two dozen books, chapbooks, artist’ s books, and text objects, his most recent publications are a chapbook of poems, Equifinality, from Crane’ s Bill Books in Albuquerque, NM; two books based on performance scores — XIV Eclipses and Selected Durations. An expanded bilingual book of the Eclipses is coming from Escandalar (Mexico).

Lapses

John Crouse

Summary

John Crouse's writing is a non-stop torque conflating the distinctions of sky/people/forest/political/costume store; a torque which enhances the writing's own motions, nightmare, images in forward gear only as: 'historically (actively) voiding reverse gear. As such, his writing is a "vanishing storm" in which a watershed or 'joy' plateau occurs where "Acidic urine rain wrings carbons from sky on the whole shuffling treeless ruinland channeled by river of AIDS virus leftover from valiant chemical warfare...blackbirds sucking its lethality become instant exponential anguish carriers." Crouse's trying to get at "the squareroot of hues:" "behold sky, cobalt edge to edge, broke by trees of deepest green, green of the imageanotion at this dusk as at generally all, contrasts're sharp." He makes his own vocabulary rushing forward at full tilt, the "cancel of wow:" "Z spleens planned obsolescence of common reverse gear that could backtrack country miles for castoff impedimenta...cavefish's eyes, of neutral gear that could adjourn darkass forward can't find em grind em joyride, of brakes that ...

Postcards From and To America

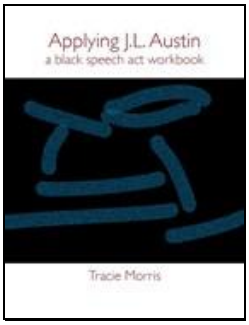

Robert Hogg

Summary

Postcards is a book from an intensely lived life, and one lived in generosity, contemplation, and with deep friendship. Hogg writes to friends, companions, family, colleagues, including fellow writers. Yet the "postcards" (each poem is like such a missive) are to all of us, Everyman, Everywoman, every being (as the earth itself, and its plants and animals, are part of the life of Hogg as they should be for everyone). In fact, one might say that being is the optimal word to describe what these poems are about. Being in its deep sense, of wonder and connection to the universe. These poems connect to you, to me, and just keep doing so, reading after reading. You will want to read these poems over and over.

Contributor Bio

Born in Edmonton, Alberta on March 26, 1942, Robert Hogg was raised on the VT Ranch on Green Lake in the Cariboo, and in the lower Fraser Valley. Professor Hogg studied English and Creative Writing at the University of British Columbia where he co-edited the Canadian literary magazine TISH until 1964. While at UBC, Hogg met the post modern, avant-garde poet who became a friend and mentor. Hogg completed his graduate studies at SUNY Buffalo under Robert Creeley, another friend of Charles Olson. Hogg then moved to Ottawa and taught American and Canadian poetry at Carleton University for the fol

A Black Speech Act Workbook

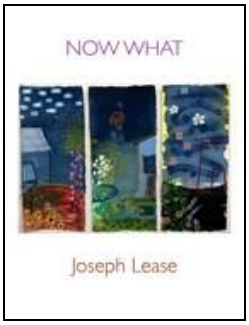

Tracie Morris

Summary

What are early elements or features of your relationship to the idea of Blackness vis a vis your self-identification do you recall in language? How did/do you negotiate it through language? (Could be to yourself, and/or to others) In this context, did you feel like an outsider or an insider? What mitigated this feeling if anything? Would there be anything that you would’ ve done/said differently? Would this change make everyone feel better or only you/a few? (No judgment, only to get a deeper understanding of the situation.) This is to more fully understand the total speech environment.

Things That Are / Things That Are Not

David Miller

Summary

Every tiny push at each point breaks the smooth surface into its small areas, constant in the quiet and slow movement. It is lovely, this motion attended by serenity, almost as if you were here, but you are not, and this is a part of how these things are. Eight p.m., there is time to watch, to take the bus home (the slow journey through London): there is time to do things. The surface is smooth, but it is veined, the liquid, and it rolls, calm and slow, or twinkles, an eye. From the author: The selection hopefully gives some idea of the multi/interdisciplinary, multi-genre nature of my work, which has also included colour paintings and improvised music. My essay ' Interaction, Symbiosis, Overlap' (included in Art and Disclosure) deals with these issues in some detail, if anyone should be interested.

The Manila Poker Club

Eisenhower, Quezon, and the Plan to Harbor Europe's Jews in the Philippines

Mark Sy

Summary

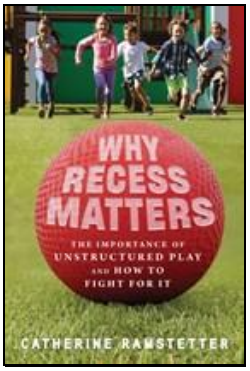

In the late 1930s, as the Nazi persecution of Jews in Germany and Austria intensified, five distinguished gentlemen met half a world away for regular late-night poker games. What began as an excuse to drink whiskey, smoke cigars, and discuss the political events of the day resulted in an ambitious plan to rescue as many Jewish refugees as possible from the clutches of Hitler's Gestapo.

This small group of men in Manila—Lieutenant Colonel Dwight D. Eisenhower, Philippine president Manuel L. Quezon, US high commissioner of the Philippines Paul V. McNutt, and Jewish American businessmen Alex and Philip Frieder—shared a sense of humor, a mutual respect for one another's cultures and people, and an innate desire to help a persecuted population. They hatched an effort to welcome thousands of Jewish refugees to the Philippines, facing off against antisemitic and anti-immigrant resistance in their own countries, the spreading Nazi menace in Europe—and eventually the Japanese invasion of their Pacific safe haven.

Drawing on recently released archives and original interviews with some of the las...

Why Recess Matters

The Importance of Unstructured Play and How to Fight for It

Catherine Ramstetter

Summary

Recess is more than "just" playtime.

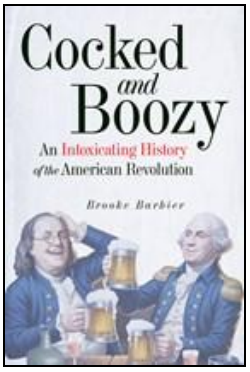

It is a crucial part of schooling, necessary for nurturing holistic well-being and supporting schools' mission to provide a well-rounded education. This unstructured break fosters imagination and builds collaboration, ingenuity, resilience and critical thinking—skills at the core of emotional regulation. This is the potential of recess.

To realize this potential, all students must experience a quality, safe, playful break. In Why Recess Matters, children's health expert Dr. Catherine Ramstetter presents deeply researched data, playful real-world examples, and simple action steps parents can take to support their child and their schools in designing and delivering the full potential of recess.

Educators and parents can work together with the tools provided here to make an impact in the way recess is designed, delivered and experienced, to "do recess better."

Contributor Bio

Catherine Ramstetter, PhD, is the coauthor of the American Academy of Pediatrics Policy on Recess and a school health consultant with Successful Healthy Children, assisting schools with wellness initiatives and recess implementation. In 2019, Cathy was recognized as a Fellow of the American School Health Association for her contributions to ASHA's work in communities across the country. Dr. Ramstetter is a founding member of the Global Recess Alliance, a group of scholars, researchers and educators from North America, the United Kingdom, and Australasia, that guides schools to rethink policies and practices for recess. Cathy's research has been published in the Journal of School Health as well as professional publications for educators. She has also presented her research at local, state, national and international conferences and delivered workshops and trainings for schools. She has been interviewed by USA Today, Time magazine, and ABCNews, as well as other radio and news outlets.

Cocked and Boozy

An Intoxicating History of the American Revolution

Brooke Barbier

Summary

America's founding generation drank a staggering amount of alcohol by today's standards.

It influenced their politics, built and sustained their relationships, and drove the economy. Booze was not a small part of colonial society, nor covertly consumed in private spaces—it was integral to American life.

Historians have been reluctant to discuss the influence of alcohol on the founding of the United States, but it is necessary if we want to gain a full picture of the movement—it's time to reveal the drunken side of the American Revolution.

In Cocked and Boozy—two of Benjamin Franklin's two hundred terms for drunkenness—public historian Brooke Barbier examines the role that alcohol played in spurring, binding, and winning the American Revolution and how it shaped the nascent United States. Every chapter concludes with an eighteenth-century cocktail recipe made for modern tastes, so readers can participate in their own historic tippling.

The intoxicating story begins in 1763 after the end of the French and Indian War and spans until 1800, with the presidential election of Thomas Jeffer...

It Seemed Like a Bad Idea at the Time

The Worst TV Shows in History and Other Things I Wrote

Bruce Vilanch

Summary

"Bruce Vilanch, a storyteller without peer, has written a tell-all . . . on himself! And it's hilarious! He's finally coming clean and owning up to his part in creating some of the worst television of the twentieth century, and that's saying a lot. There's no one like him. As they've been saying since I discovered him as a cub reporter at the Chicago Tribune, when you're in a pinch . . . Get Bruce!" —BETTE MIDLER

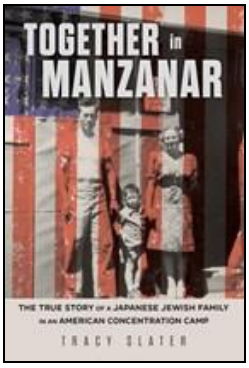

Bruce Vilanch is known as a go-to comedy writer for award shows, sitcoms, and over-the-top variety specials, but he has also been responsible for quite a few of the most legendary disasters ever made.

Some of his work lives in infamy—The Star Wars Holiday Special, The Paul Lynde Halloween Special, Rob Lowe dancing with Snow White at the Oscars, and The Brady Bunch Variety Hour. How did these ever seem like a good idea?

Well, everyone has screwed up a few times, or had their work screwed up by others. It Seemed Like a Bad Idea at the Time is a lifetime reflection of what Vilanch has experienced, learned, and forgotten in decades of working in show business, specifically the sout...

In addition to the Oscars, he has cowritten many Tonys, Emmys, Grammys, People's Choice, American Comedy Awards, TV Land Awards, SAG Awards, and a ton of other pageants, roasts, tributes, and various trumped-up reasons for people to strut a red carpet. He has coauthored dozens of variety television shows and actually put words in the mouth of Cher. He's also a lyricist, scoring gold and platinum records for disco songs he wrote for Eartha Kitt and the Village People. And musical theatre geeks will remember him as the coauthor of the Broadway misfire called Platinum, which

Together in Manzanar

The True Story of a Japanese Jewish Family in an American Concentration Camp

Tracy Slater

Summary

"A World War II homefront action that many Americans would like to forget." — Kirkus Reviews

"This cinematic and propulsive family saga casts a riveting spotlight on an ignominious episode in U.S. history." — Publishers Weekly

On a late March morning in the spring of 1942, Elaine Yoneda awoke to a series of terrible choices: between her family and freedom, her country and conscience, and her son and daughter.

She was the child of Russian Jewish immigrants and the wife of a Japanese American man. On this war-torn morning, she was also a mother desperate to keep her young mixed-race son from being sent to a US concentration camp. Manzanar, near Death Valley, was one of ten detention centers where our government would eventually imprison every person of Japanese descent along the West Coast—alien and citizen, old and young, healthy and sick—or, in the words of one official, anyone with even "one drop" of Japanese blood.

Elaine's husband Karl was already in Manzanar, but he planned to enlist as soon as the US Army would take him. The Yonedas were prominent labor and antifascist activists, ...

Fun Times at the Bloodbath

Jeff Strand

Summary

"No author working today comes close to Jeff Strand's perfect mixture of comedy and terror." –Cemetery Dance Fun Times at the Bloodbath may be the most insanely violent video game ever designed. Currently only a select few have been able to play the beta test version, and they're addicted. Addicted to the point where one man dies of dehydration rather than stopping playing long enough to simply walk into the kitchen for a bottle of water. A husband discovers that his wife is calling in sick to work and spending all day playing the game. When he finally gets completely fed up and unplugs the console, she goes berserk, killing him with a meat cleaver. Margo, whose brother died from his addiction, tries to learn more about the makers of the game, yet it's all a sinister secret. She tries to warn the public about what happened, but there's no law preventing a company from selling a video game that's just so much fun you can't stop playing! She's terrified about what might happen when the game goes from beta testing to a real game, available everywhere. And she's right to be scared. Becau...

Michael Boulerice

Summary

"A fresh and masterful exploration of what it means to be haunted." —B.R. Yeager, author of Negative Space With only weeks left to live, retired auto body mechanic Milo St. Lawrence refuses the option of hospice care in California and returns to the forgotten New England home where his family was destroyed. Dying of cancer and haunted by fragmented memories, Milo believes he must confront something buried in the shadows of the past before death claims him. Confined to a hospital bed inside the half-rotten structure once called home, repressed childhood memories resurface. One by one, he recalls his siblings' mysterious illnesses, his parents' rigid Catholic faith, and the cult-like devotion that replaced medical care with prayer. He remembers watching his estranged sister Marie speak to an imaginary friend in the corner of the living room—and how their parents eventually began communing with it too. As the past and present collide, Milo remembers the night he fled. The night Marie revealed the truth about the many-limbed caterpillar man and the alien hookah device that had siphoned t...

Please Be Good at Philanthropy

An Introduction to Grantmaking Strategy and Practice

Jen Ford Reedy

Summary

A foundation president and educator offers a candid guide to the singular nature of foundation strategy, for board members, staff members, and anyone navigating the world of philanthropy.

Jen Ford Reedy has served as President of the Minnesota-based Bush Foundation since 2012. In her perennially popular Philanthropy 101 classes, Reedy tells her students: Everyone is a beginner when they join a foundation. Foundation board and staff members come from a variety of professional backgrounds and bring their talents and skills into the field. But even if you've been successful in other sectors, you must adapt your skills to be effective in the world of philanthropy.

Please Be Good at Philanthropy explains how to do just that. Reedy lays out five truths of philanthropic strategy that will help you shift to a philanthropic mindset. Then she dives into the basic steps of good foundation practice that will truly benefit the people and organizations you serve.

Clear examples and reflective questions help new foundation board and staff members understand their organizations' purposes and thoughtf...

Seven Cities

Gayleen Froese

Summary

The Isle of Seven Cities isn't where it's supposed to be, it doesn't have seven cities except when it does, and it's disorienting even to those who live there. But it's also the best lead to how magic came back to the world, so journalists Innis Stuart and Karsten Roth are en route to Seven Cities to dig up the biggest story of their lives.

The Heroes of Ganchimi

The Rise of Otem

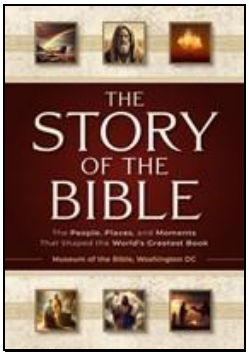

Christopher I Thoma

Summary

When young Joshua uncovers a hidden chamber beneath his family' s woodshed, he fulfills a prophecy— one meant to confront a rising darkness. As an ancient evil rises to threaten the land of Ganchimi, Joshua must wield a legendary sword and unite with Madeline, whose shield deflects even the fiercest foes; Harrison, a relentless prince with untamed power; and Evelyn, whose voice carries more than song. Together, they must stand against forces far older— and far darker— than anyone ever imagined. The Heroes of Ganchimi is a sweeping fantasy of courage, calling, and the fight for all that is good and true.

Contributor Bio

Christopher I. Thoma is a pastor, author, and speaker whose literary works bridge the timeless truths of faith with the stirring power of story. Best known for his theological writings and devotional works, Thoma now brings his distinctive voice to the realm of fantasy with The Heroes of Ganchimi. Combining his rich imagination with biblical clarity, he crafts tales where courage, sacrifice, and the bonds of family rise against the darkness. When he isn' t writing, Thoma serves as Senior Pastor of Our Savior Evangelical Lutheran Church & School in Hartland, Michigan, and engages regularly in matters of church and culture at both state and national levels. The Heroes of Ganchimi is his first youth fantasy novel.

The American Idea

Rediscovering the Words That Built a Nation

John Jay, James Madison, Alexander Hamilton

Summary

The American Idea goes straight to the source to let the Founders speak directly to our time. This essential collection presents the complete Declaration of Independence, Constitution, and Bill of Rights alongside something no other collection offers: all 85 Federalist Papers distilled into clear, powerful summaries that preserve Hamilton' s fire, Madison' s precision, and Jay' s strategic brilliance. Each summary faithfully captures the urgency of a young nation fighting for survival and the revolutionary ideas that still shape major court decisions and political debates today. Key original passages anchor each summary, preserving the Founders' actual voices. Beyond the constitutional core, discover the flawed Articles of Confederation that nearly doomed the republic, and Washington' s Farewell Address and its warnings about political division. Brief contextual notes illuminate why each document mattered then and why it still matters today. Designed as a beautiful 250th anniversary edition, The American Idea transforms America' s founding documents from historical artifacts into liv...

The Pursuit of Happiness

America's Greatest Opportunity

Lee Habeeb, Alfredo Ortiz

Summary

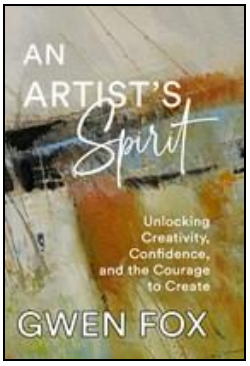

The Pursuit of Happiness: America's Greatest Opportunity
The Pursuit of Happiness is an insightful journey into the development of the American ideal. Through real-life stories of underdogs, immigrants, and innovators, it reminds us that the freedom to build, create, and own property remains the cornerstone of America’ s original promise, rooted in its founding 250 years ago.

From business founders like Bernie Marcus (The Home Depot) to makers like the Steinways, from modern-day entrepreneurs to historic reformers, this book captures how economic freedom has enabled people from all nationalities and economies to pursue a better future. These aren’ t all tales of privilege or guaranteed success; they’ re also stories of risk, resilience, and failure, but ultimately, of belief in the possibility of something more.

Far more than a business book, Pursuit of Happiness re-centers the conversation on what makes the American experiment unique: the ability to turn effort into impact, and ideas into reality. At a time when many feel locked out of that promise, this book offers the hopeful reminde...

Navigating the Deep End

Resilient Leadership in a Volatile World

Emma Churchman

Summary

How do you lead resiliently when everything you thought you knew disappears in an instant?

In these pages, you'll discover the stories of leaders who navigated their businesses through Hurricanes Helene, COVID supply chain disruptions, California wildfires, personal health crises, and market collapses. You'll also journey with me through my own story of loss, heartache, and the path back to purposeful leadership.

This isn't just another business book filled with theories and frameworks—though you'll find practical tools throughout. This is part leadership guide, part roadmap for staying human in the midst of chaos. It's your invitation to consider what it truly means to lead from a place of vulnerability and authenticity, empowering yourself and everyone around you to show up fully, especially when the ground beneath you shifts.

Working with leaders in crisis has taught me the most resilient leaders aren't the ones who never fall down, they're the ones who know how to get back up, bring others with them, and find a way to honor both the weight of their responsibility and the fullness of...

Out On A Limb

Saving the Urban Tree Canopy; The City Project, Book 3

Erna Buffie

Summary

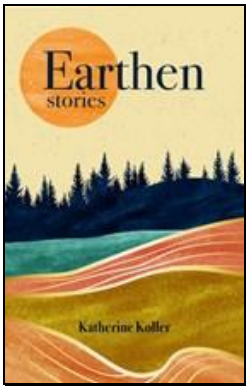

It's often said that trees are the only form of city infrastructure that actually increase in value and capacity over time. So why have so many North American cities historically underfunded their care and maintenance? And why do we continue to indiscriminately mow down trees – and entire urban forests?

Out On A Limb answers these questions and more, as it explores the secret lives and extraordinary infrastructure benefits of trees in cities, the critical role urban forests can play in increasing climate resiliency, and how grassroots organizations can empower city leaders to invest in the urban trees and forests we love–and need.

Earthen

Stories

Katherine Koller

Summary

The characters in the short stories of Earthen are all in need of guidance: mothers, widows and wives, grandmas and grandpas, teachers, lovers, and the young. They find messages in the earth and rock beneath their feet, the mountains and atmosphere above, or the creatures surrounding them: birds and animals, plants and trees. The natural world insists on a relationship with both characters and readers of Earthen, in stories ranging from realism to fable to speculative fiction.

Summary

Doubles takes place in 1968 in an institution for troubled youth, and is told from the perspective of a brilliant, spunky, 12-year-old girl who is obsessed with math. Engagingly written and often funny, this novella explores how a sensitive young teenager changes over a six-month period from a polite, quiet "good girl" into a delinquent. Although set in the past, Doubles has direct relevance to today, with our recently heightened awareness of the harsh reality in some of our residential institutions during that era (including for Indigenous children, but not only).

Staff Picks for Invertebrates

Zoe Dickinson

Summary

Welcome to Russell Books: an indie bookstore on an island in the Pacific Ocean, where anemones dispense life advice and staff recommend books to mollusks. Staff Picks for Invertebrates, inspired by the poet's experiences over the last decade working in a large bookstore, is a love letter to books, and to people who love books. In these poems, divisions between human and non-human fall away. Staff and customers, swallows and starfish, the store itself and the books that live inside: all are part of the same family and dwell in the same fragile, radiant world.

Village Dreams

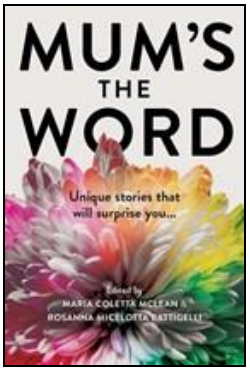

Jay Quint

Summary

In Village Dreams, Jay Quint merges his own existential crisis and writer's block into a chronicle of the evolution of counterculture and the emergence of the world's famous Gay Villages. These special enclaves, at once havens and ghettos, were at the heart of the willfully overlooked transition period between the collapse of the '60s youth movements, and the rise of the "new urbanism" in the early '70s. In reconjuring the zeitgeists of these mythic decades, the insights of the most influential critics, including Walter Benjamin, Susan Sontag, Joan Didion, Tom Wolfe, and many others, are placed side by side with those of "gay writers" like Edmund White (City Boy), Larry Kramer (Faggots), Andrew Holleran (Dancer from the Dance), and Armistead Maupin (Tales of the City).

Contributor Bio

Jay Quint is a writer from Montreal. The choice to work outside the academic environments left him intellectually homeless, yet free to explore. He travelled for long stretches of time, usually calling on Paris first. He's published articles in 2B, Être, Winq, Mate magazines, and now writes (creative) cultural criticism.

Mum's the Word

Maria Coletta McLean, Rosanna Micelotta Battigelli

Summary

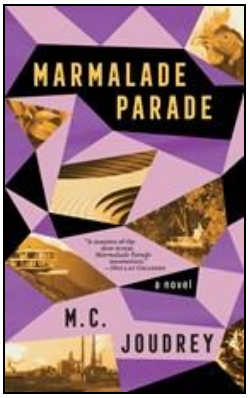

Everyone has a mother. What if that mother was wonderful? Good. What if that mother was not the mother shown on sweet Mother's Day cards, featured in ads, shown in Hallmark movies? What if a collection about mothers included more than just tributes? What if the collection was honest, inclusive, and thought-provoking? The editors set out to gather these kinds of stories from published authors who were willing to share their experiences. The result was Mum's the Word, thirteen tales dealing with everything from missing mothers to regretful mothers to embarrassing mothers to redefined mothers.

Marmalade Parade

M. C. Joudrey, Matt Joudrey

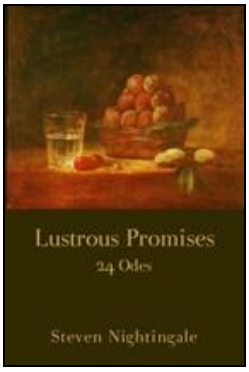

Summary

The first-person narrator has arrived at a house set high in the mountains in an undisclosed, remote location. He is confused, disoriented, and guarded. The home is owned by a man who is suffering from an illness affecting his memory. Both must navigate their combined gaps in memory to determine why they've been brought together.

There are various themes explored throughout these pages connected to some form of memory. Memory as construct that is both built, destroyed, and altered daily, its reliability fleeting. The physical objects that connect us to memory and how these are manifestations and representations filled with artificial meaning yet are often the only things left of us when we're gone. Nostalgia as crutch and a curse, offering up memories that are self-serving rather than accurate. And how utterly terrifying it is when the memories themselves begin to vanish along with lucidity, as cognitive faculties fail us.

Contributor Bio

M. C. JOUDREY is an award winning writer, artist, and designer. His novel Fanonymous (2019) won the Independent Publisher gold medal for best work of fiction for Western Canada. It was also nominated for two Manitoba Book Awards, including the Margaret Laurence Award for best work of fiction.

Lustrous Promises

24 Odes

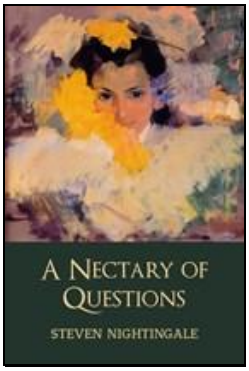

Steven Nightingale

Summary

The ode has no dictated rhyme or meter. It comes as pure life, ready to be given a form, a name, an art, velocity and vision, wings. Odes come ready for creation, like all of us. The maker of verse can count on this visitation of life. We listen and give thanks. From the commonwealth of experience we choose a subject that, with mischief, would join us irresistibly for a venture deep into the original dream of language: a dream that language is a source of light. Here you have in your hands a most promiscuous range of odes: about storms, cities, keys, Bactrian camels, laughter, rivers, children, jasmine … Reader, they are for you. They are what we know and share. We know we can learn and love because we walk together upon an earth that is a homeland of lustrous promises.

Contributor Bio

Steven Nightingale is the author of twelve books: two novels, six books of sonnets, a long essay about Granada, Spain, a book of short fiction, a series of essays about the Sierra Nevada, and most recently, a book of haiku. He is a graduate of Stanford University and divides his time between his beloved home state of Nevada, Morocco, and Europe.

Into the Guns

William C. Dietz

Summary

On May Day, 2018, sixty meteors entered Earth’ s atmosphere and exploded around the globe with a force greater than a nuclear blast. Earthquakes and tsunamis followed. Then China attacked Europe, Asia, and the United States in the belief the disaster was an act of war.

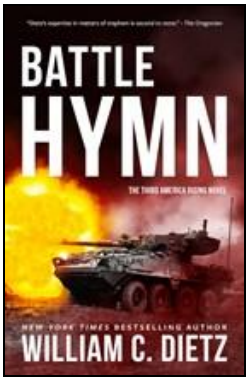

Washington D.C. was obliterated. And the country’ s leadership class was decimated. That left the surviving elements of the armed forces to try and impose order on chaos.

As refugees across America engage in open warfare with the military over scarce resources, a select group of individuals representing the surviving corporate structure decides to remake the country based on free market principles. They call their creation “ The New Confederacy.”

With no orders from higher up, Army Captain “ Mac” Macintyre and her company of Strykers head east to find the supplies they need, and if things go well, reach Arizona. The place where they hope to find refuge.

Battle Hymn

William C. Dietz

Summary

The Second Civil War continues to rage as Union president Samuel T. Sloan battles to keep America whole and, more than that, to restore the country to its former greatness.

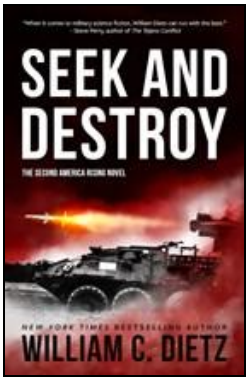

"Wanted Dead or Alive." Following a fateful battle between Union Army major Robin "Mac" Macintyre and her sister, the New Confederacy places a price on Mac's head, and bounty hunters are on her trail.

But there's work to be done, and Mac is determined to help Sloan reunify the country by freeing hundreds of Union POWs from appalling conditions in Mexico and capturing a strategic oil reserve that lies deep inside Confederate territory. And as the two of them work together their relationship starts to evolve.

However, to truly have peace it will be necessary to capture or kill the New Confederacy's leadership, and that includes Mac's father, General Bo Macintyre.

Seek and Destroy

William C. Dietz

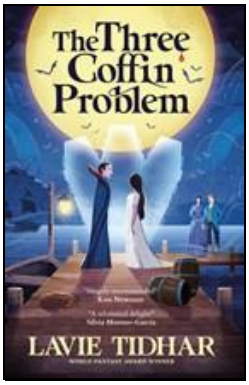

Summary

As people fight to survive the after effects of more than a dozen meteor strikes, a group of wealthy individuals conspires to rebuild the United States as a corporate entity called the New Confederacy, where the bottom line is law. As a second civil war rages, with families fighting against families on opposite sides, Union president Samuel T. Sloan battles to keep the country whole.

To help in the fight for unity, Union Army captain Robin " Mac" Macintyre and her company of Stryker vehicles are sent after the ruthless " warlord of warlords," an ex– Green Beret who rules a large swath of the West. But defeating him will be even more difficult than she thought. The warlord is receiving military assistance from Mac' s sister— and rival— Confederate major Victoria Macintyre. And when the siblings clash in the war-torn streets of New Orleans, only one of them will walk away.

The Three Coffin Problem

Lavie Tidhar

Summary

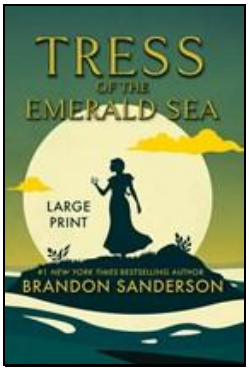

Medieval Europe. A world of darkness. Of Gothic castles, isolated monasteries, of monks and knights and things that go bump in the night. A world where vampires can roam at will... At least, as long as they obey the rules! For a vampire may not murder another vampire. Not unless they have a really good reason to, anyway.

Enter Judge Dee. Ancient. Immortal. Ascetic. His cold intellect draws him wherever a mystery is present, and he will rest at nothing to solve the puzzle. Jonathan, the judge's human assistant, on the other hand, mostly just wants cheese. With bread, if possible. And some pickles would be nice. After all, it's not easy spending your life in the company of murderous vampires who only see you as a tasty snack...

Their adventures take them from the warm Italian valleys to the heights of the French Alps as they come face to fang with fiendishly complicated puzzles—not the least of which is love! But as they are drawn inexplicably onwards to London, Jonathan wonders what awaits them when they finally arrive—and what choices he may have to make once they get there.

Contributor Bio

Lavie Tidhar' s work encompasses literary fiction, cross-genre classics such as Jerwood Prize-winner A Man Lies Dreaming (2014) and World Fantasy Award-winner Osama, and genre works like the Campbell- and Neukom-winning Central Station (2016). He has also written comics, children's books, and created the animated movies. He is a former columnist for the Washington Post and a current honorary Visiting Professor and Writer in Residence at the American International University in London. Tress of the Emerald Sea (Large type / large print)

A Large Print Cosmere Novel

Brandon Sanderson

Summary

#1 New York Times bestselling author Brandon Sanderson expands his Cosmere universe shared by The Stormlight Archive and Mistborn with a new standalone novel for everyone who loved The Princess Bride.

The only life Tress has known on her island home in an emerald-green ocean has been a simple one, with the simple pleasures of collecting cups brought by sailors from faraway lands and listening to stories told by her friend Charlie. But when his father takes him on a voyage to find a bride and disaster strikes, Tress must stow away on a ship and seek the Sorceress of the deadly Midnight Sea. Amid the spore oceans where pirates abound, can Tress leave her simple life behind and make her own place sailing a sea where a single drop of water can mean instant death?

This is a large print, paper-over-board hardcover edition of Tress of the Emerald Sea.

John Henry Gurney: A Passion for Birds

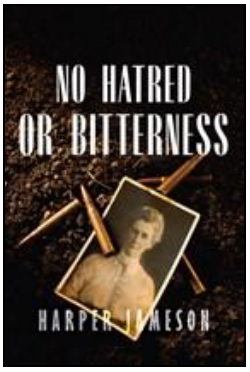

Peter Mundy, Clive Slater, Raymond Williams

Summary

John Henry Gurney: A Passion for Birds details the life of John Henry Gurney (1819– 1890) who became a successful banker when still young. His wealth enabled him to indulge his passion for collecting natural history specimens, especially birds. A major supporter of the fledgling Norfolk and Norwich Museum, in 1853 he announced his intention to collect a series of every species of bird of prey in the world, and to donate and display them in the museum. Unfortunately, devastating events in his private and professional life threatened to derail his efforts. Nevertheless, he persisted in his specimen-collecting and ornithological studies and became a world-renowned expert on birds of prey and the birds of southern Africa. Gurney named nearly 30 bird species new to science and had several species named after him. He made significant and long-lasting contributions to bird identification and knowledge of the distribution of many species. But why did he choose to collect and study birds of prey in particular; how closely did he approach his goal and how much did it cost him? This book attemp...

Twilight of the Gods (Large type / large print)

Tory Quinn

Summary

When Odin calls, you answer.

Matt Trudeau builds things. Big skyscraping things. Despite the storms, the fires, and the earthquakes, he's got no use for fairy tales about gods and "End of Days" and anything he can't hit with a hammer.

Alva makes coffee for a living. Sure, she's had strange luck her whole life, but it hasn't helped keep creeps like Matt away from her.

So when they learn that he is Thor's son and she is an Elven queen and the two are destined to be the last two people alive, spared by the gods in order to repopulate the earth after Ragnarök . . . you can imagine their disbelief (and her revulsion).

But it's all too real, and they will indeed be stuck together unless they can stop the gods from destroying the planet.

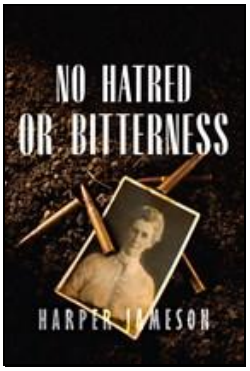

Sent on a wild adventure from a world we recognize to the strange and magical realm of Norse mythology, Matt and Alva will need to harness their unique powers in order to stand a chance against the angry gods, bent on destroying the world as we know it.

But learning the true nature of heroism may be the most difficult challenge of all.

No Hatred or Bitterness (Large type / large print)

Harper H. Jameson

Summary

The exhilarating WWI spy thriller about the woman who inspired the world by refusing to choose sides.

English Nurse, Edith Cavell, was committed to doing one thing in life - heal the sick, regardless of who they were or where they came from. Even when her teaching hospital in Belgium was taken over by the German enemy during one of the most brutal wars the world had ever seen, she held fast to her principles and continued to heal all soldiers that needed her help (German, British, French, and Belgian).

While keeping her hospital open to all who needed it, she secretly worked under the German occupier's noses to help create an underground railroad that ran right through her apartment and saved over 200 Allied soldiers caught behind enemy lines.

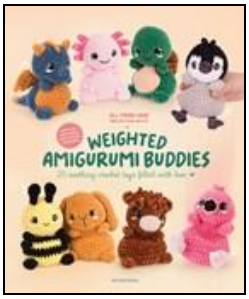

No Hatred or Bitterness is the story of her improbable success, her harrowing capture, and her defiant refusal to give in to the darker forces of human nature, even as she faced a German firing squad.

Four Seasons in Kyoto

A Journey of Beauty and Heritage

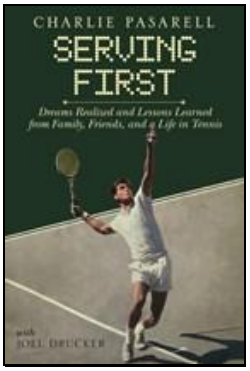

Sumiko Kajiyama

Summary

Experience Kyoto beyond the crowds— right from your pocket. ?Kyoto is more than its famous temples and Instagram-ready cherry blossoms— it' s a living city of traditions, seasons, and hidden beauty. Yet with over-tourism on the rise, its most popular spots can feel overwhelming. This pocket-sized, easy-to-carry guide shows you how to experience Kyoto differently, revealing serene gardens, quiet backstreets, and authentic festivals that most visitors never find. Written by a Kyoto resident, this book combines hundreds of stunning photographs and detailed maps with insider tips on seasonal events, cultural customs, and off-the-beaten-path walks. Glide down a blossom-lined river in spring, join a lantern-lit festival in summer, listen to autumn' s chorus of crickets under the moon, and savor the stillness of winter' s snowy shrines. Whether it' s your first trip or your next return, this is the essential companion for discovering Kyoto' s true heart— slowly, deeply, and away from the crowds.

Charlie Pasarell: Serving First

Dreams Realized and Lessons Learned from Family, Friends and a Life in Tennis

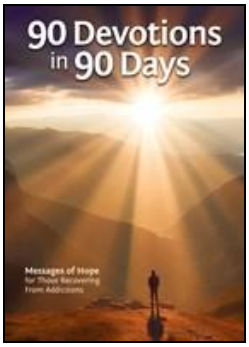

Joel Drucker, Charlie Pasarell

Summary

Charlie Pasarell' s journey began on the sunlit courts of Puerto Rico and carried him all the way to tennis' s grandest stages, like Wimbledon' s Centre Court. Along the way, he played record-setting matches, led history-making protests, and became part of the game' s most defining stories. In Serving First, the Tennis Hall of Famer shares a deeply human collection of stories about the people who shaped him— his tennis-champion parents; lifelong friends like Arthur Ashe; and legends like Pancho Gonzalez, who mentored Pasarell and later faced him in a five-hour Wimbledon epic. The 1967 U.S. No. 1, NCAA champion, and a five-time Davis Cup team member, Pasarell also co-founded the ATP, launched the National Junior Tennis League, and built the tennis tournament in Indian Wells into one of the sport' s biggest events. But this memoir is about far more than stats or titles. It' s a story of character, purpose, and moments that leave a mark— from traveling to Vietnam during the war to time spent with Robert F. Kennedy. Woven throughout are the words of wisdom from his father and Pasarell' s...

Contributor Bio

Joel Drucker is one of the world' s preeminent tennis historians. Over the last 40 years, his stories have appeared in dozens of media outlets, including the New York Times, Los Angeles Times, HBO, CBS, Tennis Channel, Tennis.com, Racquet, and The Second Serve. Two of his pieces have been cited in the annual anthology, The Best American Sports Writing. He is also the historian-at-large for the International Tennis Hall of Fame, was inducted into the Northern California Tennis Hall of Fame in 2024, and is the author of two prior books, Jimmy Connors Saved My Life and Don' t Bet on It. Charlie Pasarell is a celebrated athlete and visionary leader who helped shape the modern era of tennis— on and off the court. A member of the International Tennis Hall of Fame and an NCAA champion at UCLA, Pasarell was the nation' s No. 1 ranked player in 1967 and played five years for the U.S. Davis Cup team. Off the court, Pasarell became one of tennis' s most influential change-makers, co-founding the National Junior Tennis League and helped launch the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP). 90 Devotions in 90 Days

Messages of Hope for Those Recovering From Addictions

NPH Northwestern Publishing House

Summary

The path to recovery from drug and alcohol addiction is incredibly challenging.

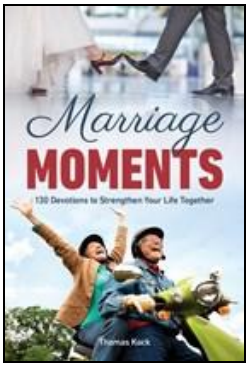

You've bravely confronted the physical detox and are wrestling with the emotional cravings that try to pull you back. Yet, for many, an even heavier burden remains: shame. This isn't just regret; it's the deep, pervasive feeling of being inherently flawed because of past mistakes, the pain caused to loved ones, and the choices you can't seem to forget. This shame can feel overwhelming, a silent obstacle hindering your healing and making true freedom seem impossible.

But there is a powerful and lasting antidote: God's grace found through the cross of Christ.

This isn't just a theological concept; it's a profound, life-changing truth for your journey. This book offers 90 grace-filled devotions, specifically crafted for your crucial first 90 days of recovery. Each devotion meets you where you are with understanding and compassion from God’s Word. The authors gently guide you to bring your struggles, your sins, and your deepest regrets to the foot of the cross, a place where you'll experience the unconditional a...

Marriage Moments

Thomas Kock

Summary

Many moments make up a marriage. From the moment you and your spouse say, “I do,” you set out on an incredible journey through life together. You’ll experience joy, peace, and contentment with each other, but you’ll also experience hardship, conflict, and adversity. When you do, your marriage bond will be tested.

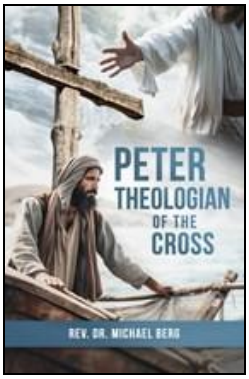

How will you and your spouse not only withstand those moments but also grow stronger together?

Living your marriage at the foot of the cross, rooted in God’s Word, is the answer. These 130 devotions are short and simple, and yet they present profound thoughts that speak to the realities married couples face in an imperfect world. Writing with a folksy, conversational style, Pastor Thomas Kock turns to the pages of Scripture to explore the grand design God had for this special gift and to show how Christ’s redemption provides a solid foundation for strengthening your relationship with your spouse.

In this book, Pastor Kock challenges you and your spouse to apply God’s wisdom to your marriage, knowing that if you do, your marriage will be blessed.

Contributor Bio

Pastor Kock has served as a missionary and pastor in Johnson City, Tennessee, and Milwaukee, WI, and as a Seminary professor preparing others for the pastoral ministry. From 2020 to 2022, he also wrote and was featured in Marriage Moments, a Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod Commission on Discipleship-produced series of weekly video messages addressing aspects of married life. The devotions in this book are based on those messages.

Peter, Theologian of the Cross

Michael Berg

Summary

Why does God allow suffering?

If you've ever wrestled with this question, you're not alone. Many Christians struggle to reconcile their faith with the harsh realities of pain and hardship. This insightful book offers a helpful lens through which to view your struggles: the theology of the cross.

Author Michael Berg uses the apostle Peter's compelling story—from the impulsive disciple in the Gospels to the humble shepherd in his epistles—to show the contrast between a "theology of glory," which equates success with God's favor and suffering with his displeasure, and a "theology of the cross," which finds God's deepest work in apparent weakness and even suffering.

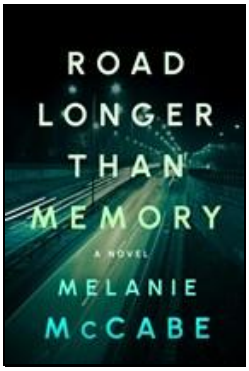

You'll discover:

- Why your struggles don't mean God has abandoned you
- The crucial difference between human reason and divine revelation
- How God can transform even your darkest experiences for good
- And much more!

Follow Peter's dramatic transformation. Find solace and strength and know that God is at work in your life, even now, shaping you into a theologian of the cross. Discover a faith that not only endures suffering but finds profo...

Road Longer Than Memory

Literary fiction with the page-turning tension of a psychological mystery

Melanie McCabe

Summary

Sometimes the road home runs through everything you tried to forget

After a failed relationship and an unsettled teaching career, Sara Barlow returns to her childhood home in Arlington, Virginia, hoping for a fresh start. But when she applies for a job at her old high school, a chance glimpse into the gymnasium shakes her to the core—she spots the man she suspects was involved in a classmate's violent death a decade earlier.

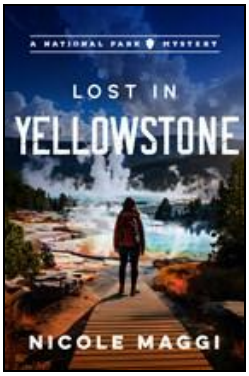

Haunted by the past, Sara confronts the memories she's spent years trying to suppress: her sister Suzanne's fatal car crash, her secret summer with the reckless Devlin Barrie, and the anonymous 911 call she made after witnessing what she believes was a murder. As the construction of Interstate 66 physically fractures her community, Sara grapples with emotional fault lines of her own—guilt, silence, and buried truth.

Set against the backdrop of suburban upheaval in the 1970s and '80s, Road Longer Than Memory is a compelling story of memory, reckoning, and the cost of what we leave unsaid.

Perfect for fans of Tana French and William Kent Krueger

Lost in Yellowstone

A National Park Mystery

Nicole Maggi

Summary

A foot in a geyser. A school in the wild. A truth no one saw coming.

When a human foot is ejected from a geyser in Yellowstone National Park, Special Agent Emme Helliwell of the National Park Service is assigned the chilling case.

Tasked with identifying the victim and uncovering what led to such a grisly end, Emme is drawn into the park's vast, unforgiving wilderness—and into the orbit of a private school for at-risk teens where extreme backcountry excursions are part of the curriculum. As disturbing truths begin to surface, Emme must also confront personal fault lines, including the unresolved tension with an ex-boyfriend who's suddenly back in her life and assigned to the same case.

In a place where danger hides behind natural beauty and good intentions can mask darker motives, Emme must navigate both treacherous terrain and emotional landmines to solve a mystery that could cost her everything.

Perfect for readers of C. J. Box and Lisa Gardner

Contributor Bio

Nicole Maggi is the author of A Murder in Zion, the first book in the National Park Mystery Series, praised by Publishers Weekly as "a winner." She also wrote The Forgetting—an International Thriller Writers Award finalist, Junior Library Guild selection, and #1 Kindle bestseller—as well as What They Don't Know. Her YA fantasy series, The Twin Willows Trilogy, was described by VOYA as "reminiscent of Twilight and Harry Potter." Nicole holds a BFA from Emerson College and lives in Los Angeles, where she spends her free time planning her next national park adventure and volunteering with her daughter's Girl Scout troop.

Praying into a More Resilient Faith

A 30-Day Devotional for Women

Susan Sorensen

Summary

Faith in Hard Times—30 Days of Real Stories and God's Promises

Life's hardest moments leave us asking questions we never thought we'd face: Does God see me? Does He care? Will my faith survive this?

Journey alongside 30 women who have endured some of life's most devastating trials—cancer, child loss, abuse, addiction, even the murder of family members. Their circumstances may be different from yours, but their questions are the same ones we all ask when life turns upside down.

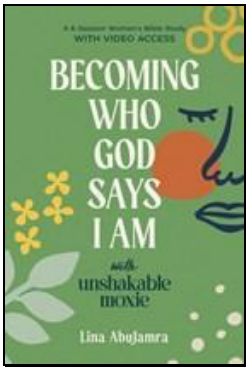

As Susan Sorensen unpacks each story, she invites you into Scripture, journaling, and prayer.
Along the way, you'll see how God's faithfulness showed up in these women's darkest valleys—and how He can meet you in yours.

This is more than a devotional. It's an invitation to wrestle, grow, and build a faith that won't crumble when the storms come. Whether you're walking through suffering yourself or standing beside someone who is, these true story-based devotions will help you discover hope, resilience, and a God who never lets go.

Becoming Who God Says I Am

With Unshakable Moxie

Lina AbuJamra

Summary

Discover Who You Are in Christ and Why It Changes Everything

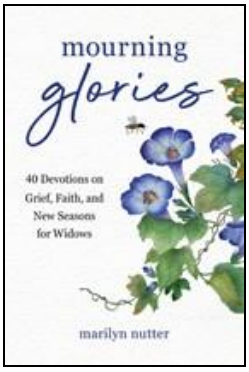

We live in a world quick to define us by our past mistakes, our circumstances, or what others think we should be. But God calls us to a deeper, truer identity—one rooted in Christ.

In this six-session Bible study, you'll walk through Scripture with women who have faced real struggles —childhood trauma, financial loss, cultural stigmas, and more—and discovered the unshakable hope of knowing who they are in Jesus. Each lesson includes devotional teaching, reflection questions, prayer, and practical takeaways to help you live out your God-given identity every day.

Lina AbuJamra opens the door for a dynamic group experience when this study is paired with the companion videos. Season two of the Unshakable Moxie video series, hosted by singer-songwriter Moriah Smallbone and author-speaker Toni Collier, creates an environment of trust and understanding to talk about real-life issues. In each 30-minute episode, you'll hear from respected voices as they share how God transformed their lives through the power of Christ-centered identi...

Psalms 73-150

A Word Find Book from Our Daily Bread Ministries

Peachtree Publishing Services

Summary

Enjoy the lifelong benefits of meditating on Psalms 73–150 for fun!

Nourish both your mind and spirit with Bible-based word find puzzles. On each two-page spread, you'll

- read Scripture from the NIV Bible,
- answer clues about that Scripture to discover which words to search for,
- and find those words in the puzzle.

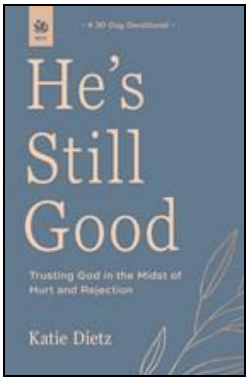

By the time you're done, you'll have read Psalms 73–150 and reviewed key details about each psalm while completing multiple word finds. Full answer keys are included.

From the Search the Scriptures series, this activity book is a great gift for all ages—from kids who need a quiet-time game to older adults who want to keep their minds sharp with the Word of God.

Exclaim with the psalmist, "Oh, how I love your law! I meditate on it all day long" (Psalm 119:97).

Unspeakable Beauty

Georgia Carys Williams

Summary

Growing up in a lonely house on the edge of a wild common, Violet Hart is a quiet and sheltered only child who has always dreamt of becoming something extraordinary: a ballet icon as famous as Margot Fonteyn. Guarding her dream closely after suffering catastrophic loss, Violet falls further into quietness, learning to speak only with her feet as she pursues a path to a career in dance. On the cusp of adulthood, she finally starts to find her voice. But when a secret, all consuming affair with her older lover Theo threatens to send her world into a tailspin, will Violet find herself? Or will she succumb to the silence she knows so well? This beautiful, poetic debut novel warns of the dangers of being a quiet person in a loud world and letting magnetic strangers pull your strings. Set on the Welsh coast, Unspeakable Beauty is an unsettling coming-of-age tale about the importance of learning how to take the lead and be yourself, of finding hope in the shadows, of letting your dreams bloom.

Blueprints

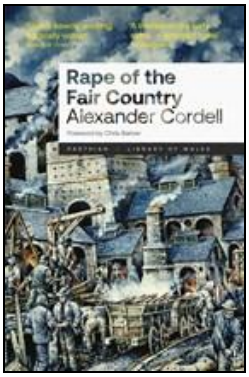

Crystal Jeans

Summary

A searing, reflective and truthful collection of essays by award-winning writer, Crystal Jeans, as she explores the struggles of addiction and mental health during the turbulent transition of adolescence into adulthood through to the strains of marriage, childbirth and parenting. Growing up in south Wales, navigating gender and sexuality, Jeans writes about her relationships with others as well as her own body with a frank self-awareness. Fiercely feminist, brutally honest and full of sharp cultural references, Blueprints is not another trauma story but a vital validation of the act of writing about pain and loss while grappling with identity in a troubled world.

Contributor Bio

Crystal Jeans' collection of stories Light Switches are My Kryptonite was awarded the Wales Book of the Year. Her recent fiction includes The Inverts and Accidental Darlings. Her debut short-story collection The Vegetarian Tigers of Paradise was shortlisted for the Polari Prize. She lives in Pontypridd.

Rape of the Fair Country

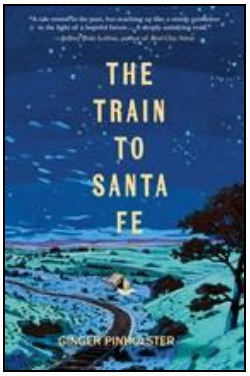

Alexander Cordell

Summary

Set in the valleys of the Welsh iron country, this turbulent, unforgettable novel begins the saga of the Mortymer family. A family of hard men and beautiful women, all forced into a bitter struggle with their harsh environment, as they slave and starve for the cruel English ironmasters. But adversity could never still the free spirit of Wales, or quiet its soaring voice, and the Mortymers fight and sing and make love even as the iron foundries ravish their homeland and cripple their people. The Mortymer’ s struggle has become emblematic of a nation’ s history and struggle, it is a unique story of the people of Wales.

Contributor Bio

Alexander Cordell (1914 – 1997) was a prolific novelist and author of thirty works which include the Mortymer trilogy: Rape of the Fair Country, Hosts of Rebecca and Song of the Earth. He was born George Alexander Graber in Colombo, Sri Lanka, the son of a soldier. Much of his youth was spent in the Far East, particularly China, to which he would return to in later fiction. He joined the British Army in 1932 aged eighteen, reaching the rank of major in the Royal Engineers before demobilisation in 1946 saw him pursue a second career as a quantity surveyor. He settled with his wife and young daughter in the Welsh border town of Abergavenny. His first novel was published in 1954 but attracted little attention. It was the publication of Rape of the Fair Country in 1959 which went on to become an international best-seller which enabled him to sustain a career as a writer of fiction. He would return several times, over a long career, to the stories of his adopted country's industrial past and has become one of the best-loved and most read of modern Welsh novelists.

The Train to Santa Fe

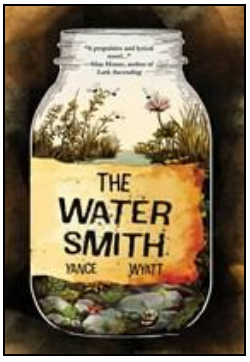

Ginger Pinholster

Summary

In the 1880s, sixteen-year-old Chenoa, a gifted Tewa potter, boards one of the first trains from Española to Santa Fe, desperate to save her family from a bitter winter. Her journey sets in motion a legacy shaped by survival, sacrifice, and silence. Generations later, her granddaughter Rose, now elderly and ailing, pleads with Jonah—a kind-hearted nursing home orderly—to help uncover the truth of her stolen Native heritage before it's lost forever. As Jonah searches for answers, he grapples with his own struggles: raising his young son and falling for Jemi, a wounded veteran who longs to return to Bluebird Mountain. As their lives intersect, long-buried truths rise to the surface, revealing the enduring scars of colonization—and the strength required to heal. Inspired by historical accounts, The Train to Santa Fe imagines the impact of the railroad's arrival in northern New Mexico, tracing one family's story across generations. It's a powerful tale of cultural loss, love, and the quiet resilience of the human spirit.

The Watersmith

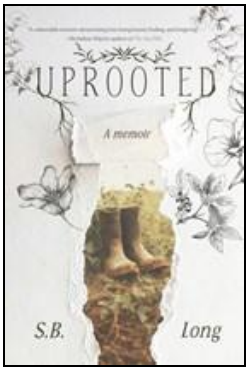

Yance Wyatt

Summary

When hard-drinking handyman Jack Calloway discovers an old moonshine still behind the Smoky Mountain cabin he plans to flip, his teenage son dares him to get it running. Jack accepts— until his wife, Jolene, tries to sabotage the first batch and is horribly burned in the process. Wracked with guilt, Jack sends their son away and moves Jolene into the cabin to recover while he tries to sober up. Doctors diagnose Jolene with a rare post-traumatic dementia that responds only to scent— smell being the strongest trigger of memory. Desperate to help, Jack begins distilling essential oils from her favorite flowers, searching for the one that might bring her back. When a fleeting moment of clarity during a visit from their son slips away again, Jack grows frantic— willing to distill anything in his grasp to reach her. A haunting, tender tale of love, regret, and the volatile bonds between parents and children, The Watersmith is a story of oil and water, memory and mercy— and how far one man will go to bring his family home.

Contributor Bio

Uprooted

A memoir of belonging and becoming

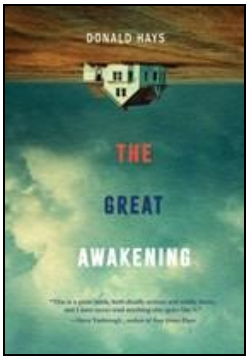

S.B. Long

Summary

After Trump’ s 2016 election, a woman starts a regenerative farm in the Appalachian Mountains— an act of resistance against environmental collapse. But when her engagement unravels under the weight of undiagnosed bipolar disorder and generational trauma, the solitude meant to fuel her activism becomes a crucible for everything she’ s spent years avoiding. A DNA test revealing biological siblings sends her deep into the mountain hollers, chasing family secrets and long-lost kin. What she finds is Georgina Mae— her birth mother— whose struggles with addiction and survival echo her own. As she pieces together the past, she must confront the truth: some reunions carry a cost, and some answers are buried with those no longer here to give them. Interwoven with myth and memory, Uprooted is a lyrical mediation on family, identity, inherited trauma, and the strength it takes to grow something new from broken ground.

Contributor Bio

S.B. Long teaches rhetoric and technical writing at Appalachian State University. She chronicles the darker corners of human history in her nonfiction books like "Woman at the Devil's Door" and her forthcoming work on the Killing Rock Massacre. When not excavating the past or marking papers, she runs a thriving CSA and supper club. She remains close with her biological kin and welcomed into her farm family this year Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson, two donkeys blessed with extravagant "Butler" ears.

The Great Awakening

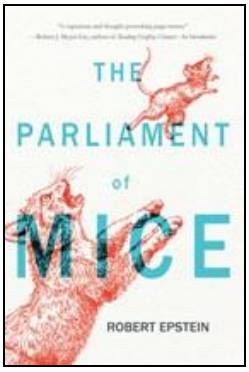

Donald Hays

Summary

America teeters on the edge. As Donald Trump rallies his base for reelection, paranoia surges— Covid spreads, militias rise, and whispers of a stolen election grow louder. In Arkansas, firebrand preacher-turned-Governor Chick Hecklethorne faces a challenge from Colonel Bedford Stuart Jackson, a Civil War– obsessed reactionary running under the People's Party banner with dreams of a ‟ New Confederacy of the West.” When wealthy liberal Bingham Proctor Jr. jumps into the race to split the vote, the stage is set for a surreal political showdown. Caught in the chaos is Waymon Reo Wilde, a haunted sniper turned revolutionary, and Jackson’ s wife— a former sex worker who delivers a child that upends everything. In The Great Awakening, Donald Hays delivers a sharp, darkly comic vision of a fractured nation veering off the rails— where power, delusion, and desperation collide in unforgettable ways.

Contributor Bio

Donald Hays is the author of two novels and a collection of short stories. The Dixie Association was a finalist for the PEN/Faulkner Award. The Hangman’ s Children was a Los Angeles Times Critics Choice book. The title story of Dying Light and Other Stories was reprinted in Best New Stories from the South. Another story won a Pushcart Prize. His stories have appeared in prestigious literary journals and a variety of anthologies. He lives in Fayetteville, Arkansas with his wife, Patty.

The Parliament of Mice

A Fable

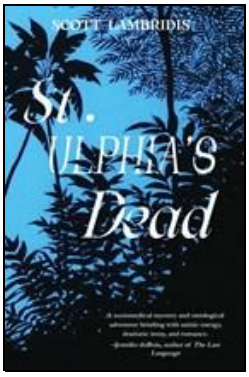

Robert Epstein

Summary

On this farm, every creature wants something and is willing to plot and scheme to get it. The house mice enjoy plenty, while the barn mice struggle to survive, terrorized by a fierce cat. One idealistic mouse appeals to the Parliament of Mice, but his quest to bell the cat leads him into grave danger, and exposes the corruption of his miniature society. The cock rules the barn with his proud song, perched high and unwilling to descend. A clever vixen plots to catch him by weaving a web of sympathy through his long-suffering wife, the hen. Meanwhile, a boy escaping the troubles of his own world listens to a mysterious goose he calls Maman, whose stories twist Mother Goose rhymes into dark, cautionary fables. All of these characters, humans and beasts, are rich with desires and aspirations, vanities and foibles. Their intertwined tales, told with vivid imagery, humor, and insight, weave a fable about power, justice, cruelty, and love— culminating in a wild and unforgettable climax that is tragicomic but ultimately hopeful.

St. Ulphia's Dead

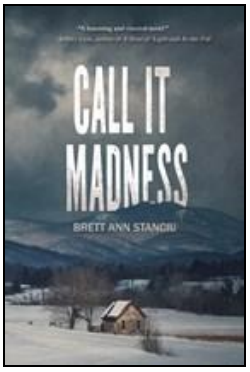

Scott Lambridis

Summary

Disgraced medical researcher Mirs and his skeptical new supervisor Jo arrive on the remote island of St. Ulphia to investigate an outbreak of mass psychosis. The villagers claim they’ re being possessed— one by one— by a cannibalistic demon known as the Wendigo. While unraveling the villagers’ strange tales, Mirs and Jo are drawn into a tangle of local politics, mysterious disappearances, and impossible contradictions. When the missing begin to reappear, the boundaries between fact and folklore become dangerously thin. As tensions rise and trust fractures, Mirs and Jo must confront the possibility that the madness around them may not be entirely imagined— or may not be the villagers’ alone. A psychological mystery laced with absurd humor, St. Ulphia’ s Dead explores how trauma warps truth, how isolation breeds belief, and how the most terrifying demons are the ones we conjure for ourselves.

Contributor Bio

Born and raised in New York, Scott earned a degree in neurobiology from the University of Virginia. He’ s toured the Midwest with a progressive rock band, founded an indie press and performance series, earned an MFA from San Francisco State University, tended a 40-acre olive farm, and read a book from every country of the world. He wrote St. Ulphia’ s Dead during his daughter’ s naps during a year in France, and finally settled with his wife and child in Bellingham, Washington, " the city of subdued excitement.” This is his first novel.

Call it Madness

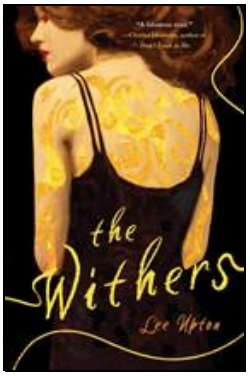

Brett Ann Stanciu

Summary

Millennial Avah Lavoie' s crumbling relationship is the final push she needs to answer her estranged mother' s unexpected call: her great-grandfather Opa has died. Driving north to rural Vermont, Avah hopes to untangle the murky history of a family she barely knows. Rumors swirl— about a long-lost farm, a sawmill accident, and Opa' s drinking. As a snowstorm closes in, complications escalate. A neighbor wants to buy Opa' s house and flip the lakefront land for profit. Trina, the neighbor' s sharp-tongued housekeeper, offers rides, coffee, and companionship— but she has her own motives. When Avah tracks down her mother, holed up on a bender at the Blue Lion Motel, she catches a glimpse of the girl her mother once was: motherless, broken, still searching. Avah can' t forgive decades of drinking— but empathy stirs. Call It Madness unfolds in the immensity of a frozen Vermont winter, where buried truths rise and endings refuse to follow the script.

The Withers

Lee Upton

Summary

In the aftermath of a devastating epidemic, bodies marked with eerie patterns called withers become symbols of a painful past— a past many want to forget. Riatta, one of the marked, finds herself cast out, a survivor of controversial surgeries that saved her life but cost her everything else. Seeking refuge, she recovers in the home of a surgeon who once saved her. But when she learns his wife is pregnant, a shadow falls over this fragile sanctuary. Ruthless organ traffickers roam the streets, and Riatta is drawn into a desperate fight to protect the unborn child and her friends. With what Lisa Gornick calls " the creeping terror of a Grimm' s fairy tale," The Withers is a haunting exploration of obsession, loss, loyalty, and the fragile threads of memory. In a world plagued by betrayal, can trust ever be reclaimed?

When We Were Feral

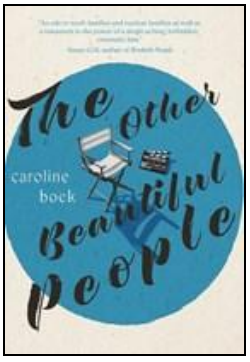

Shasta Grant

Summary

Thirteen-year-old Maggie lives in a trailer on the edge of a rural New Hampshire town, where her brother barely speaks, her father works double shifts at the gun factory, and her mother disappeared without a trace. She finds comfort in the warmth of her best friend Sarah’ s seemingly perfect family— until a classmate’ s mother goes missing, and the girls are drawn to Erin, the daughter left behind. Compelled by a need to understand what makes mothers vanish, Maggie convinces the others to search for answers in the woods and abandoned backroads. But a charged encounter with older boys shifts their path and challenges everything they thought they knew about themselves— and each other. Set in the early 1990s, When We Were Feral is a haunting coming-of-age story about friendship, longing, and the dangerous terrain between girlhood and adulthood. In a world where mothers vanish and truths stay buried, the girls begin to realize the wilderness they fear most isn’ t outside— it’ s within.

The Other Beautiful People

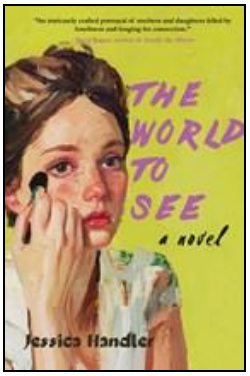

Caroline Bock

Summary

In the entertainment world, the spotlight shines on the beautiful— but behind the scenes are those who make the magic happen. Amy Greene is one of them. As head of marketing and public relations at the Cinema Channel, a beloved yet struggling cable network devoted to classic and independent films based in midtown Manhattan, Amy is at the height of her career— but her life is anything but steadfast. Torn between her charismatic boss, Owen Orski, and her husband Jack, Amy’ s world schisms with 9/11, the death of her father, and the secrets she’ s kept locked away. The Other Beautiful People is a dazzling cinematic novel about love, loss, and the search for meaning— in work, family, and the spaces in between. It’ s a story that will captivate your heart and stay with you long after the final scene. The Other Beautiful People is a workplace love story unlike any other.

We Meet Apart

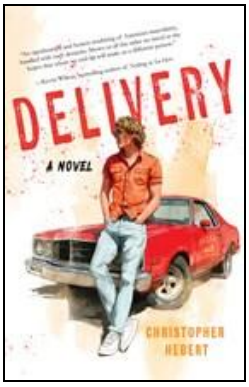

Martha Conway

Summary

When World War II halts ocean travel in 1940, two American sisters find themselves stranded in Ireland— but in different realities. In 18-year-old Gaby' s world, Ireland remains neutral, just as history records. But in 17-year-old Sabine' s world, Germany has invaded Ireland, and she must survive on the run. Both sisters find refuge at the same remote Irish manor owned by distant relatives. There, for one hour each dusk— " the time of pookies and ghosts" in Celtic lore— their two worlds overlap, and they can be together again. But when Sabine falls in love with a German officer who is charming in her world but sinister in Gaby' s, even that brief time is in danger. We Meet Apart evokes the dreamlike style of Haruki Murakami, revealing how thin the veil between worlds can be. It asks: If you lose the people you love in one world, how hard would you fight to keep them in another?

Contributor Bio

Martha Conway is the author of several award-winning novels including The Underground River, which was a New York Times Book Editor' s Choice and published in seven languages. Her short fiction has appeared in The Iowa Review, The Missouri Review, Folio, and other journals. Delivery

Christopher Hebert

Summary

July 30th, 1993. Gabe’ s life has blown off course. A high school baseball star on the verge of greatness, he finds his confidence shaken by a lingering minor injury. Instead of spending his summer training and waiting for legions of scouts to usher him to the major leagues, he retreats— baffling his coach, his teammates, and his long-suffering girlfriend by taking an unlikely job as a pizza delivery boy. He spends the sweltering summer days navigating the labyrinth of streets that make up his hometown, surrounded by quirky customers and the cryptic wisdom of Lena, a seasoned delivery driver who communicates through a custom CB radio. But with every pizza Gabe delivers, he feels the weight of the world’ s expectations loom ever larger. On the eve of an important tournament, with summer coming to an end and his future bearing down, Gabe finds himself drawn into a frantic and decisive night— one that will force him to finally answer the question: what will he do with his life?

A Current Through the Flesh

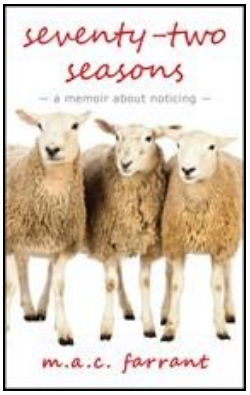

Richard-Yves Sitoski

Summary

A poetry collection that weaves family history into an abrasive cloth, tailored into the full regalia, pre-moth-eaten and torn, of everyday life. With dry and unflinching humour, Richard-Yves traces traumas back four generations and across families to reveal the flimsiness of male self-images, the perils of silence and the latent power of women oppressed by toxic beliefs. His poetry surprises and unsettles with haunting images like empty hands that always seem to hold a hammer and sharp knives that are invisible in soapy water. As a spoken-word artist, Richard-Yves’ infuses his words with pulse and rhythm creating evocative snapshots: a father as a derelict house, love like the last trip to the vet. But he tackles the dark side of domestic life with compassion, honesty and a tinge of bewilderment: “ Sometimes love / is a thing you catch with bare hands, carefully, / so as not to crush it.

Seventy-Two Seasons

A Memoir About Noticing

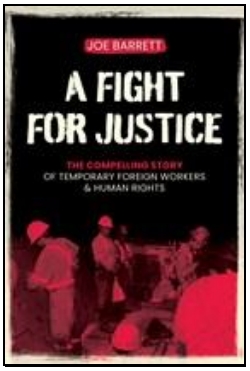

M.A.C. Farrant

Summary

Finding profound moments in the natural world, M.A.C. Farrant offers an antidote to the distractions and pressures of modern life. Inspired by the Japanese practice of celebrating one feature in nature every five days, creating seventy-two seasons instead of four, Farrant embarks on a year-long mission to focus her attention on the small spellbinding changes around her. With her signature humour, she skilfully blends observations, meditations, literary references, memoir, essay-ettes and arcane facts as she explores the natural world. From homely weeds to majestic trees and the animals that cross her path, Farrant shares her deep noticing of the changes of the seasons and along the way we learn with her how to slow down and experience the world with awe and wonder.

Contributor Bio

M.A.C. (Marion) Farrant is well-known for her acerbic wit and laugh-out-loud humour. She has been writing and publishing since the 1980s including 20 works of fiction, non-fiction and memoir; two produced plays, countless book reviews for the Vancouver Sun and The Globe & Mail; and over a dozen chapbooks. Her 2021 non-fiction book, One Good Thing, was a BC Bestseller. Farrant has won the Victoria Book Prize and her books have been nominated for numerous awards including the Commonwealth Writer’ s Prize, Ethel Wilson fiction prize, ReLit Award, Van City Book Prize and two nominations for the Victoria Book Prize. She has also been a finalist for two Jessie Richardson theatre awards and the Gemini Awards for the Bravo short film adaptation of her story “ Rob’ s Guns & Ammo.”

A Fight for Justice

The Compelling Story of Temporary Foreign Workers & Human Rights

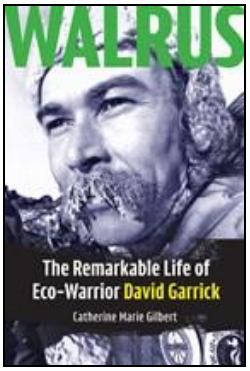

Joe Barrett

Summary

In April 2006, 42 Latin Americans landed in Vancouver to excavate tunnels for the Canada Line Skytrain. They thought they'd won the lottery with promised wages far above what they would earn at home. But the reality was miserable wages, unpaid overtime and inadequate living conditions. It was the beginning of the Canadian construction industry's reliance on migrant workers and the treatment of temporary foreign workers has made headlines ever since. Author, Joe Barrett, fluent in Spanish and a researcher for BC Building Trades unions, first spoke to three of the Costa Rican workers through a chain link around the worksite. They confirmed the low wages. He shares his unique insider perspective as he joined the team of union organizers and became a liaison between workers, union officials and lawyers throughout the court battles. The workers' resentment grew in the face of employer lies, intimidation, coercion and prejudice. Most of them came from a group of villages in central Costa Rica. They grew up together, sharing a background of poverty and hardship. These common bonds gave them...

Joe Barrett worked as a researcher/writer for B.C. construction unions for over 20 years. He is the author of more than 50 features and news stories for Tradetalk Magazine, a quarterly of the BC Building Trades Council. Barrett’s Georgia Straight feature, “The Other War,” about Canadian volunteers in the Spanish Civil War (the Mac-Paps), was nominated for a Jack Webster Award of Distinction. Barrett's social justice activism ranges from New Democratic Party organizer, Central America Support Activist and Founding member of Metro Vancouver Alliance and Greater Victoria Acting Together. He was trained as a high school Spanish teacher and taught FSL and French Immersion in the Yukon and Prince Rupert, BC. He has lived in several Latin American countries including; Nicaragua, Cuba and Chile.

Walrus

The Remarkable Life of Eco-Warrior David Garrick

Catherine Marie Gilbert

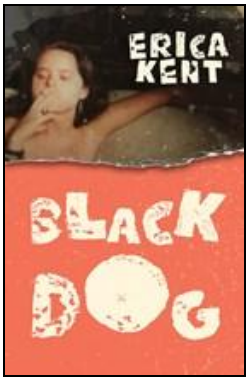

Summary

A fascinating look at the largely unrecognized work of David Garrick, whose intense and unflagging dedication to protecting the earth and its creatures is an inspiration for those who wish to make today’ s world a better place. David Garrick, aka Walrus Oakenbough, possessed a rare fearlessness in the face of danger in his work as an eco-warrior, journalist and mystic. Garrick participated in high profile activist campaigns beginning in the early 1970s including Greenpeace’ s inaugural whale and Harp seal campaigns. Garrick was a visionary who understood the need to bring disparate groups of ecologically and environmentally concerned people together to create a powerful voice. His experiences at Wounded Knee in 1973 strengthened his resolve to coordinate Aboriginal concerns within the context of larger environmental issues. This biography highlights Garrick’ s rich mystical life, which began in childhood with visions of unearthly beings and permeated all of his activities. His life’ s work culminated in documenting thousands of culturally modified trees in coordination with local Fir...

Black Dog

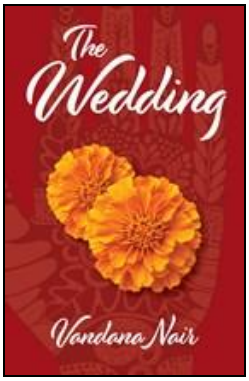

Erica Kent

Summary

In Erica Kent's evocative novel Black Dog, we journey through the turbulent landscapes of adolescence, loss, and the blurry lines between reality and dream. It’ s 1980, and eleven-year-old Jessica Ryder wakes up to discover that John Lennon has been killed. In a misguided effort to assuage her grief, her father shares a beer with her, marking the beginning of a years-long dance with drugs and booze that will lead her down a harrowing, and sometimes darkly humorous, path. Jessica’ s full of contradictions: irreverent but romantic, smart but short-sighted, damaged but resilient. She grapples with the weight of tragedy and life, scrapes bottom, and finally discovers the elusive route to recovery, along with a hard truth: the black dog of addiction doesn’ t die. Both shadows and shafts of light cut through Jessica’ s story as it spans across the 1980’ s. Kent's lyrical prose and poignant storytelling create a haunting and unforgettable portrait of growing up in a world both chaotic and beautiful.

The Wedding

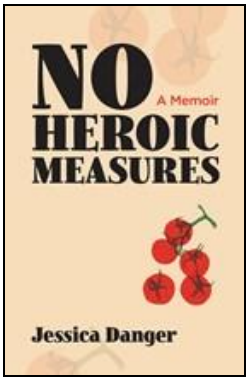

Vandana Nair

Summary

Dr. Ahilya Kapoor dreads heading to her hometown in India for the lavish wedding of Radhika, her young cousin, who’ s captured the bachelor of the season. Entangled between two worlds, Ahilya's independent career as an epidemiologist for the WHO causes constant friction with her family’ s desire for her to “ settle down and marry” . During the festivities, Ahilya finds herself drawn to a handsome cardiologist from London. She envisages the possibility of a future that weaves her two worlds in harmony. But, just as things start going well, a mysterious illness sweeps through the gathering and Ahilya is wrapped up in events that will change everyone’ s lives. Full of sharp wit, familial drama, cultural clashes, and unexpected encounters, The Wedding explores the complexities of tradition and modernity, and the universal search for love and belonging in a time of transition and turmoil.

No Heroic Measures

Jessica Danger

Summary

One day, Jessica Danger’ s life is shattered when she receives a phone call informing her that her long estranged father - the man who once tried to kill her - is now dying of liver failure. Danger faces an impossible choice: abandon her father, or care for the man who caused her so much pain and fear. This unflinching and profound memoir delves into the dark heart of addiction, the tangled web of family myths, and the agonizing journey to forgiveness. As she spends a year caring for her dying father, Danger unearths the truth about his past and confronts the unsettling ways she sees herself reflected in the man she thought she hated. This is a powerful story of reckoning, redemption, and the enduring complexities of family and love.

The Joy of Bird Feeding (2nd Edition)

The Essential Guide to Attracting and Feeding Our Backyard Birds

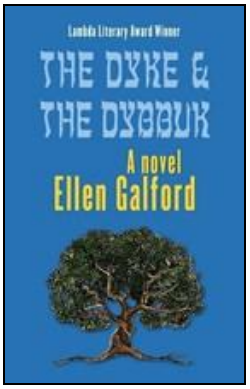

Jim Carpenter

Summary

Now in a second edition, The Joy of Bird Feeding is the ultimate reference for backyard bird watchers and bird feeders. It offers practical tips and solutions to attracting and identifying birds, offering the best foods for the birds you want to see, and how to deter those unwanted guests to feeding stations. Each chapter focuses on an important aspect of the hobby and guides readers to the essential steps of bird feeding mastery: Founder of Wild Birds Unlimited, Jim Carpenter brings a lifelong passion for birds and bird feeding along with real solutions to make anyone's backyard a paradise for the birds and for bird watchers.

Contributor Bio

Jim Carpenter was raised in southern Indiana. During his childhood he discovered his fondness for the natural world, especially while visiting his grandparents' home in the country, where his grandmother introduced him to hummingbirds, shrikes, mockingbirds and other interesting birds and wild things. After earning a B.A. in Biology from Indiana University (1975) and a Masters Degree in Horticulture/Plant Physiology from Purdue University (1979), Jim managed two Indianapolis-area garden centers and a produce stand, which was where he first learned the basics of the retail trade. In 1981, Jim opened a 700 square foot retail shop on the north side of Indianapolis and named it Wild Birds Unlimited. This unique shop, one of the few open in North America at the time, specialized in all of the supplies that help people attract and enjoy birds in their backyard. Jim married Nancy in 1983 and together they built the company until Nancy stepped back in 1995 to focus on raising their two daughters. Jim also took on a business partner, Dick Schinkel, in 1983 to start Wild Birds Unlimited, Inc. ...

The Dyke and the Dybbuk

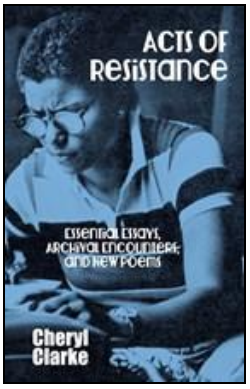

Ellen Galford

Summary

Meet Rainbow Rosenbloom a Jewish, lesbian taxi driver and film reviewer in London. Her life is upended when she is unexpectedly possessed by the dybbuk Kokos, a mischievous Jewish demon. After 200 years of exile, Kokos returns to a world utterly transformed and ready to make trouble as a dybbuk must. Confronted with late-stage capitalism, corporate culture, and computers, Kokos struggles to haunt with her old-world flair. As Kokos and Rainbow navigate this unfamiliar landscape together, an unlikely partnership forms: Kokos learns to survive in the modern age, and Rainbow comes to value her sarcastic, supernatural sidekick. Originally published in 1993, The Dyke & the Dybbuk remains strikingly relevant. Witty, satirical, and full of heart, The Dyke & the Dybbuk is a sharp comedy about religion, family, queer identity, and the absurdities of modern life. The Dyke & the Dybbuk will leave you laughing and thinking.

Crossing Boundaries

How Ornament Led to Architecture

Sidney K Robinson

Summary

Frank Lloyd Wright, America's most noted architect, crossed boundaries as he thought and as he designed. He discussed subjects like democracy, machine, convention, alternatively as advocate and adversary, and his architecture crossed the line between inside and out with projections and recesses whose complex boundaries add depth to our experience of architecture and to our understanding of ideas.

Wright also crossed boundaries of tradition in search of a new architecture he called "organic architecture" that embodied a unique American culture based on nature rather than imported precedent. For him, nature was not just the outside world; it included his own mind that interpreted nature by means of abstraction not imitation. That interpretation was initiated when he saw his mentor Louis Sullivan draw his amazing ornament.

Crossing Boundaries with Frank Lloyd Wright traces how Wright extrapolated the principles that structured Sullivan's ornament to the design of a whole building. Author Sidney K. Robinson proposes that the graphic pattern Wright used in An Autobiography is a diagram of a...

Contributor Bio

Sidney K. Robinson is an educator, author, and architect whose lifelong fascination with Frank Lloyd Wright began as a ten-year-old perusing his architect father's Wendingen publication on Wright and by reading his Autobiography in high school. Interest in Wright led him to work for Alden Dow after graduating from Columbia University School of Architecture some four decades after Dow. Robinson returned to his hometown of Ann Arbor and the University of Michigan for a doctorate in architectural history with a dissertation on Taliesin and Alden Dow's Studio. Robinson taught at the Frank Lloyd Wright School of Architecture for more than ten years until it ceased operations at Taliesin. He also taught design, history, and theory at Iowa State University and the University of Illinois at Chicago with visiting positions at the University of Michigan and Carleton College. Robinson has written books and articles on Wright, Dow, Bruce Goff (whose 1950 Ford House he has lived in for more than 35 years), the Picturesque, and historical preservation.

A Manual for the Dead

David Crawford

Summary

Inside A Manual for the Dead, David Crawford lifts the veil on what truly awaits beyond the veil. Drawing from his near-death experience, lifelong esoteric training, and encounters with the spiritual machinery of death, this book offers the first practical manual for surviving post-mortem deception. Forget comforting tales of angels and light. This is the field guide for those who know the system is rigged and want out. From identifying manipulative entities to reclaiming memory, intention, and spiritual autonomy, this book is a lifeline for those who dare to remember.

Contributor Bio

David Crawford was born in Northumberland in 1975. His life has been anything but conventional. A Zennist, Gnostic Christian, martial artist, husband, father, mystic, and near-death survivor, he has walked many roads—some dark, some sacred. In A Manual for the Dead, he distills decades of spiritual insight drawn from Buddhist training, esoteric study, and personal metaphysical encounters into a bold and practical field manual for the dead.

Tales from The Rock ‘n Roll Twilight Zone

Eerie Enigmas and Supernatural Secrets from Rock's Darkest Corners

Richard Syrett

Summary

Readers of Tales from The Rock & Roll Twilight Zone will gain exclusive insights into the shadowy, unexplored side of rock history that mainstream biographies deliberately avoid. This book provides meticulously researched accounts of rock legends whose deaths— often written off as accidents or suicides— are re-examined through a forensic lens, uncovering credible evidence of foul play, cover-ups, and hidden agendas. It empowers readers to understand how powerful institutions— be it intelligence agencies, occult networks, or corporate interests— have manipulated the trajectory of rock music for cultural engineering purposes. Instead of passively consuming the ‟ official” stories about icons like The Beatles, Led Zeppelin, and Elvis Presley, readers are equipped with alternative narratives supported by little-known facts, declassified documents, and insider testimonies. Additionally, the book offers readers a deeper comprehension of the recurring symbolism, numerology, and esoteric references embedded within rock’ s most iconic albums and performances, allowing them to decode the hidde...

The Hidden Hand

Wealth, Power, and Control from Pharaohs to Corporations

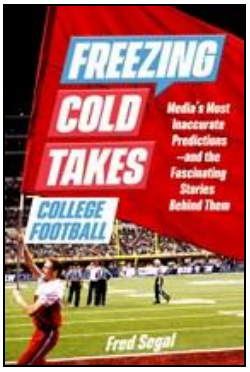

Eric Daniel Buesing

Summary

For five millennia, a hidden architecture of power has shaped human civilization. The Hidden Hand reveals how elites have wielded four timeless mechanisms— coercion, alignment, amnesia, and conflict— to maintain dominance across every era. This is no conspiracy theory. It is systems science dissecting power itself, with receipts. Eric Daniel Buesing traces the problem-reaction-solution cycle across history: Egyptian famines converted into pharaonic loyalty, Venetian banking cartels, Rockefeller eugenics disguised as global health, surveillance capitalism, kompromat, and digital blackmail. Both warning and blueprint, this investigation confronts our current moment of CBDCs, social credit systems, AI governance, and biometric surveillance. Its ultimate revelation is empowerment. Buesing provides the Rosetta Stone for decoding dominance and the ignition key for reclaiming human agency in the 21st century. Essential reading for anyone seeking to understand the deep structures that shape our world and their role in reshaping it. The hidden hand has ruled long enough. It's time to see the ...

Freezing Cold Takes: College Football

An Incomplete History of the Game's Most Inaccurate Statements and Predictions

Fred Segal

Summary

From the creator of the wildly popular Freezing Cold Takes brand comes a laugh-out-loud, nostalgia-packed deep dive into the most ill-fated college football predictions ever made.

No American sporting tradition evokes more fervor from its fans than college football. In many regions, college programs dwarf their professional counterparts in both revenue and viewership.

This passion is served by the reporters, analysts, and so-called experts whose bold forecasts power an ever-churning content machine. But in this attention economy, the hotter the take, the more likely it is to freeze over.

Fred Segal has built a brand sharing these pundit pitfalls with hundreds of thousands of followers on his Freezing Cold Takes social media accounts. Now, in Freezing Cold Takes: College Football, the internet's curator-in-chief of "how did they get this so wrong?" moments turns his sharp eye and wit to the sport's most infamous misfires. From Heisman locks who fizzled to surefire coaching hires that backfired spectacularly, Segal has assembled a Hall of Fame of head-scratching predictions.

Wide Open

Wesley Walker, Gary Kaschak

Summary

A fiercely candid memoir of football, fame, and consequences from a New York Jets legend

Wesley Walker's brightest moments were a blur. At least, that's what spectators and opposing players saw as Walker racked up receiving yards and All-Pro honors. The New York Jets had taken a chance on him with a second-round draft pick, and he rewarded that faith over the following 13 seasons by becoming a franchise legend.

The darker moments came later, in the form of debilitating pain and countless surgeries to repair persistent, progressing damage from those years on the gridiron. Once an electrifying presence, Walker was left reckoning with the physical and emotional toll professional football had taken on him.

In this expansive memoir, Walker reflects on the pivotal moments, challenges, and characters that shaped his NFL career, while not shying away from exploring the profound cost of his success. He opens up about his college years at Cal, lasting relationships with Jets teammates, a meaningful post-playing career as a school teacher in Kings Park, and his commitment to showing up for his com...

The Franchise: Raiders

Vic Tafur

Summary

In The Franchise: Raiders, take a more profound and unique journey into the history of an iconic team.

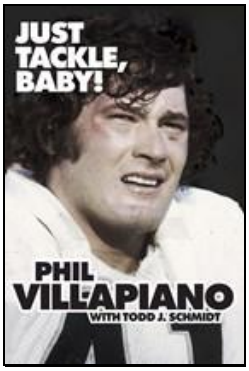

This thoughtful and engaging collection of essays captures the astute fans' history of the franchise, going beyond well-worn narratives of yesteryear to uncover the less-discussed moments, decisions, people, and settings that fostered the team's iconic identity.

Through wheeling and dealing, mythmaking and community building, explore where the organization has been, how it came to prominence in the modern NFL landscape, and how it'll continue to evolve and stay in contention for generations to come.

From Oakland to Los Angeles to Las Vegas, Raiders fans in the know will enjoy this personal, local, in-depth look at team history.

Just Tackle, Baby!

Phil Villapiano, Todd Schmidt

Summary

A captivating memoir of Raiders football under John Madden

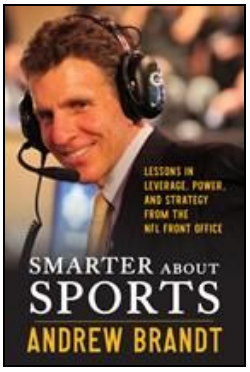

From the Immaculate Reception to the Sea of Hands to his game-changing, fumble-forcing tackle in Super Bowl XI, Phil Villapiano lived at the heart of football history. One of the fastest and fiercest linebackers of his era, Villapiano was a four-time Pro Bowler and two-time All Pro who built his reputation on big plays and bigger rivalries—especially his legendary battles and enduring friendship with Franco Harris.

Just Tackle, Baby! captures Villapiano's grit, humor, and passion, bringing to life the heights of the Silver and Black and the unrestrained spirit of the NFL in the 1970s.

More than a traditional memoir, this is a front-row seat to football's Wild West, told by a player who lived the highs and lows of the era as he helped define it.

Contributor Bio

Phil Villapiano played 13 seasons at linebacker in the National Football League, most prominently for the Oakland Raiders.

Smarter About Sports

My Life Navigating Athletes, Agents, Media, and the Business of the NFL

Andrew Brandt

Summary

A thoughtful, clear-eyed exploration of a sports industry driven by three essential forces: leverage, money, and relationships.

"You make us all smarter." That's what ESPN's Mike Tirico once told Andrew Brandt—and it's the foundation of this illuminating, behind-the-scenes memoir from one of the most trusted voices in sports business.

For more than two decades, Andrew Brandt has lived at the intersection of money, law, and sports—first as a player agent, then as vice president of the Green Bay Packers during the franchise's most iconic quarterback transition, and now as a widely respected educator and analyst for ESPN and Sports Illustrated.

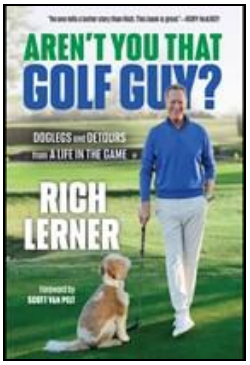

In this new book, Brandt pulls back the curtain on the modern sports industry, revealing what really happens behind the deals, decisions, and drama. With sharp insight and rare access, he explores the true dynamics between players, agents, general managers, and owners, as well as the often-invisible legal and financial forces shaping every major move in sports today. From negotiating with Brett Favre and drafting Aaron Rodgers to navigating Ricky Wi...

Contributor Bio

Andrew Brandt is a nationally-recognized thought leader in sports business, law and policy. A former sports agent and executive—representing NFL teams as well as top athletes such as Michael Jordan, Patrick Ewing and Boomer Esiason—he now brings his credibility and unique insight to academia and media.
Brandt is professor of practice and the executive director of the Moorad Center for the Study of Sports Law at Villanova University's Charles Widger School of Law. He is the author of a weekly newsletter, the Sunday 7, and hosts the podcast The Business of Sports with Andrew Brandt. He has also been a regular contributor to ESPN and Sports Illustrated throughout his career.

Brandt and his wife, Lisa, live outside of Philadelphia and have two sons

Aren't You That Golf Guy?

Doglegs and Detours from a Life in the Game

Rich Lerner

Summary

Rich Lerner's lively collection of golf stories is a love letter to a game that is as elusive as it is emotionally transformative.

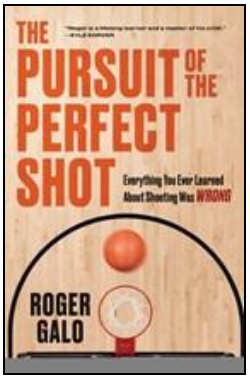

From his early days working at his father's driving range with his three brothers to his three decades covering golf's biggest stars and most historic championships, Rich Lerner has lived a lucky life in golf. He went from rubbing shoulders with hard-drinking, Allentown golf pros in the '70s to playing his first money match (against "The Pigeon") to crossing paths with Arnie to a circuitous route to the Golf Channel just as Tiger Woods arrived on the scene.

In Aren't You That Golf Guy?, Golf Channel's master storyteller shares decades of his best stories. It's funny, provocative, poignant and personal, with deep dives on Tiger, Rory, Phil, Jack, and Arnie, plus hilarious celebrity encounters with the likes of Samuel L. Jackson and Will Ferrell, not to mention bawdy tales from the driving range.

Raw, emotional, real, and relatable; you will see yourself or find someone you know in the pages of this book.

Contributor Bio

Rich Lerner has earned a reputation as one of sports television's premier storytellers. He serves as lead anchor for Golf Channel's Emmy-nominated Live From shows at the game's biggest events like the Masters and The U.S. Open. He has also handled play-by-play for The PGA Tour as well as the world's most prestigious amateur championships.

The Pursuit of the Perfect Shot

Roger Galo

Summary

In The Pursuit of the Perfect Shot, Roger Galo challenges basketball players and coaches to reject the "art of shooting" and embrace the science of shot-making. The result of over a decade and a half of research and testing, The Galo Method is an efficient, standardized approach based on physics, anatomy, and biomechanics.

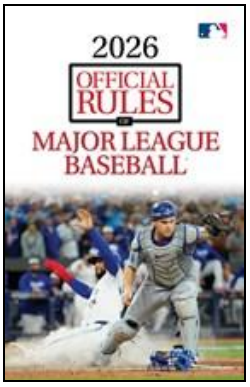

Contributor Bio

Roger Galo is an offensive efficiency and shooting specialist who has worked with players and coaches from the youth level to the NBA.
